THRONGS GREET COOLIDGE

THE PRESIDENT'S TRIBUTE TO PITTSBURGH

PEOPLE have come here from our own country and from many distant lands, until the city, with its environs, has a population in excess of 1,000,000. Your manufacturies of iron and steel stand first in all the world, and you hold a leading place in coal and coke, in glass and electrical machinery. Your mines and mills produce an enormous tonnage, which, it is claimed, exceeds the total rail and water tonnage of the five greatest seaports in the world—New York, Boston, London, Antwerp, and Hamburg. You are the fifth city in the Nation in bank capital and surplus, and your clearing-house exchanges of $9,198,000,000 for last year put you in sixth place.

SUCH a development as has come to Pittsburgh is representative of the material prosperity of many of our industrial centers. Its rewards are widely distributed by reason of high wages among the great mass of the people. While the ranks of unskilled labor have not yet come into their full enjoyment, their condition is greatly improved over what they ever before received. The question for the determination of the American people is no longer whether they will be able to secure prosperity, but rather what use they will make of their prosperity. It is only in its use that we can justify its existence. The answer will undoubtedly be found in the religion, the education, and the art of the people.

By FREDERICK K. ABBOTT,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LE BOURGET AERODROME, France, Oct. 13.—Ruth Elder, daring aviatrix, and Capt. George Haldeman, have failed in their effort to fly the Atlantic, but they are safe aboard the Dutch steamer Barendrecht.

A laconic and garbled message to Le Bourget from Miss Elder stating "Haldeman and I okay," was later supplemented by radio advices from the S. S. Barendrecht stating that both fliers were aboard that ship on the "high seas."

Miss Elder's message stated that her plane, the American Girl, had been brought down beside the Dutch steamer with a broken pipe and both were safe. The message failed to state the position of the Barendrecht, but marine advices were that the vessel was several days out from Rotterdam bound for Baytown, Tex., on Galveston Bay.

It is still unknown whether Miss Elder and Haldeman will remain aboard the Barendrecht until she arrives in the United States or whether they will be transferred at sea to another vessel. The Dutch vessel will take more than three weeks to complete her voyage to Texas and it is expected that the fliers will strive for a transfer to another vessel.

OLYMPIC SENDS MESSAGE

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—The Radio Corporation of America announced today that it was informed by wireless from the steamer Olympic that the Dutch steamer Barendrecht had picked up the crew of the monoplane American Girl off the Azores.

The message received from the Olympic, radio officials said, read: "Airplane American Girl picked up off Azores by Dutch steamer Barendrecht. Both well."

Officials of the Radio Corporation said the brief message, relayed via the Leviathan to the Chatham station of the company, did not mention the time when Ruth Elder and her co-pilot were rescued by the Dutch steamer.

GLOOM TURNED TO JOY

News of the safety of Miss Ruth Elder, daring woman air pilot, and her companion aviator, Capt. George Haldeman, came to turn gloom to joy when growing anxiety was causing a conviction that the American Girl had gone to join other missing transoceanic planes which carried their brave occupants to unmarked graves in the Atlantic.

When the word came that the craft had made a successful landing at sea, its maximum time limit in the air was almost up and the plane was several hours overdue at Paris, according to Capt. Haldeman's estimate.

No word had been received from

DANTE and Virgil traveled the frightful parts of Hell where spirits writhed and rolled in red hot pitch, then going deeper, found Satan, himself, held captive in ice up to his waist, his waving bat-like wings supplying the cold, as with three mouths, he chewed three sinners, including Judas and Brutus.

AS strange a combination of hot and cold is exhibited at Chicago's American Gas Convention. It's a gas stove and refrigerator combined, no bigger than the average gas range. Here also the heat is above, and the refrigerator in the lower part of the unit.

IN spite of warnings and disasters men and women continue their flying effort to conquer the oceans.

Two Frenchmen are on their way from Paris to Buenos Aires.

A Fokker monoplane, Southern Cross, is ready to start from San Francisco Bay to Australia. Mrs. Grayson will try to fly from Maine to Denmark. A German Heinkel plane is coming here, via the Azores. And Ruth Elder, 23-year-old American girl, was last seen 800 miles at sea on the way to Paris.

WHEN this was written yesterday afternoon in Los Angeles, at 7 o'clock, New York time, 4 o'clock California time, four big Army planes were flying over the business part of the city, and a big Ford plane was making its daily arrival in Los Angeles from San Diego, with an invitation from San Diego's chamber of commerce to fly down and watch San Diego grow for one day.

THOSE that run risks today will have contributed to absolute safe flying in the future. Lindbergh says flying overland with a good pilot and machine is safer now than automobiling.

Better machines will soon make ocean flights as simple and safe as a flight over the English channel.

"Will Rogers, Beverly Hills, Cal.

Dear Will: Since you have brought me into the Rogers-Brisbane controversy as to whether President Coolidge will run again in spite of his definite declaration that he will not, let me say I will accept your bet of $5,000 and more-over will give you odds of two to one. In other words, I will wager $10,000 to $5,000 that President Coolidge WILL NOT RUN in 1928.

WILL ROGERS.

I have no inside information that I know the President to be a truthful, honorable gentleman and a high-minded patriot who wishes to stand, and deserves to stand, with Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Cleveland, and all the great Americans who have been unwilling to endanger the Republican character of our American institutions by substituting a dictatorship for a Democracy by breaking the eight-year limitation, the more than two-term restriction, established by the Father of Our Country.

Moreover, the people have shown their devotion to the principles of Washington by voting out of office the party and the public men who violated his injunction against foreign entangling alliances, and I firmly believe that

To a distinguished score of women gathered in the Block House yard today those words were directed by Inspector J. P. Clancey, sworn to protect society from criminals.

The women, including Mrs. H. C. McEldowney, wife of the president of the Union Trust Company, comprised the directors of Fort Pitt Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, and they were gathered to pay homage to the President and the First Lady.

RUTH'S AUNT HERE REJOICES

Deadly white, then bursting into tears, Ruth Elder's aunt tore hysterically at The Sun-Tele today as she saw the headline, "Ruth Rescued From Sea."

She is Mrs. R. T. McClellan, clerk in a local department store, who lives at 1160 Franklin avenue, Woodlawn. Frenzied and blindly, Mrs. McClellan, with whom the intrepid aviatrix spent years, clutched at the paper—then when she saw the good news let out a pitiful cry:

"Oh, how I thank my God! I have prayed so."

With relief, she laid her head down and cried, customers and the noon rush forgotten. Women with whom she works stood by and wiped their eyes. Men blew their noses and mumbled:

"That kid had nerve. I'm glad she didn't go down."

Apologizing for her loss of control, Mrs. McClellan, whose husband is Ruth's mother's brother, wiped her tears and went on brokenly:

"There was nothing we didn't do to keep the kid from going. Her mother is on the verge of a nervous collapse. I was afraid she wouldn't live through it—and I don't believe she would have if anything had happened to Ruth.

"Three years ago Ruth spent a

HOMAGE PAID TO NOTED GUEST

Sombre skies and a chill north wind failed today to mar the welcome which thousands of Pittsburghers paid President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, who came, accompanied by Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, to take part in Carnegie Institute's thirty-first annual Founder's Day celebration.

From the time the special Pennsylvania Railroad train bearing the distinguished visitors and their entourage arrived at East Liberty Station from Washington, at 7:26 a. m., until the beginning of the Institute program, at 3 p. m., the visitors were constantly moving through crowded streets of Americans paying homage to their President.

BREAKFAST WITH R. B. MELLON

When the train came to a stop a group of Pittsburgh leaders in education, finance, industry and Republican politics was waiting to extend them official and private welcome. Then they entered cars to go to the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Mellon for breakfast, to which were invited Secretary of Labor and Mrs. James J. Davis, Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Harden Church, Augustus K. Oliver, Howard Heinz, Mayor Charles H. Kline and President of Council Daniel Winters.

At the Mellon home they were joined by a group of foreign envoys who came on other trains from Washington to attend the institute ceremonies.

From breakfast the party, now traveling in a line of 20 automobiles, paraded through the principal streets of the city, lined with thousands waiting for a view of the President and the First Lady, to the historic Fort Pitt block house at the Point, thence to the Fine Arts Museum of Carnegie Institute, back to the Mellon home for luncheon and then again to the Carnegie Museum, where, in the auditorium, the nation's President spoke on "Peace in Industry," paying

'That's Fine,' Says Coolidge of Rescue

"That's fine."

This was President Coolidge's comment on news of the rescue of Ruth Elder, transatlantic flyer, when it was brought to him and his party here today by the Sun-Telegraph, first to receive the news in Pittsburgh, a few moments after cables had flashed word of the girl's safety.

Official dignity, it seemed, was all that served to repress the cheer which rose involuntarily to the lips of half the members of the Coolidge party, but nothing could prevent eyes from showing the feeling of joy.

First Lady Wins With Smile

Only a cheery "Good morning" and a flash of white, even teeth in a smile filled with strength of character and a warm friendliness.

That was our greeting from Mrs. Coolidge this morning. But it warmed the cold gray dawn of an autumn day like sunshine. It was that sort of a greeting.

From the President, a serious half smile. But a bit of a twinkle in the gray blue eyes that looked sleepy and a bit tired. Neither the President nor the First Lady felt they could discuss any one of the many questions we might have asked them had they been willing to grant an interview. But the trip to Altoona to meet the presidential party, and back to tribute to Pittsburgh's own A. W. Mellon as "the greatest head of the Treasury Department since Alexander Hamilton."

DR. CHURCH CHAIRMAN

President Coolidge was officially introduced to those attending the Founder's Day exercises by Dr. Church, president of Carnegie Institute. The exercises were opened with the "Star-Spangled Banner" as an organ solo by Dr. Charles Heinroth, followed by an invocation offered by Dr. John Ray Ewers, pastor of the East End Christian Church.

Rossini's "Inflammatus" was then rendered by a mixed vocal quartet, after which came the President's address.

When the quartet had rendered another selection Dr. Church announced the award of prizes in the 1927 International Art Exhibition in the course of which he also paid tribute to Andrew W. and Richard B. Mellon, "whose generous support," he declared, "made possible this year's exhibition."

Bizet's "Farandole," played by Dr. Heinroth, completed the program, after which the President and Mrs. Coolidge returned to the Mellon home for a rest before the banquet tonight, which will end the institute exercises.

Flowers, fruits and edibles from all over the world made the luncheon party in the palatial Mellon home one of the most gorgeous ever given in Pittsburgh. A corps of chefs and caterers worked ceaselessly throughout last night preparing for this and the breakfast served for the small group this morning. Many of the nation's most distinguished and socially prominent persons were at the luncheon.

NOTABLES AS GUESTS

The luncheon guests included Dr. and Mrs. Church, Secretary and Mrs. Davis, Ambassador George Cretziano and daughter, of Rumania; secretary to the President, Everett Sanders, Col. Blanton Winship, his military aide; Maj. James F. Coupal, White House physician; Secretary Mellon, Ambassador Paul Claudel, of France; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Heinz, Ambassador J. H. Van Roian, the Netherlands; Mr. and Mrs. Augustus K. Oliver, Count Alberto Marchetti, of the Italian embassy; Robert Silvercruys, charge d'Affairs, Belgium embassy; Mrs. Henry Oliver Rea, Senator David A. Reed, Mrs. James B. Hallman, Dr. and Mrs. William J. Holland, Mayor and Mrs. Charles H. Kline, President of Council and Mrs. Daniel Winters.

President Coolidge's visit to the Block House was the first made there by any President since George Washington. The misunderstanding between police officials and members of the Fort Pitt Chapter, D. A. R., owners of the structure, which did not mar the presidential visit, preceded another march of pomp out the Boulevard of the Allies to Carnegie Institute, where, in the auditorium, the President found 2,500 students of the institute awaiting him. When the President and the First Lady entered they were given a salvo of "rahs," to which Mrs. Coolidge made smiling acknowledgement. When her sedate husband attempted to maintain his customary silence he reckoned without his audience. Cries of "Speech! Speech!" became so insistent that he arose.

"I promised," he said, with a smile, "not to speak anywhere but here this afternoon." Then he resumed his seat and a moment later the party left the auditorium for a tour of the museum and art gallery.

President Coolidge might have been going for one of his morning "constitutional" walks as he meandered through at the head of a large group, until he came to the diplodocus, giant prehistoric mammal, plaster casts of which have been presented by the late Andrew Carnegie and the Foundation to most of the crowned heads of Europe. When he stood in front of this evidence of the eternity of earth, Calvin Coolidge looked more a shy, retiring philosophical student than the head of a government of 110,000,000 souls. Without speaking, he moved on through the art galleries, the halls wherein stand reproductions of famous sculpture of ancient and modern times and thence outside again to receive the greatest ovation of the day from a throng of students and passersby.

On their arrival this morning, Dr. Church was the first to shake the President's hand as he descended from the train platform, where he had posed with Mrs. Coolidge and Secretary Mellon before a battery of news and movie cameras.

Behind Dr. Church stood Mayor Charles H. Kline and President of Council Daniel Winters. And then in a circle were R. B. Mellon and Mrs. Mellon, Howard Heinz, Mrs. Church, Augustus K. Oliver and Mrs. James J. Davis, wife of the Secretary of Labor.

The reception committee was kept waiting for 10 minutes after the arrival of the special train while the President and Mrs. Coolidge finished dressing. Secretary Mellon stood in the doorway of the presidential car, which opened from a sitting room to an observation platform. After 10 minutes of eye-straining, while news and movie photographers made ready, two shadows crossed the dim shaft of light through the car. The rear door opened and, preceded by a secret service man, America's most distinguished citizen emerged, followed by Mrs. Coolidge and Secretary Mellon.

SMILES TO WORKMEN

As the cameras clicked and ground away, a group of workmen atop a building adjoining the railroad tracks clapped their hands and cheered. It was the first demonstration. The President turned toward them, removed his hat and worked the Coolidge facial muscles into the famous Coolidge smile. Then a low murmur of pleasure arose from the reception committee who, with newspaper men and protectors of the party, were the only persons allowed on the platform.

For a full minute the party stood on the platform for the benefit of cameramen. Then the President placed his hat on his head, turned, and descended the steps where he shook hands with Dr. Church.

Mrs. Coolidge followed him. As she grasped the hand of Dr. Church, her face suddenly broke into a smile.

GREETS MRS. MELLON

"Why, how do you do, Mrs. Mellon?" she cried, and, turning from the educator's salutation, greeted her with the hug and kiss that is characteristic of women friends. At that moment, the President was facing the train step where Secretary Mellon was standing, waiting to alight. The sandy hair of the Chief Executive was ruffled under his high silk hat.

"Why, they're human, ain't they?" shouted a boy of 10, standing on top the railway right-of-way fence. And the crowd laughingly acquised.

At a signal from a secret service man and Assistant Police Superintendent Leo Coleman, the party started forward, Mrs. Coolidge linking her arm in that of Mrs. Mellon, behind the President, Dr. Church, Secretary Mellon and Mr. Oliver. The remainder of the party followed with Col. Blanton Winship, military aid to the President, Capt. Wilson Brown, naval aid; Everett Sanders, executive secretary, and Maj. James F. Coupal, White House physician.

In addition to the official party, three cars were occupied by the nine newspaper correspondents and five movie photographers who accompanied the party from Washington.

Meantime the visiting diplomats from the European countries, whose painters are represented in the International Exhibition at the Carnegie galleries, arrived on regular trains last night and early this morning and were lodged in suites at the William Penn Hotel where they breakfasted together. Dean of the diplomatic party here is Paul Claudel, French ambassador to the United States. Another distinguished visitor is George Cretziano, the Rumanian ambassador. The Netherlands is represented by its minister, J. H. Van Royen. Belgium, one of the countries most generously represented in the art exhibit, sent from its legation Robert Silvercruys, charge d'affaires. Count Alberto Marchetti is here from the Italian embassy.

Former Senator George Wharton Pepper and R. A. Franks, vice president and treasurer of the Carnegie Corporation, also registered at the William Penn and will participate in the Founders' Day activities.

The President's special train left Washington at 10:20 o'clock last night and traveled at average speed until Altoona was reached. From there it made a rapid trip to East Liberty. The train was composed of a coach, a club car, a Pennsylvania dining car, two compartment sleeping cars and a Pullman private car. The train, guarded by detectives and police, was kept in the yards here and at 9 o'clock tonight will be placed on a siding near the East Liberty station to be ready for the departure of the President's party at 10:30 p. m.

Crowds Pay Homage As Coolidge Passes

Several thousand persons lined the streets over which President Coolidge and party passed en route to the home of R. B. Mellon. They were there early this morning, some of them arriving at East Liberty Station at 6 o'clock to be sure of good vantage points.

There was no cheering as the automobile bearing President and Mrs. Coolidge and A. W. Mellon passed, the visible sign of the people's homage being the uncovered heads of male civilians and salutes of policemen.

Motorcycle squadrons were stationed at several intersections in Penn avenue and Beechwood boulevard to keep traffic clear, and as the presidential party proceeded they formed an honor guard ahead of the procession to the gates of the Mellon home.

There was no delay on the way to Mellon's, members of the party evidently being anxious to get indoors out of the crisp October air.

the public would be equally drastic in their action concerning any public man who thought more of his petty personal ambition than he did of Washington's patriotic injunction against the dangers of a protracted presidential terms.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

All right, Hearst, it's a bet. I can understand your position. You, as a Democrat, don't want him to run. Neither does any other Democrat want him to run. But it's the Republicans that he has to listen to, and not the Democrats. It's not "his petty personal ambition," it's that he has to run to protect the party that has kept him in office all his life. You say he will be defeated. Now, I will outdo you in generosity. I will bet you five to one that if he runs he will be elected.

I base this belief on the grounds of the Democrats splitting, which is the surest grounds in the world. Especially, if a wet is nominated. And if a wet is not nominated, the wet Democrats will go Republican. So they split either way they jump. Now, Mr. Hearst, I base both bets on two things: Republican needs and Democratic candidates. Now when I start collecting, W. R., I hope this don't make you short. The charity which I will devote the winnings of the last bet to, is the upbringing of the Rogers' offsprings, so they won't have to rely on public office for sustenance. Arthur got out of this pretty lucky.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

MOVING picture shows Lionel Barrymore holding the redhot branding iron, Aileen Pringle providing the snow white shoulder and quivering flesh to which the "redhot" iron will be applied.

Thousands, shuddering at this branding, will hardly realize that such torture would have been considered natural a few years ago. Men were skinned alive, impaled on sharp shafts and left dying for hours. At the time of Henry the Second, a workman was branded on the cheek with a hot iron, if without permission he left his parish to find work in another.

THOSE Henry the Second workmen may comfort united coal mine workers of America, forbidden by court injunction to interfere with the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation's open shop.

That injunction and others like it will do a good deal to make unions powerless. But it isn't as bad as being branded for going out of your parish to look for work. We do improve, although slowly.

NEAR Riverton, Wyoming, Ted Lee killed 115 rattlesnakes with a shovel.

Rattlesnakes rely entirely on poison and conceit, which makes it easy to destroy them. So with those that pervert truth in history, religion, or otherwise. They rely on a poison which is not reliable, and are disposed of easily.

SENATOR REED of Missouri, dissatisfied with national conditions, says, "the times are ripe and rotten ripe for a change." He thinks the Repulican party must be thrown out "if this people are to remain free."

It will be difficult, however, to throw out a Republican party that has nation-wide prosperity, a cash surplus of $400,000,000, and a voting plurality of 7,000,000 behind it. Very heavy to lift and throw out.

EVERY year there are born in Germany 15,000 pairs of twins, 200 sets of triplets. And a sprinkling of quadruplets. No nation has so many.

This human fertility is more important to Germany than any of her other factories. The real wealth is human intelligence and industry, and the world's mothers create its real wealth.

A NEW YORK Stock Exchange seat sells for $250,000. There are only 1,100 seats on the stock exchange, many "inactive," kept for sentimental reasons, by men who do no "trading."

Those 1,100 seats may well be worth eleven hundred million dollars some day. We are in the billion dollar area.

Coolidge Served Real White House Buns

President and Mrs. Coolidge enjoyed "home cooking" for breakfast at the R. B. Mellon residence this morning. Anxious that buns be prepared according to the President's liking, the cook at the Mellon home called the White House cook by long distance telephone and obtained the recipe. The Presidential appetite, it was said, approved of this bit of enterprise on the part of the Mellon culinary artist.

ucts of education and industrial relations, exemplified in the creation of great institutions similar to Carnegie Institute.

After reciting the early history of Pittsburgh, the President said:

"The question for the determination of the American people is no longer whether they will be able to secure prosperity, but rather what use they will make of their prosperity. It is only in its use that we can justify its existence. The answer will undoubtedly be found in the religion, the education and the art of the people."

Concerning Andrew Carnegie, the founder, he said: "Mr. Carnegie was an intensely practical man, but he also was visionary. He saw the future of steel while yet superintendent of the Pennsylvania Railroad."

In introducing the President Dr. Samuel Harden Church paid a gracious compliment to Mrs. Coolidge, describing her as "a very precious member of this distinguished group." Dr. Church also pointed out the foreign emissaries seated on the platform.

"The record of the happy anniversaries shows the names of five Presidents," he continued, "three of them, Presidents McKinley, Taft and Coolidge, with Mr. Wilson speaking before he was elected, and Mr. Cleveland after his term had expired."

The annual report of Augustus K. Oliver, secretary of the board of trustees of Carnegie Institute, was received and pointed out that more than 2,000,000 volumes were loaned by the library to Pittsburgh residents last year.

FIRST LADY WINS

Pittsburgh, was a pleasure and a success, nevertheless.

It is unnecessary for Mr. Coolidge to smile when he has his charming wife with him. Perhaps no one would notice any one else smiling, anyway. For her smile seems to take up the whole stage. She makes you feel it is your special smile—exclusively.

A red, velvety winter coat, black fox neckpiece, and a black satin hat with a bow and gold buckle in the front gave the First Lady a decidedly Parisian look. Her hose were of a peculiar shade of gray-red and her shoes red velvet, matching the coat. Distinctly different, Mrs. Coolidge's costume set a precedent when she made her appearance.

She wore large pearls in her ears and a plain gold bracelet over dark brown gloves.

Her face appeared to be entirely without makeup.

How absent and entirely free from any appearance of pomp and ceremony is life on the Presidential Special. It is nice to be an American. Any real American would thrill with pride.

Secret service men met the Sun-Tele party at the train gates in Altoona, shook hands with us, called us each by name and made us feel as welcome as though we had been especially invited by the Coolidges to be their guests. And it was only 5 o'clock in the morning!

The club car, in tan walls with royal blue leather upholstery and a table light of rose here and there, is as comfy as a drawing room in a home. Having more than an hour to wait before the President's party would begin stirring, we sat and talked with officials and secret service men who came in occasionally and introduced themselves.

No one went through the car without stopping and extending a friendly greeting. There is no formality whatsoever, except the dignity becoming the party that contains our President and his gracious wife.

Passing through the diner at a few minutes after 5 o'clock exploring the train, we found it turned into a laundry with irons busy while servants pressed and brushed the wardrobes. At 6 o'clock it was a snow white breakfast room with sleepy-eyed news reporters sitting over their coffee, rubbing their eyes and wishing they had a few hours more to snooze.

Mrs. Coolidge is shorter than she appears in her pictures. But the dignity of bearing is even more striking when you see her personally. It is perhaps this effective carriage that makes her appear tall and stately.

Mr. President's hair is quite carroty. There are the few elusive freckles and the slight twinkle that belie his serious face and his "not choosing" to say much.

Just plain Americans. Just folks like all of us. That is the feeling you have when you shake their hands and hear their friendly "good mornings."

And now they are getting all "smiled up" to say hello to Pittsburgh. In two minutes we will arrive at the East Liberty Station. Long live Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge. They are nice folks!

SUICIDE FAILS, MUST HANG FOR WIFE MURDER

year with us and has lived years with us off and on. She worked in a department store in Birmingham and lived with us awhile. There is no one living who has wrapped herself around my heart like that adorable heart-breaking youngster."

Mrs. McClellan stopped, looked reminiscent and smiled faintly:

"Once when she was just a little tiny kid I saw her go way up on a spring board and dive so high it nearly took my breath away. I thought she would never come up. But she did—smiling. All she did was try to catch her breath and grin that 'it was deeper than she thought.'

"You couldn't scare her. I honestly believe she doesn't know the meaning of the word fear. It doesn't seem to be in her dictionary. She is the sort of youngster who has you crying one minute and loving her to death and laughing over her the next."

"Then she isn't a society girl?" Mrs. McClellan was asked.

"Mercy no," the aunt laughed, "just plain hard-working folks like all of us. She won a bathing beauty contest down in Florida and it was the backers of it who plead with her to go on that flying trip."

Mrs. McClellan was told that her husband had been roused from his sleep to hear the good news and tears came to her eyes again:

"Oh, I'm glad. He was just ill with suspense. He didn't say much. But, I knew how he was suffering. As for myself, I didn't sleep a wink last night."

Ruth's aunt described her as so much more beautiful than her pictures that you would never know she was the same girl.

Dimples—medium brown hair, gray-blue eyes and a "million dollar personality." Mrs. McClellan's one fear is:

"Oh, I am so afraid she'll just go and try the same thing over again. Ruth is like that."

the American Girl since Tuesday night, when a steamship saw her winging her way overhead barely started on the long trail leading from New York to Paris.

If all had gone well the American Girl should have made her final battle with the elements early in the day, this time an assault on fog-blanketed France which drove Commander Byrd's America back after the big craft was over the country. The America, a land plane, too, but much more powerful than the American Girl, also landed in the sea and its crew lived to tell the thrilling tale.

who tracks down murderers explained, "and all will hafta git out."

Mrs. McEldowney looked to Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, honorary national president of the D. A. R. And Mrs. Cook turned to Mrs. John Brown Heron, vice president general of the D. A. R. A dozen women looked at each other. They were being put out of their own home and their indignant query was, "Sir?"

They "got." They retreated to their lodge house and slammed the door. They telephoned Superintendent of Police Walsh and they called Director Clark.

Then they heard motorcycles and they knew the President was near. They tried to leave their lodge house, but they found a sizeable portion of the law blocking the exit.

"Orders," Clancey shouted, "is that nobody can come out."

The women ran to the back porch and there they found a dozen equally sizable policemen. And the President was near the Block House.

"Open the door!" they shouted desperately. And Howard Heinz, a member of the President's party, heard.

That door was opened and those sizeable underlings of Inspector Clancey fell, awed, by the wayside. The women advanced on the Presidential party smilingly triumphant. The President raised his hat to them and Mrs. Coolidge smiled. To the First Lady, Mrs. Biddle Arthurs, regent of the Pittsburgh chapter, presented a bouquet of orchids and on the President [illegible] a. Moses Atwood, president of the Fort Pitt Society, bestowed a hand-made, deluxe copy of the Block House's history.

And, to cap the festivities, Howard Heinz and some 20 women allowed themselves to smile.

15 Other Presidents Have Visited Here

WASHINGTON in 1753, on his journey to the Venango, in 1758, at the capture of Ft. Duquesne and in 1770, when he visited Ft. Pitt. He did not come here after being elected President.

Among other Presidents who have visited Pittsburgh were:

MONROE on September 6, 1817, was the first President to visit Pittsburgh during his term of office.

WILLIAM HENRY HARRISON in January, 1841, while President-elect, on his way to Washington to be inaugurated.

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS on November 16, 1843, while ex-President.

TAYLOR in August, 1849, during his term of office.

LINCOLN on February 22, 1856, attending the first convention of the Republican party here, and February 14, 1861, as President-elect.

JOHNSON in October, 1866.

GRANT on September 14, 1869, while President, and December, 1879, on his return from a trip around the world.

CLEVELAND in 1901, when ex-President. He addressed Founder's Day at Carnegie Institute.

BENJAMIN HARRISON in February, 1891, when he dedicated the Allegheny Free Library.

M'KINLEY at Founder's Day, 1897. He was here again in 1899 at the reception of the Tenth Pennsylvania Regiment on its return from the Philippines.

ROOSEVELT on July 4, 1902, while serving his first term as President. His last visit was July 25, 1917.

TAFT on Founder's Day, 1910, and November, 1911, at the observance of the centenary of steam navigation on the Ohio River.

WILSON on Founder's Day, 1903, and on January 29, 1916, during his first term as President.

HARDING in March, 1916, at the opening banquet of the William Penn Hotel. He was not here during his term as President.

COOLIDGE at Founder's Day, 1921, when he was Vice President.

SIX EUROPEAN ENVOYS GUESTS OF CITY

Six European nations were represented at the Founder's Day exercises of Carnegie Institute by their principal diplomatic envoys now in the United States—France, by Paul Claudel, ambassador; Italy, by Count Alberta Marchetti, charge d' affaires; Belgium, by Robert Silvercruys, charge d' affaires; Rumania by George Cretziano, minister, who was accompanied by his daughter, Mlle. Jeanne Cretziano; the Netherlands, by J. H. Van Royen, minister, and Austria, by Edgar Prochnik, minister, who was accompanied by Mme. Prochnik.

It was the first visit to Pittsburgh for all but the Belgian and Austrian envoys, and they were here before when conditions were vastly different from what they are now—Mr. Silvercruys during the war, when Pittsburgh was furnishing munitions and troops to aid his country to liberate itself from the Germans; Mr. Prochnik, 22 years ago, when his government, now without representation here, maintained in Pittsburgh the largest consulate in the United States.

The diplomats did not come to Pittsburgh with the Presidential party, but on other trains. They went to the William Penn Hotel, where, after breakfast, they were met by a reception committee composed of Howard Heinz and Augustus K. Oliver and taken to the residence of R. B. Mellon. Their movements during the rest of the day paralleled those of President Coolidge.

Mr. Van Royen, the Dutch minister, said he felt at home in Pittsburgh because Pittsburghers are busy, energetic folk like the Hollanders.

Mr. Silvercruys, the Belgian charge, a jovial young man, who expressed regret, on being photographed, that he did not wear a high hat like his colleagues, remarked that many of his fellow-countrymen were employed in the glass factories in the Pittsburgh district. "Charleroi," he said, "is a Belgian city." Commenting on American glass manufacturers' complaint that they find it difficult to compete with Belgians who are sending glass to this country, Mr. Silvercruys exclaimed: "Surely you do not begrudge us the little share that we have of your market!"

M. Claudel, the French ambassador, expressed appreciation of the fact that Pittsburgh was once French territory, and said he was glad of the opportunity to visit the site of Fort Duquesne. He was looking forward with eagerness, he said, to the international art exhibit, because one of the prominent French painters represented, Matisse, is a personal friend of his.

The Rumanian minister, Mr. Cretziano, said that the art of painting had not been highly developed in Rumania, but that a good beginning had been made.

Mr. Prochnik, the Austrian minister, commented on the great change that has occurred in the status of his country since he was here years ago, as an attache of the Austro-Hungarian consulate. There were hundreds of thousands of Austro-Hungarian subjects in the Pittsburgh district then. But the new Austrian republic now has no consulate here.

Cavaliere Giuseppe Castruccio, Italian vice consul in Pittsburgh; Joseph Natale, former vice consul, and several others were at the Pennsylvania station to meet Count Marchetti, the Italian charge; but through some misunderstanding he did not arrive until much later than his colleagues of the diplomatic corps. Count Marchetti said that during the four months that he has been in the United States he has successfully resisted all efforts to photograph him, and hoped to continue to do so. He spoke with enthusiasm of the progress that Italy is making under the rule of Benito Mussolini, and said he believed his country was proceeding to a great destiny. He said he would like to come to Pittsburgh for the celebration by local Italians of the fifth anniversary of the Fascisti march on Rome, but feared he would be unable to be here.

Eight Months for Kicking Woman Not His Wife

LONDON, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Patrick Woodman, a laborer, today was sentenced to eight months' imprisonment for what he called a mistake. Mrs. Ruth Kerridge testified Woodman kicked her violently.

"I mistook her for my wife," Woodman explained to the court.

Coolidge Speech in Full

The full text of President Coolidge's speech at the Founder's Day exercises at Carnegie Institute this afternoon follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen:

This occasion is an illustration of the power of expansion which lies in sound and humane principles. It seems like an immeasurable distance from an insignificant frontier fort to an international art exhibition. From the few staggering log huts of a trading post in the wilderness to a manufacturing metropolis producing an annual tonnage many times in excess of that of any other city in the world, might be thought to require the development of several centuries. From the savage domain of still more savage men, under the uncertain and disputed sovereignty of two kings of the Old World to an orderly municipality of a self-governing American commonwealth, represents progress in government usually covered by the rise and fall of many dynasties. Yet that distance has been traversed, that development has been secured, and that progress has been made by the city of Pittsburgh in the short space of a little over 150 years.

These results have not been accomplished by any magic. They have been brought about by a supreme effort, by the making of sacrifices that reached to life itself, by the endurance of long years of war and of unending toil through many years of peace. Our economics, our government, are not the result of accident or fortuitous circumstances. Dreams and visions have played little part in them. They have come from men who could face facts and were willing to grapple with realities; from men whose hands were hardened at the plow, whose faces were blackened at the forge, whose bodies had been exposed to the fire of hostile forces. These are the foundations on which our country has been built. Our order, our peace, our prosperity find in them their main supports. Out of them has come the flower of our civilization with its guaranties of liberty, its enormous material resources, its educational institutions, unfolding into the beauties of architecture, of sculpture, of music, and of painting.

All of this has been characteristic of the inner meaning and the triumph of American life. It is exemplified in the history of every important center of population and in the record of every prominent man in the making of our country. We are rather accustomed to think of Washington as a Virginia aristocrat, general of the army, president of the republic, master of the beautiful estate at Mount Vernon, clad in silks and velvets, as he is pictured by Peale or by Stuart. His career ended with all of these, but it had its beginnings under much more arduous circumstances. It may well be a matter of pride to the people of this city that his earliest public service in civil and military capacities is so closely associated with this locality. He first came through here in 1753 on his way to carry a protest to the French at Le Boeuff against their plan for the military occupation of the Ohio region. His guide was Christopher Gist, for whom one of your streets is named, and he had the assistance of the Seneca chief, Guyasuta, fittingly remembered in the designation of your suburban town. It was a journey of great hardship. In the intense cold of winter they swam their horses across the Allegheny. The return was even more perilous. A treacherous Indian guide shot at Washington, who spared his life, and then traveled with frosted feet all that night and the next day to escape from further attack. He was thrown from a raft into the icy current of the Allegheny and barely saved by Gist from drowning. This adventure has been commemorated in your city by the Washington Crossing Bridge.

In 1754 Washington caused fortifications to be thrown up at the Point, which are still marked by the block house built some 10 years later. This post was almost immediately taken by the French and named Fort Duquesne. Washington led an expedition against it, but failed. He came here also with the ill-fated Gen. Braddock, who, by neglecting his advice, was surprised, defeated and slain by the French and Indians not far from the rear of this building. But in 1758 Forbes and Washington captured those fortifications, which were named Fort Pitt, in honor of the great English Prime Minister. The ax, the spade and the musket played a very important part in this locality in the great struggle between France and England for the control of North America. In the Indian uprising under Pontiac the fort was again under attack, and there was considerable frontier warfare in this vicinity. Washington made the last of his five journeys here in 1770, when Pittsburgh, according to his journal, consisted of 20 log houses.

Cites Frontier Hardships

For some years this locality was on the exposed frontier of the resolute Colonies. They were people accustomed to hardships who did not hesitate to defend, with muskets in their hands, what they believed to be their rights. After the close of the Revolutionary War, Pittsburgh became a part of Pennsylvania. It was of sufficient importance to support a newspaper in 1786, known as the Pittsburgh Gazette, which has since been published without interruption and was lately merged in the Post-Gazette. The little community having a desire for educational facilities, the next year the Pittsburgh Academy was chartered by the Legislature. This developed into the University of Pittsburgh. Soon post riders carried the mail between here and Philadelphia. Commerce began to roll westward in covered wagons, followed by passengers in stage coaches. But it was not until 1854 when what is now the Pennsylvania Railroad reached this city.

This American community, not without the shedding of some of its blood, the enduring of many privations, and always by the sweat of its brow, was gradually coming into existence. The pioneer stock were hewing down the forests, starting their settlement, providing for education, beginning their commerce, opening lines of communication, making ready to write that wonderful epic of coal and oil and steel, paint that inspiring landscape of hillside and water front, decorated by gigantic commercial structures throbbing with the movement of industrial life and surmounted by cloud and fire. They were making a practical application of the abiding principles of progress to the affairs of life. An almost incomprehensible success was destined to crown their efforts.

Tribute to Pittsburgh

People have come here from our own country and from many distant lands until the city with its environs has a population in excess of 1,000,000. Your manufactures of iron and steel stand first in all the world, and you hold a leading place in coal and coke, in glass, and electrical machinery. Your mines and mills produce an enormous tonnage, which, it is claimed, exceeds the total rail and water tonnage of the five greatest seaports in the world—New York, Boston, London, Antwerp and Hamburg. You are the fifth city in the nation in bank capital and surplus, and your clearing house exchanges of $9,194,000,000 for last year put you in sixth place.

Such a development as has come to Pittsburgh is representative of the material prosperity of many of our industrial centers. Its rewards are widely distributed by reason of high wages among the great mass of the people. While the ranks of unskilled labor have not yet come into their full enjoyment, their condition is greatly improved over what they ever before received. The question for the determination of the American people is no longer whether they will be able to secure prosperity, but rather what use they will make of their prosperity. It is only in its use that we can justify its existence. The answer will undoubtedly be found in the religion, the education, and the art of the people. But we have gone far enough to see that the great mass of the wealth of our country has not been used merely for selfish indulgence and ostentatious luxury. It has been used to raise the life of the people into a higher realm.

It is in this direction that the leaders of your economic life have been going, followed by the great body of your people. It is this spirit which has dominated the growth of your community. It is apparent in your stately edifices dedicated to religious worship, in your school buildings, and in your

ROBBER WOUNDED, PAL DRIVES AUTOMOBILE

A cool-nerved burglar, who dragged his wounded pal from behind the steering wheel of a speeding automobile and took the driver's seat himself, frustrated an attempt by police to capture them in East Ohio street early today.

A shot fired by Patrolman James Cotter as the burglars were dodging the second police barrier after attempting to rob an East Ohio street store, went through the automobile. A pedestrian saw the driver of the machine, a stolen one, slump in his seat, and then saw his companion grab the steering wheel and guide the speeding machine as he traded places with the driver.

The burglars first encountered police when they were discovered breaking into a showcase in front of the Teufel haberdashery, 821 East Ohio street, by Mrs. Rose Ramser, 818 East Ohio street.

Mrs. Ramser telephone police of the North Side Station and Motorcycle Patrolman Harry Williams and J. P. McCullough responded.

The burglars heard them coming, jumped into their machine, identified by police as one stolen in East Liberty last night, and speeded out East Ohio street. The motorcycle men, after a two-mile chase, lost the trail.

Half an hour later the burglars, who apparently had crossed the Fortieth Street Bridge and had driven in Penn avenue to Sixteenth street, appeared in Chestnut street, near East Ohio street. They were noticed by Patrolmen Cotter and A. J. Lyon, who, with drawn revolvers, ordered them to halt. Instead of stopping, the burglars' machine was speeded up and again dashed out East Ohio street.

Both patrolmen emptied their revolvers as the speeding car disappeared. Several bullets struck the machine, according to the pedestrian who witnessed the escape.

SUNDAY SCHOOL DELEGATES PARADE

By International News Service.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Oct. 13.—A monster parade through the principal streets of this city featured the morning session of the second day of the sixty-fifth annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association gathering here today.

Following the parade, in which a major portion of the 3,500 delegates took part, besides members of Sunday school classes of this city, the general adult meetings and mass meeting of the young people's workers were resumed.

Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, Herman Eldredge, of Dayton, O., and Miss Margaret Slattery, Boston evangelist, were principal speakers today.

Divisional conferences included County and district officers, Frank P. Steen, Bellevernon, presiding; Christian education, Romain Hamerick, Philadelphia, presiding; school, Frank H. Parkhurst, Wilkes-Barre in charge; adult, John W. Vickerman, Bellevue; young people, Mrs. W. B. Easton, Stroudsburg; children, Dr. M. W. Manton, Charleroi.

With indications pointing to the selection of Philadelphia as the 1928 convention city, President Percy L. Craig appointed these committees:

Place of next meeting—S. W. Guthrie, Indiana county; J. Robert Homer, Luzerne county; Mrs. Sadie Swope, Franklin; Warren G. Hoopes, Chester; Ernest W. Kuehner, Dauphin; the Rev. Charles G. White, Blair; Merle Eberlin, Clarion.

Recommendations and resolutions—J. O. Hertzler, Erie; H. H. Cupp, Cambria; Frank H. Stamm, Fayette; H. A. Heiser, Schuylkill; the Rev. Walter Kennedy, Armstrong; Dr. A. Monroe Hall, Lycoming; Miss Margaret B. Bull, Northampton.

Nominating—Clifford S. Heinz, Allegheny; P. W. Diehl, Butler; H. Y. Yocum, Berks; William Lehman, Blair; Tobert M. Strickler, Lawrence; E. B. Throckmorton, Greene.

MISSOURI DEMOCRATS START REED BOOM

SPEECH VIEWED AS CAMPAIGN PLATFORM

By Universal Service.

SEDALIA, Mo., Oct. 13.—Senator James A. Reed emerged from the state-wide Democratic rally as the idol of Missouri Democracy.

As a fitting climax to a day given over to the praises of the Missouri Senator, 20,000 Democrats shouted approval of a resolution indorsing him as the Democratic candidate for President. The resolution was read by Senator N. P. Willy of St. Louis.

It urged and instructed the Missouri delegation at the national convention that Democrats from all parts of the state visualized in him the hopes of party success in 1928.

Not once did Senator Reed refer to his potential candidacy, but his enunciation of party issues and principles had the ring of a party platform. It was a triumphant return for the fighting Senator into the hearts of his fellow Missourians, some of whom cast him out bitterly in the party debacle of 1920.

He launched into his speech with a sally at Coolidge which set the crowd laughing.

"This place is chilly enough," he said, "to remind you Democrats of the Coolidge ice-house."

Senator Reed enumerated the principles for which the Democratic party should stand in the next campaign, briefly as follows:

The right of every man to worship God according to his own conscience and that "none shall make him afraid."

The right of free speech, free press and peaceable assemblage.

The right of every citizen to regulate his own personal conduct, chart his own course through life, determine his own habits and control the affairs of his own household free from all restraints, save that in the exercise of these natural privileges he will not interfere with the rights of others.

Preservation of local self government and the sovereignty of the state.

The halting of centralization of government and the ceasing of government by boards and bureaucracies.

Honest administration of government.

The swift and sure punishment of all public plunderers, bribemongers and other malefactors.

The equalization of the burden of taxation.

The repeal of all laws creating special privileges.

The dismissal of an army of spies, snoopers, sneaks and informers.

The liberation of honest business from oppressive interference by governmental agents.

The prosecution and punishment of those "who by trusts, combinations and restraints of trade make war on honest business and despoil the people."

The placing of American interests above those of any other country or people and the "rejection of all policies calculated to imperil our rights or jeopardize the majesty and security of the United States."

Development of natural resources by the government, particularly inland water ways.

Development of a great merchant marine.

Honest elections, with the "jailing of every rogue who pollutes the ballot and the expulsion from office of every man whose title is tainted with fraud."

Senator Reed also bitterly attacked Andrew W. Mellon, Albert B. Fall, Harry M. Daugherty and various other Republicans.

GASSED WAR VETERAN, DESPONDENT, KILLS SELF

SALINEVILLE, O., Oct. 13.—Melancholy because of ill health, George Brothers, 32, shell-shocked World War veteran and father of five children, killed himself yesterday.

The BIG SURPRISE at All May's Stores SOON!

THE NEW ERA IN TELEPHONE COMMUNICATION

WERE THEY "GOOD OLD DAYS"?

ONLY a few years ago when you lifted your receiver to make an out-of-town call, the procedure was something like this:

"Number, please?" said the operator.

"Let me have Long Distance."

The Long Distance operator came on the line.

"This is Long Distance."

"I want to get Doeville 1234, etc., etc."

"Thank you, the operator will call you."

A little—perhaps quite a little—later your bell rang.

"Ready with Doeville."

And your conversation started.

TODAY—

"Number, please?"

"Let me have Doeville 1234."

And—practically as quickly as on a local call—you are connected.

That's the kind of service we are giving on out-of-town calls to the places most frequently called.

And the area covered by this new-era service is constantly being expanded.

As tough as varnish.....
As beautiful as enamel..
—but dry in 30 minutes

DEVOE Brushing Lacquer is amazing in more ways than one! It is as tough as a varnish; as beautiful as an enamel. But instead of taking hours to dry, it actually dries hard in 30 minutes!

Think what this means: you can lacquer a chair with Devoe and sit down safely on it in half an hour; refinish a floor and walk across it 30 minutes later; decorate things without taking them out of service for more than half an hour.

FIND BALLOTS IN MERCER CO. DESTROYED

MERCER, Pa., Oct. 13.—The ballots of the 1926 election have been destroyed in at least 12 of Mercer county's 90 precincts, it was revealed yesterday by officials seeking to impound ballots in connection with the Vare-Wilson contest, after discovering precincts in Farrell, West Middlesex and two outlying townships had burned their ballots. Authorities started a further check and found that election officials at Grove City had destroyed ballots in all five of the borough's precincts.

A constable said he had warned Grove City officials to preserve the ballots after a court impounding order had been issued.

Farrell was carried by Vare, Grove City by Wilson.

GRAPE GROWERS PROTEST

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13. — New York and Pennsylvania grape growers today asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for lower freight rates and charged that rates granted to California growers discriminated against their product, prevented moving of their grapes and resulted in a depression in their territory.

The complaint was filed by a dozen grape growers' associations of Erie, Chautauqua and Chattaraugus counties in New York and Erie county in Pennsylvania and by the agriculture departments of both states.

WRECKED PLANE SIGHTED

PARIS, Oct. 13.—The Marseilles wireless station received a message from the Spanish steamer Luchana today reporting it had sighted the wreck of a white airplane off the Balearic Islands.

It is virtually impossible that the plane could be that of Ruth Elder.

Not only are the Balearic Islands in the Mediterranean Sea, with Spain between them and the Atlantic, but the Elder plane is orange-colored, with a bright baroon nose.

The Balearic Islanrs are south of Paris.

CUTICURA HEALS TERRIBLE RASH

Itched and Burned. Face Disfigured. Lost Sleep.

"A terrible rash broke out on my face. It used to itch and burn causing me to scratch, and the more I scratched the more my face became disfigured. The scratching caused eruptions which were sore and inflamed, and I lost many hours of sleep on account of it. The trouble lasted about two weeks.

"I tried different remedies without success. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. After using it I purchased more and in a short time I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Ann Jackson, 1968 Niagara St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Rely on Cuticura Soap and Ointment to keep your skin clear.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. B, Malden, Mass." Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.

A New Issue of Barbara Lee Coats.

For Women and Misses

$100.00

STYLE and quality beyond the usual coat-purchasing power of a hundred dollars, is possible in Barbara Lee coats (new models of which are brought out each month), and there are very definite reasons why this is true.

They are chosen by a committee composed of the fashion authorities of 17 stores in the country, who carefully apply to the task their wide experience and knowledge of fashion, fabrics and furs.

There is an overwhelming number of models placed before the committee, so there are greater than usual possibilities for variety.

The combined orders of these 17 stores are of such consequence, that the price per coat is very much less than it would be if the purchases were made by a single store.

In the new October issue, to be presented tomorrow, there are coats of flat-surfaced fabrics, in both dull or lustrous finish. Coats in black, brown and tan tones for women; and in these shades, also in red and green, for misses. With insets of self fabric, and other details, artistically and neatly executed. Luxuriously trimmed with caracul, skunk, beaver, wolf, and kit fox.

Women's sizes 34 to 46; misses' sizes 14 to 20.

Have Your Hats Fitted

As You Do Your Frocks

In An Individual Fitting Room

The Horne Millinery Salons, first to introduce to Pittsburgh, several seasons ago, the Parisian method of fitting hats to the wearer, consider the matter so important that a special fitting room is maintained for the purpose.

Here one may have her hats fitted to size, features and personality, with the same precision as she has her dresses fitted.

Hoods from which hats may be designed, and semi-made hats, are available for shaping and molding, with experienced milliners to manipulate them. Also the altering of ready-made hats is included in this service.

Prices for the work are moderate.

Fashion-Thrift Frocks

Of Dressier Tendency

$16.50

These dresses, new ones which will be brought out tomorrow, have been chosen to fill the call for a little dressier frock at a modest price.

They are frocks of flat crepe, and their dressy touches include skirts with side and front pleatings, circular skirts, tiered skirts, inserts of light contrasting color to soften the neckline, interesting detail at the back, and embroidered collars and cuffs.

There is choice of black, navy blue, wine, green, rosewood, Newport blue, and tan and brown shades.

Sizes range from misses' 14 to women's size 42.

Antique or Barbaric—

New Gold Jewelry

Gold, striking in color and precious in effect, is prominent among the jewels of the smartest folk.

Gold Plated Jewelry, $2.00 to $6.50

It appears in an antique style, fine links, six of them, in a striking necklace—some have inserted gold hemispheres to heighten the effect.

Quite barbaric in effect is the new Medusa jewelry, made of scales so cleverly put together that they are flexible and yet present a smooth, shiny appearance. Bracelets, alone or in matching sets, some with stones of simulated chrysoprase or jade. Earrings, too, in clever drop pattern.

The Wizards of Pittsburgh Will Banquet Tonight With Spanish Master of Black Art

By GEORGE SEIBEL

TONIGHT there will be an unusual festivity in one of our Pittsburgh hotels. The Magicians of the city are going to give a supper in honor of a visiting magician—Frakson, the man of 100 cigarets, who is mystifying audiences at the Davis Theater every afternoon and evening.

GEORGE SEIBEL

This Magicians' Supper is likely to be a lively affair. The waiters will have to look carefully to their tips, or the coins will vanish into thin air. The cook will have to do his best, or the guests will make omelettes in their hats or wave their wands over their plates to produce toothsome squabs or other dainty morsels. It's just as easy to produce them cooked as to get them alive out of a hat or a handkerchief.

Frakson, who has only a 15-minute act in the program at the Davis, is one of the cleverest sleight-of-hand performers in the world. He is a Spaniard, having been born in Madrid, as the son of an English father and a Spanish mother. His father also was a conjuror, so the boy could palm coins and cards when he was only five years old. His brother is one of the most famous magicians of Spain.

Frakson himself has been a wanderer over the face of the globe. He has given performances in London and Paris, Berlin and Vienna, Rome and St. Petersburg, Yokohama and Buenos Aires. He has traveled over India and matched his wits against the Hindu fakirs. He has traveled through China and exhibited his skill alongside celestial conjurors.

Frakson speaks 11 languages, some of them exceedingly well. He is an accomplished scholar in Spanish, French and Italian; he handles English, German and Portuguese with considerable skill; and he can make himself understood in several Scandinavian and Slavic vernaculars, besides being able to jabber a little Japanese and pronounce a few laundry checks.

"Like Carlo Bosco," he said, "when I go to a new country I learn first ze language, even if it takes two weeks."

Frakson has had many adventures in many lands. Sometimes he narrowly escaped death because superstitious natives thought he was in league with the devil. At other times he has had amusing experiences with custom officials, who thought he was trying to smuggle objects of great value into their country. Occasionally also he has been suspected as a spy, and had to use all his resources to get away with a whole skin.

But tonight he will be among friends. Every one of the sorcerers, prestidigitators, warlocks, conjurors, illusionists, or whatever they style themselves, will be present, and Pittsburgh has about a score of them. I have seen the menu of the supper and it looks extremely tempting. While there will be many minor tricks exhibited, as each one will show off his specialty, the main feature of the performance will be the magical disappearance of the supper when the toastmaster waves his wand.

"BIG BUSINESS" DEFIES COOLIDGE ON TAX CUT

C. OF C. STARTS CAMPAIGN FOR BIG SLASH

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Undaunted by vigorous opposition of President Coolidge, the United States Chamber of Commerce is launching a nation-wide campaign to force a $400,000,000 tax slash by the next Congress.

In a statement the chamber announced that it will seek a referendum vote from its 1,500 member organizations on the merits of these three proposals:

1. That there be immediate reduction and repeals in Federal taxes which, if made effective, are estimated to amount to $400,000,000 in the first full year after the changes are made.

2. That the rate of corporate income tax applicable to net income of 1927 should not exceed 10 per cent.

3. That Congress should provide full opportunity for the joint congressional tax committee to perfect proposals for revision of Federal tax laws and their administration.

These proposals were prepared by the special tax committee of the chamber. At the White House, Tuesday, it was announced in no uncertain terms that the President regards the demand for a $400,000,000 tax cut as premature, and too large.

The chamber's intent to fight for a tax slash of that size regardless of presidential disapproval seems certain to provoke a tax war in the next Congress unique in recent years. For the first time during his administration, President Coolidge will find "big business" openly opposing one of his major fiscal policies.

In its statement the chamber took sharp issue with the President regarding the alleged policy of the Treasury Department of "underestimating" surpluses. In support of this charge the chamber pointed out that the surplus for the last fiscal year was officially estimated at $200,702,862, while as a matter of fact it totaled $635,000,000.

The chamber likewise declared that no reason appears why the ordinary running expenses of the government should be materially increased during the present fiscal year. President Coolidge, on the other hand, believes that the ordinary operating expenses will be greatly increased by the need of flood control legislation along the Mississippi and the expected appropriations for increased national defense.

In urging a slash in corporation taxes, the chamber pointed out that corporation earnings are now subject to double taxation, one while in the hands of the corporation and again while in the hands of the stockholders.

WORLD'S OLDEST CHOIR ARRIVES IN U. S.

POET DANTE AND LEONARDO DA VINCI ONCE WERE MEMBERS

Wearing the picturesque thirteenth century costumes of old Florence, 50 men and women members of the famous Florentine Choir, worlds oldest choral organization, arrived in this country. The choir was founded in the thirteenth century and had as a member the great poet Dante and Leonardo Da Vinci in its time. This is the first time the Italian government has ever allowed the choir, which includes many high Italian noblemen and women, to leave the country. Among the members is the most beautiful woman in Florence, the noted Marchesa Isy Minucci. The five most beautiful members of the choir: Marchesa Minucci, Countess Quaranto, Romanella Guisti, Bianca Bruni and Tina Manella.

DAVIS PREDICTS BIG AIR FLEET

By Universal Service.

DAYTON, O., Oct. 13.—A force of 1,800 modern fighting planes will compose America's air strength under present national defense plans, Secretary of War Davis declared in a speech at the dedication of Wright Field here yesterday. The field was donated by the citizens of Dayton. An air race was postponed on account of rain.

FINE FOR CHILDREN!

Give them a good start in life, with happy smiles and healthy little bodies. Children need a mild corrective occasionally to regulate stomach and bowels. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a safe vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. They tone up and regulate the eliminative tract. Not a nasty cathartic or a habit-forming medicine, but a safe, pleasant remedy for constipation, sour stomach, torpid liver, bad breath, and similar disorders. Dr. Edwards, a widely known family physician of Ohio, prescribed these tablets for many years in his own practice. Children from six years up are greatly helped by them and like to take them. Recognized by their olive color. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets overcome those irritable spells that many children are subject to, keep their bodies in active healthy condition, skin clear and eyes bright with the light of perfect health. 15c, 30c and 60c sizes.

How to Remove That "YELLOW MASK"

That repellent yellowish tinge on your teeth... Here is how millions banish it for glorious white teeth.

Teeth of slightly yellowish hue can now be made to gleam like polished pearls. The method is safe, simple and pleasant. We ask you to try it—today. With no other dentifrice can you accomplish this miracle of teeth beauty... whiteness that charms and enchants!

"Yellow Mask," as this condition is called, is caused by a "liquid cement" in your saliva. It glues to your teeth, then hardens. Tobacco, food and coffee stain this glassy mask an unsightly yellow. Ordinary dentifrices cannot remove this mask—they gloss right over it.

But there is an unusual substance known as "Tri-Calcium Phosphate" that banishes this unlovely discoloration swiftly. Your dentist uses it to clean and polish teeth. That's what gives enamel that glorious whiteness. Yet this substance cannot harm the softest tooth surface.

Now dental science has succeeded in composing a tooth paste of this marvelous substance. It is pleasant, tasty and a magic beautifier. Use it and your teeth will dazzle. Your smile will radiate new charm. How white your teeth will be!

The name of this new dentifrice is ORPHOS TOOTH PASTE. Women are delighted with it—the noted movie and stage stars use it. Don't deprive yourself of this new teeth beauty. Get a tube today or mail coupon below for FREE 20-Time Tube.

RHEUMATISM

may be relieved by rational treatment—it can not be rubbed away.

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried almost everything. Went to Hot Springs .... then finally decided to try S.S.S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S.S.S. is the best." Earl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tennessee.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

From youth to later years S.S.S. is a proven tonic—give it and take it when a tonic is indicated.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

S.S.S. The tonic for all ages Builds Strength Relieves Rheumatism

BISHOP'S TALK FEATURES M. E. CONVENTION

An address by Bishop Francis J. McConnell was the outstanding number on today's program of the one hundred and fourth convention of the Pittsburgh Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, in First Methodist Episcopal Church, McKeesport. Bishop McConnell, a delegate to the world conferences of churches at Lausanne, Switzerland, told of the progress made in that meeting.

The election of officers featured the conference yesterday. The Rev. W. L. Wilkensen was re-elected secretary. The Rev. George Grant, of Duquesne, and the Rev. C. W. Campbell, of Crafton Heights, were elected first and second assistant secretaries, respectively.

Bishop McConnell presided at the session, which was the third to be held in McKeesport. There were approximately 500 persons in attendance, most of them ministers of the Pittsburgh district. The day's program consisted of the elections, a memorial service and communion service.

The conference will conduct daily sessions during the remainder of the week, closing Monday with the reading of appointments of ministers. McKeesport residents who are acting as the official hosts are Miss Lizzie James, Mrs. J. L. Hammitt, the Rev. L. D. Spaugy, Dr. Andrew Hunter, Mrs. P. W. McCune, W. B. Clasper and F. C. Wampler.

BAR NAMES 5 TO AID VOTE PROBE

Five prominent attorneys were named yesterday by President Joseph Stadtfeld of the Allegheny County Bar Association as a special committee to aid District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner in procuring indictments and prosecuting all persons implicated in the recent primary election frauds.

Those named are A. M. Imbrie, chairman; George B. Wallace, former president of the Chamber of Commerce; John G. Buchanan, E. Lowry Humes, former United States Attorney for this district, and Arthur M. Scully.

The committee will organize immediately and additional appointments may be made after conference with the District Attorney to determine how many volunteers are necessary in bringing the Criminal Court calendars to date to try the 150 or more election officers against whom charges have been made.

DRY AGENTS NAB BEER TRUCK

A truck transporting 40 barrels of high test beer was seized yesterday at Fifth and Sixth avenues by Federal prohibition agents, who had trailed the truck from the Seventh Street Bridge. Alfred Schorr, 28, 100 Market street, driver of the machine, who was arrested, was released under bond pending a hearing before the United States commissioner.

The prohibition authorities reported the seizure of a 300-gallon still and 20 gallons of moonshine whisky in a house near Wexford, and a 250-gallon still and 215 gallons of moonshine on the farm of August Bittner, near Allison Park. They also seized a 200-gallon still and 190 gallons of moonshine whisky on the Haller farm, on Lowrie's Run road.

LOSES EYESIGHT IN HOLDUP

A beating received from two holdup men has cost Joseph Marnon, 47, of 5810 Rippey street, the sight of his right eye. The eye was removed at the Pittsburgh Hospital this morning after it was found that the injury had destroyed the sight. Marnon was waylaid by two thugs at Princeton place and Hoeveler street Tuesday night and after being beaten almost insensible was robbed of $17. Marnon at first did not believe his injury was serious.

TRUCK CRUSHES SCHOOLGIRL

Crushed between an automobile truck and a wall near the Davis garage, Glassport, while at play last night, Edith Reno, 11, schoolgirl, of Ohio avenue, Glassport, suffered probable fatal injuries. She is in the McKeesport Hospital. The name of the driver was not obtained by police.

Flaming Youth O. K.; Women Here Told

"Don't worry about 'flaming youth.' The girl of today is as decent as her grandmother—and a darned sight more attractive." Eight hundred and seventy-six dignified members of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, their guests and some few odd husbands sat up, gasped—and roared with laughter.

The speaker was Capt. Irving Patrick O'Hay, United States Army (retired), adventurer, soldier of fortune, survivor of eight wars, gambler (by his own admission), descendant of sheep-stealing Irish (he said so, himself), actor, self-styled freak, friend of Roosevelt, Richard Harding Davis, O. Henry and Ernie Carr, and preacher of the gospel of Jesus, the Nazarene. The occasion was the annual convention banquet of the State Federation in McCreery's last night.

For one hour and 40 minutes (he noted it by the clock and called it to the attention of the Deity) the 876 heard a torrential admixture of profanity (both plain and fancy), slang, grammatical and linguistic errors, braggadocio, friendly impudence, utter sincerity, pure oratory and the finest sermon some of them have listened to in many a moon.

He addressed them (many of them are grandmothers) as "you girls," told how "Roosevelt and myself" had rid Cuba of Spanish tyranny, bade them "be yourselves," and if Mrs. Brown had a party and didn't invite them to say, "To h— with her." "When America becomes all virtue and no faults, we'll be a fine lot of walking creampuffs," he observed. He urged them to send their sons to military training camps, not to become cannon fodder, but to become armor of defense, and he pleaded for more religion (of any kind), more education and more tolerance.

"Show me a town without a Jew and I'll show you a bum town," he remarked. He bullyragged, he harangued, he cajoled, he flattered, he made the women admit that nearly all of them had listened in to the Dempsey-Tunney fight and he said, "Gene Tunney is as clean as Cardinal Daugherty and as honest as Calvin Coolidge."

To watch the faces of the women was almost as interesting as listening to "Paddy" O'Hay. They were shocked. Shocked is hardly the word. They were horrified. They were uneasy. They didn't know what he might say next. But at the end of that hour and 40 minutes they had laughed and cried with Irving Patrick O'Hay (one or two were left, pitifully untouched), who told them "when you come to the River Jordan your password will be 'State Federation of Pennsylvania Women' and Ernie and I will be there to row you over." One woman, prominent in the convention, summed it up, "that's what I call internationalism."

Today's convention events include addresses by Dr. John A. Hollinger, director of visual education in the Pittsburgh public schools; Dr. William Van de Wall, of the State Department of Public Health; Dr. John A. H. Keith, state superintendent of public instruction, at the morning session; a motion picture demonstration at noon; an address on "The Three Rs of Home-making," by Mrs. Harry Burnham, of the General Federation, and a talk by Kenneth Macgowan, dramatic critic and play producer, on "The Theater of Today and Tomorrow," in the afternoon; a production of "The Magnificent Gesture" by members of the Twentieth Century Club in their clubhouse; a dinner at the Ruskin in honor of Mrs. Imogen B. Oakley, of Bryn Mawr, by the press and publicity people of the convention; a recital by KDKA Little Symphony Orchestra, Martha Eaton Brickman and Anne Woesthoff and a talk on "Evaluating Club Work" by Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, former General Federation president.

The morning and afternoon sessions are at Memorial Hall and the evening program at Syria Mosque.

Gifford Gordon's address on "Is Prohibition a Success?" was the chief event of yesterday afternoon. Miss Mark Oakley Hay, field worker of the Public Education and Child Labor Association of Pennsylvania; Mrs. E. S. H. McCauley, secretary of the State Department of Public Welfare, and Miss Catherine Adams, of the Woman's College of Constantinople, also spoke. The club institute luncheon in the Hotel Schenley was attended by nearly 400 women.

MAN, NO HOME, FOUND DEAD IN SALOON ROOM

Frank Dononelly, 33, no home, was found dead in a back room in a saloon at 2010 Webster avenue this morning. He had been given permission to sleep there by Douglas McCarthy, a bartender. According to McCarthy, the man was drunk when he went into the place. The saloon is owned by John Cronin.

Goes to School, But Not for Education

Mike Horynak, 13, Munhall, goes to high school quite regularly—but not, it seems, for an education. He was arrested yesterday in Munhall high school, police said, while ransacking drawers and he was charged two weeks ago with a $200 theft in Homestead Fifth Ward School.

CONVICT EX-CITY EMPLOYE OF ELECTION FRAUD

DELAY SENTENCE PENDING OTHER CASES

J. William Bolster, 74, a retired city employe, of 1316 Sandusky street, defendant in the first trial of pending 1926 primary election charges, was found guilty of false pretense in a sealed verdict opened this morning in Criminal Court by Judge Harry H. Rowand. Bolster, who served as an inspector of the election board of the Sixteenth District of the Twenty-second Ward on May 18, 1926, is accused of collecting $10 from the county for a clerk on the board.

No disposition will be made of the case until after other similar cases from the same district have been heard. Another trial will be started next week. The prosecution charged that Bolster collected the election pay for a clerk by the name of Charles Carr, who never really existed. They charged that Carr was registered from a vacant lot in Hemlock street.

Fire Capt. Charles Golden is one of the defendants in the cases that are scheduled to be tried soon. It was charged that ballots from his district were thrown into a sewer.

Married Twice, Sues First for Divorce

Although twice married, Mrs. Katharine Ann Moskoskas, 352 West Fourteenth avenue, Homestead, is suing her first husband, Jan Moskoskas, for divorce.

She married Jan Stevens in Russia in 1882, and two months after their marriage, Moskoskas said he was going into the field at their Russian home to get a horse, and he never returned. Mrs. Moskoskas immigrated to America and then married Stevens, without the formality of a divorce, not knowing American laws at that time. Stevens died 27 years ago.

Mrs. Moskoskas has accumulated property, but every time she wishes to sell it, she is confronted with legal entanglements. To obtain absolute freedom from her husband, Jan Stevens, she wants a divorce to enable her to obtain the right to sell her property, without any legal barrier. She asked Judge Joseph M. Swearingen to grant her a decree, the case being heard yesterday. The libel is brought in the name of Mrs. Katharine Ann Moskoskas, otherwise known as Katherine Ann Stevens. Her counsel, J. B. McAdoo, brought out the circumstances in the case and the reasons for filing the divorce action.

COOLIDGE LAUDS PITTSBURGH'S ACHIEVEMENTS

charitable and philanthropic institutions. A fitting example of this development is this beautiful music hall. Around it are similar institutions already in existence or under construction. The courthouse and the Jewish Building for Young Men and Women, the new home of the board of education, and the Cathedral of Learning for the University of Pittsburgh, with your many club buildings, will all combine to give to the life of your city a wide variety of architectural beauty. Important as these are in determining the dominant features of your community, yet we should look in another direction for the ultimate object of all these efforts. Their final abiding place is around the fireside. The chief evidence of your success, your art, your devotion, is in your happy and contented homes. Gradually, through long years of incessant toil under the guidance of inspired leaders, we have been perfecting our civilization and raising the standard of the material, mental and moral life of the people.

Praises Carnegie

It was one of your great citizens, moved by a deep love of humanity and a desire to promote these ends, who established Carnegie Institute. Coming here an alien, he began work in this city when a mere child for $1.20 a week. He rose rapidly to the position of superintendent of the Pennsylvania Railroad, where he came to realize that the Bessemer process would bring the steel rail into general use. He became one of the great producers of steel, which brought him a large fortune. I once heard him say that in the Old World wealth was quickly appropriated by the nobility and used chiefly for the benefit of the aristocracy, but in America he wished it kept for the people and dedicated to the uses of democracy. In accordance with this policy, out of what he called his surplus wealth, he built a free library and added a museum of natural history and a gallery of fine arts, which are now housed in this imposing structure. The library has grown until it contains 6[illegible],000 volumes. Its practical value is apparent in its annual circulation of about 3,000,000 among the people of Pittsburgh.

Tribute to Mellons

Mr. Carnegie was an intensely practical man. He only had the advantages of the most meager schooling in his youth. Perhaps he was compensated for this loss by having parents endowed with a most sturdy character. Wishing, however, to provide the youth of the coming generations with training that should especially fit them for industrial life, he started a trade school which later became the Carnegie Institute of Technology. This is now attended by 6,700 students, representing every state in the Union and most of the countries of the world. By these methods, Mr. Carnegie, in common with most of the other men of large wealth in our country, has made great outlays for the service of the people and for the extension of the principles of democracy.

Good thoughts and good deeds have an inherent power for development. They grow and expand. What was in its inception a local art gallery for the benefit of this immediate locality quickly assumed the nature of an international institution. You are now holding the twenty-sixth international exhibition of paintings. About 15 foreign countries are represented. There are around 400 pictures by about 80 artists, of whom 30 are Americans. Later these pictures will be shown at the Brooklyn Museum of Arts and Sciences and for the first time the exhibit will go west of the Rocky Mountains to San Francisco.

The exhibition this year has been made possible through the generosity of two of your distinguished citizens, Andrew W. Mellon and Richard B. Mellon. They stand out as men who are devoting themselves to the service of humanity, one by remaining as a leader in great financial and industrial enterprises and the other by turning his great talents to the administration of public finance as Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, where his leadership in the last six years has been greatly instrumental in restoring the economic equilibrium of the world. What has been taking place in your city is characteristic of many groups of men over the entire nation. Men of large resources in our country more and more devote themselves to the service and welfare of the people.

It should not escape our attention that this is an international exhibition. It is wholly contemporaneous in its conception. Mr. Carnegie was in nowise deficient in his reverence for the men and the work of the past, but he would never have been content with the somewhat negative results of investigation. He knew that what has been done is done. He was a creator with a desire to encourage and promote creation in others. While it is highly desirable to study and appreciate the art of the past, and bestow due honor upon the old masters, yet if there is to be progress, if there is to be vitality, if there is to be a growing creative purpose in this field, it will be because of the approbation that is bestowed upon those who at present are its devoted exponents. He therefore provided for the purchase annually of not less than two American pictures painted within the year.

In accordance with this principle this exhibition consists of paintings, with few exceptions, of living artists done within the past five years. People who view it will have an opportunity to see what is characteristic in contemporaneous art in each of the countries represented. The advantage of an international contest of this kind is that no country thereby loses anything. The stimulation, the education, the generous rivalry in well-doing that it confers upon those who participate leave all concerned richer than they were before in art and its appreciation. From much humbler beginnings great issues have been evolved. It may be that in the spirit which animates the conduct of these exhibitions lies the germ of a better world relationship.

America's Contribution

While this occasion has its international aspects, which we hold of vast importance, we should also remember that it is a distinctly American effort. It is one of the contributions which our country is making to the art of the world. Our people very early showed a desire for portrait painting, which was carried on among the Puritans and the Quakers mostly by visiting Englishmen. But by the middle of the Eighteenth Century our own art had so advanced as to produce Gilbert Stuart and Benjamin West, who succeeded Sir Joshua Reynolds as president of the Royal Academy, which in later years assigned prominent parts to such Americans of genius as Whistler, Abbey, and Sargent. Of a recent date are La Farge, Homer, and a long line of their contemporaries, many of whom are still living, who hold a high place in the estimation of the world. In the interpretation of the life and spirit of our times, it is generally agreed by art critics that our own countrymen have reached a stage where they do not yield in excellence to the work now being done in any other region. Our country is not deficient in painters. We have reached conditions that are likely to increase their numbers and improve their work.

While it will always be desirable to stimulate and encourage the production of fine paintings, it is even more desirable to stimulate and encourage their wide appreciation by the people. It is a fundamental principle of our institutions that freedom, education, and wealth are not to be reserved for the few, but are to be reached through equal opportunity which is open to all. We have staked America on the potential capacity of the average citizen. Truth and beauty are inseparably related. A general contemplation of fine paintings can not fail to provide an inspiration which will result in the improvement of the character of the people. It is for this reason that the painter and the founder of art galleries rank high as public benefactors. They raise people to a spiritual level which they could not otherwise attain.

Evolution of America

That is the evolution which has been going on in our country. It does not always proceed smoothly. It is far from complete. In fact, we have as yet only laid out a part of the plan. But enough has been done so that we know we are going in the right direction. We are under great obligation to those who have given light and leading to this movement. Mr. Carnegie stands out pre-eminently as one of these. But he would have been first to insist upon a wide distribution of the honor and the glory. He was accustomed to say that he had made his success by gathering around him men who knew more than he did. It is not he alone that is entitled to credit for the possessions which went into his vast philanthropies. They were the joint result of himself and all those who were associated with him, down to the humblest worker in his mills. They all have their share in this international art exhibition. They are all reaping its benefits. Yet we all realize that it was his leadership which made it possible.

A better understanding has come to the American people in recent years of this method by which we are all co-operating to work out a common destiny. It has brought a great harvest of contentment and a great increase of effort and efficiency in production. In its light the relation between employer and employe has been so greatly improved that much of the old friction no longer exists. Under a new realization of their mutuality of interest an industrial peace has come, which a short time since would have been thought impossible.

There are still some who sit apart, who do not see, who cannot understand. To them our industrial life is the apotheosis of selfishness. They cannot realize that the rattle of the reaper, the buzz of the saw, the clang of the anvil, the roar of traffic are all part of a mighty symphony, not only of material but of spiritual progress. Out of them the nation is supporting its religious institutions, endowing its colleges, providing its charities, furnishing adornments of architecture, rearing its monuments, organizing its orchestras, and encouraging its painting. But the American people see and understand. Unperturbed, they move majestically forward in the consciousness that they are making their contribution in common with our sister nations to the progress of humanity.

JR. O. U. A. M. WILL HOLD CLASS INITIATION TONIGHT

The various councils comprising the eighty-sixth district of the Junior Order, United American Mechanics, will initiate a large class of candidates tonight at the Sherrod Temple, Chartiers avenue, Corliss Station. The committee has made arrangements with two of the best teams in the district to put on the degree work.

Now Read What 11,105* Doctors say About Lucky Strike Cigarettes Because

"It's toasted"

WHAT is the quality that Giacomo Rimini, Margaret D'Alvarez, Cesare Formichi, Armand Tokatyan, Emma Trentini, William Faversham, Florence Reed, Paul Whiteman, and other famous singers, actors, broadcasters and public speakers have found that makes LUCKY STRIKES delightful and of no possible injury to their voices?

For the answer we turned to medical men and asked them this question:

Do you think from your experience with LUCKY STRIKE cigarettes that they are less irritating to sensitive or tender throats than other cigarettes, whatever the reason?

11,105* doctors answered this question "YES."

Consider what these figures mean; consider that they represent the opinion and experience of doctors, those whose business it is to know.

Paul Whiteman,
Noted
Orchestra Leader, writes:

"It was but recently, when I started to act as master of ceremonies with my band at the Paramount Theatre, that I realized how vital perfect voice condition was to a performer. I have always been a consistent smoker and, fortunately, Lucky Strikes were my favorite brand. I like their toasted flavor and, best of all, I can smoke as often as I like, without fear of irritating my voice, which is becoming a great asset in my work."

For little stomachs with too much acid

Children are especially subject to the ills of excess acid. Sour stomach, biliousness, lack of spirits, etc., are usually the result. Quickly corrected by pleasant tasting

BRIOSCHI
(Pronounced Bree-osky)

All children like its fizzy just sweet enough taste. Quickly neutralizes the acid condition and is gently laxative, cleansing the delicate system of impurities. Give your children Brioschi. They'll like it and the results of too much acid will never trouble them.

No More Hemorrhoids

All Pile Agony Ended Without Cutting. Simple Internal Treatment Gives Quick Relief

If you think that the surgeon's knife is the only method of escape from the misery of piles, it's because you haven't heard of the new treatment known as Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID.

The Doctor's treatment is internal. By experimenting, he discovered the cause of piles and then went further and compounded a remedy that would remove the cause.

Every pile sufferer should benefit by his discovery and so that there will be no doubting or delay, May Drug Co. and all druggists are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it will do as stated or money back.

On that honorable basis every pile sufferer should try Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID without delay.

It's the Little Daily Dose That Does It

Kruschen Salts
Tasteless in Tea or Coffee

Grandpa Wants to Tell You That Millions of Americans Are Daily Getting That "Healthy, Happy" Kruschen Feeling.

"If you want better health, more vigor, a cheerful disposition and a body always internally clean and free from poisonous accumulations; take two tablets of Kruschen Salts every morning in your cup of coffee or tea—it's tasteless this way—or if you prefer in a glass of hot water.

Not a cathartic mind you—it's the little daily dose that keeps your internal organs free from poisons that clog the system and cause rheumatism, headache, lassitude and other ills.

Good health for a trifle a day.

Dr. Peter Guilday, of Catholic University; Col. Hanford MacNider, assistant secretary of war, and Judge John Barton Payne, national chairman, American Red Cross, were the principal speakers at the Pittsburgh Chapter, Knights of Columbus annual Columbus Day dinner last night in the William Penn Hotel, of which a general view is shown above. James Francis Burke was toastmaster, Leo A. McMullin introduced the galaxy of orators, David M. Martin made the salute to the flag, and Dr. Paul E. Campbell, superintendent of parochial schools, pronounced the invocation. Dr. Guilday declared the religious issue in our national life remains to be settled. In pronouncing the object of the Catholic church in the nation he said: "It is not here to build cathedrals, nor to organize and develop universities, although it may do that. Its principal object is to make every man a saint.

Col. MacNider, discussing "Columbus and the Spirit of America," lauded the pioneers and national heroes that began with Columbus and included Lindbergh. He said that pioneering was for every citizen, and that every man's task was "to keep America American, that is, to give back to it more than it gives to you."

Judge Payne spoke of the co-operation of the Knights of Columbus welfare workers and the Red Cross in war and peace.

Rt. Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, bishop of Pittsburgh; Dr. John G. Bowman, chancellor of Pitt; Rev. M. A. Hehir, president of Duquesne University; Dr. William M. Davidson, superintendent of schools, and prominent judicial, political, educational and financial leaders of the city occupied seats at the speakers' table.

The LIFE AND LETTERS OF WOODROW WILSON

His Mystic Faith: 'When Ready, the Call Comes'

For 54 Years Wilson Prepared Himself and Was Ready for the Stupendous Duties of the Presidency

The early months of Wilson's married life were told about yesterday in the Sun-Telegraph installment of "The Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson." Many were the doubts that beset the young couple; they were resolved in the forming of a complete partnership that gave him strength to carry on the work to which he had dedicated himself.

Educator and Author

MOST of the earlier biographical writings concerning Wilson have brushed aside all too cavalierly the scholastic period of his life. "A school teacher's existence is not . . . a thrilling story . . . years of delightful living, of cultured and genial companionship." All this may possibly be true of the average college professor, although one who has lived next door to a college may well doubt it; it was not true of the passionate, ambitious, aspiring soul of Woodrow Wilson.

To treat the most important quarter-century of the man's life—from the age of twenty-nine to the age of fifty-four—as if it were merely genial, uneventful and delightful, is to misunderstand it wholly. It was rather a period of intense and well-aimed activity, a conscious struggle for the mastery of every intellectual tool, a daily practice of self-discipline. Little of this may have appeared outwardly—the man was incurably shy—but it is all set forth with complete clarity in his intimate letters: and the narrative of these years, if not "thrilling" in the customary implications, has an interest, a fascination, absolutely absorbing, for it concerns one of the commonest, yet profoundest, struggles of human spirit—the effort by a man, in this case a man of extraordinary gifts and of unusual clearness of sight, to fight his way through secondary successes to the full realization of the deep primary purpose of his life.

He was to show that he had extraordinary talents as an educator, as a writer, as a lecturer, as an administrator; but the real genius of the man, the secret propulsive power of an ardent soul, which pointed clearly to another field, while constantly fed with preparation, was to be starved in realization. He was vastly successful as a college man, successful as an author, successful as a speaker, but as he himself once said in a flash of revelation:

"A man may be defeated by his own secondary successes."

Always Preparing Self

Nothing he does, we shall find, whether as educator, writer or lecturer, is an end in itself—but always for something beyond. He writes his "History of the American People" in order, as he says, "to learn history." He lectures in New England, in Colorado, in the Middle West, "to get acquainted with the American people." His essays are "studies in effective expression," he would learn to "command his style." He thinks of education never as an end in itself: "Princeton for the nation's service," is the expression he used at a Princeton dinner in 1902.

"You know that we hear a great deal of sentimental cant nowadays about cultivating our characters," he continued. "God forbid that any man should spend his days thinking about his own character. . . Your characters, gentlemen, are by-products, and the minute you set yourselves to produce them you make prigs of yourselves and render yourselves useless . . ."

There must be an "objective outside of one's self." He must study "the way in which his faculties are to be made to fit into the world's affairs, and released for effort in a way that will bring real satisfaction." He must struggle until he "has satisfied his heart with the highest achievement he is fit for"—"the full realization of his powers, the true and clear perception of what it was his mind demanded for its satisfaction."

Could there be finer statements than these of what lay deep in the man's soul? He held back, he toiled, he prepared—for a quarter of a century!—with a kind of mystic faith that "when ready, the call comes."

Many a commentator upon Wilson's life during the years of 1910 and onward, after he emerged upon the great stage of public affairs, expresses amazement at the facility of the "cloistered student" in the field of political leadership, how easily he out-generaled the most experienced bosses, dominated his party, came early to control Congress and finally to stand forth pre-eminent as a world leader. Amazing it would be, wholly inexplicable indeed, if it were not for the long years of intense if silent preparation, too easily brushed aside by hasty observers. Greatness is never accidental. Wilson had written half a dozen constitutions, beginning as a boy in Georgia, before he sat down to write out the Covenant of the League of Nations; he had organized and led several college parliaments before he stepped on the rostrum of the United States House of Representatives to deliver, in person, his first address.

Ready When Called

No man in America was better prepared with knowledge of every aspect of the development of representative government; and none, as we shall see, had given the current problems of the time more intense consideration or watched more critically the development of a new leadership.

Fifty-four years of his life he spent in preparation, 10 in living, three in dying. At the age of 54 he was ready for that "full realization of his powers" of which "he had dreamed. He came to his new responsibilities with an extraordinary release of all his capacities, both intellectual and physical. He had known the burden of a frail body; he had broken down repeatedly; he had lost in part the sight of one eye. Dr. Weir Mitchell predicted that he could not last out a single term in the Presidency. He lasted out two terms and underwent such a burden of labor as few public men have ever had to perform—the great war and the peace that followed it. In spite of overwhelming labor, and pain, and domestic sorry, in spite of misunderstanding and vilification and failure, the sense of maladjustment and doubt—one of the worst evils man can know—wholly disappeared.

Possessed of these keys to his character we can approach with clear understanding the truly absorbing narrative of his years as a college professor and president—the eager, intense, active years of his preparation. We shall know, as he did not, the meaning of each step; we shall see him often blindly feeling out his way; we shall understand his deep discouragements, his momentary satisfactions, and how, "treating success and failure just the same," he never lost sight of his star.

Wilson, Professor

In September, 1885, Woodrow Wilson went with his bride to Bryn Mawr to begin his career as a college professor.

It was the opening year of a truly remarkable institution. Founded by a Quaker, it was the first college in America, indeed in the world, to offer to women opportunities for higher education at all comparable to the courses for men in the German universities or at Johns Hopkins. Two of its leaders were trustees of Johns Hopkins, and its dean, M. Carey Thomas, the genius of its beginnings and a doctor of Zurich saturated with the German method, was the daughter of one of them. The institution was indeed called "Jane" Hopkins or "Johanna" Hopkins and by right of direct lineage could claim quite as rationally to be a "granddaughter of Leipsic and Jena."

The president was a fine old Quaker, James E. Rhoads. He had a noble head, wore side whiskers and an old-fashioned flaring collar. His bust in bronze now occupies an honored place in the college chapel. The real leader was the dean. Miss Thomas was "ridiculously young"—just five days younger than Woodrow Wilson—not yet 29, a woman of powerful intellect and dominating personality. She had herself selected the faculty and there could be no greater tribute to her acumen than the subsequent records of the men who made up that small but brilliant early group. Besides Woodrow Wilson there were Paul Shorey, who has made a distinguished record as a classical scholar at the University of Chicago; Edmund B. Wilson, biologist of Columbia University; Edward Washburn Hopkins, philologist of Yale; Edward H. Keiser, chemist; Charlotte Angas Scott, mathematician, and others. All of them had either a German university or a Johns Hopkins background—most of them had both—and all except Woodrow Wilson were doctors of philosoph. Everything was "splendid aspiration," nothing yet achievement.

Doubt About Bryn Mawr

A few weeks after the opening of the college a grand inauguration ceremoney took place, with President Gilman up from Hopkins and the venerable and distinguished James Russell Lowell down from New England; and the new president, Dr. Rhoads, rejoiced in "a culmination and a beginning." In the audience that day, young but keen-looking, strong-willed and critical-minded, sat the future President of the United States, himself a part of it all, and by his side, girlish and gay, his bride of four months.

Wilson had hesitated long before deciding to go to Bryn Mawr. His letters of 1884 and 1885 give evidence of the thought—the sometimes agonizing thought—that he gave to this important matter of a start in life. They are immensely illuminating also as to the character and quality of the man at that time. He was desperately poor; he was ardently in love; his aspirations were unbounded. Instinctively a statesman in all of his interests, he was seeking a humble opportunity as a teacher of history in a college not yet in existence!

"My chief interest is in politics, in history, as it furnished object lessons for the present—the university professor's chief interest is in the accurate details of history—in the precise day of the month on which Cicero cut his eyeteeth—in past society for its own sake."

He had at the time little sympathy for the higher education of women; his was the chivalrous and romantic attitude of the born Southerner. And yet he could say that "the question of the higher education of women is certain to be settled in the affirmative, in this country at least, whether my sympathy be enlisted or not." It plainly irks him also to find that the person in authority with whom he must deal is a woman—and one no older than he! He feels that he must apologize for this aspect of the case.

". . . I would not be under a woman, so far as I can learn, but my own master, under Dr. Rhoades."

He finds that shy little Ellen Axson is as doubtful as he about the adventure. She too is southern and fearful of "strong-minded women." He turns the argument with a humor that is as pointed in its personal application as it is revealing in its disclosure of his own attitude toward education:

". . . I shall agree with you, that you are a 'little goose,' if you bemoan the fact that you don't know as much as the Bryn Mawr girls are expected to know! What do you think of my case? I am to be one of their instructors, and yet I not only could not pass the entrance examinations without special preparation, but could not even be an advanced student, much less a Fellow, in my own department—because I can't read German at sight!

"But that by no means indicates that I am not infinitely better educated than my pupils will be. Both you and I have what is immeasurably better than the information which is all that would be needed for passing Bryn Mawr, or any other college, examinations! We have the power to think, to use information. For my part I want to have to carry as little information in my head as possible—just as (to use some one else's illustration) I want to forget the figures in the column whose sum and result I have ascertained and want to keep. I must scan information, must question it closely as to every essential detail, in order that I may extract its meaning; but, the meaning once mastered, the information is lumber. It is enough if I know where to find it, for corroboration, for illustrations, etc. Of course one can't make himself familiar with facts for such purpose without remembering some of the more essential of them; but it is sheer, barren, ignorant waste of energy to try to remember a fact for its own sake. It is like eating for the sake of eating."

In tomorrow's chapter, after the Wilsons have dispelled their doubts over Bryn Mawr and have settled down at the college for women, will be the record of Woodrow Wilson's first public speech and his pride of the birth of his first daughter.

ORDER 5 HOTELS PADLOCKED

As an aftermath of state police raids three years ago, Judge H. H. Rowand today issued permanent padlock injunctions against five hotels, enjoining them from selling or possessing liquor.

Those enjoined indefinitely were Center Hall Inn, 6030 Center avenue, James E. Gavin, Thomas Campbell, H. P. Kuhn, Jr.; Max Brodie, 6488 Frankstown avenue; William Pickles and Michael Boisch, 129 Sixth street; William G. Rosemier and C. A. Schriner, 3237 Penn avenue; Robert Lampus and Howard Lampus, 115 West General Robinson street.

Sally Leaves Sloan's Car After He Proposes That They Get Married

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

SALLY JEROME is the mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who is separated from her mother. MRS. JEROME enjoys ill health, so Sally does the housework mornings and office work afternoons. BEAU and MILLIE, her brother and sister, give little towards the support of the home. TED SLOAN is in love with Sally and wants her to marry him. But Sally is interested only in JOHN NYE, for whom Millie works. Nye, however, is infatuated with Millie, who prefers a bond salesman named DAVIDSON, to him. Davidson worries Sally with his attentions. Presently Ted confesses that he is ashamed of his public dancing, and Sally sends him packing. Millie quits her job with John Nye, explaining that he "got fresh" with her. Beau's wife, MABEL, who takes the job, doubts her story. Millie gets a job in Davidson's office and tells a similar story about him, which Davidson later denies. Then Millie decides to go away with her mother and father on a sea trip for the latter's health. After she goes, Nye shows up at the restaurant conducted by Sally and her AUNT EMILY, tells Sally that it's common to dance in public, as he and she have been doing, and goes away, leaving Sally filled with determination to dance no more in the restaurant. Aunt Em agrees with her and lets the band go, too. One day Ted takes Sally for a ride and tells her he'll be glad to marry her if she'll never dance again and will settle down.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"YOU bet I was ashamed of it!" He agreed with her on that point, at any rate. "You bet I was! And of you, too! There are a lot of things I'll do in this world. But marrying a cabaret dancer isn't one of them."

Sally stared at him, panting. "What do you mean?" she breathed.

[illegible] I wouldn't be here now if you were still cabaret dancing," Ted said slowly and distinctly. "I would not be here now telling you that I'm willing to forget all that stuff—and marry you after all. I'm just as much in love with you as I was when you were working for Mr. Peebody. If you'll go back to office work we'll get married."

[illegible] whether to [illegible]

She finally decided to laugh. "Why, do you think I'd marry you under any circumstances?" she asked, choking with mirth. "After what you've just said to me? Why, if you were a millionaire and I were starving I wouldn't have you now! Not that I ever would have, anyway! You stop this car and let me get out, you nastily little cad, you!"

She was ashamed of herself when he did let her out, and she was walking towards the nearest car line.

"I talked to him just like a fishwife," she scolded herself. "But at that, he had it coming to him!"

CHAPTER LX.

Only two Babes in the Woods like Sally and Aunt Emily could have gotten themselves into the muddle they were in.

If both of them had not been so innocent, they would have known what almost everybody knows these days—that roadhouses everywhere have become hangouts for the kind of people who carry flasks in both hip pockets and ask for cracked ice before they ask for food.

But neither one of them had even guessed it, back in the days when they had called their restaurant a "tea house," and later on a "southern dining room."

"And so here we are, with a roadhouse on our hands," said Sally to herself as she turned into the driveway late that Sunday afternoon. "And I'm getting to be known as a cabaret dancer, besides. . . . How did we ever get ourselves into such a mess?"

It was not like Sally to be blue and down hearted about things. She was as used to hard luck as she was used to bread and butter. It had been her daily fare all her life.

But this was different—this attitude that people like Ted Sloan and John Nye had developed towards her. The attitude that she had been guilty of a disgraceful thing by dancing publicly in the place that Ted called "a cabaret" with a scornful edge to his voice.

The House by the Side of the Road looked so respectable and cozy in the middle of its wide green lawns, all rimmed with clipped hedges. With its shutters open, and its crisp, white curtains hanging in the windows, it might have been anybody's lovely suburban home, just as it had been for years when Aunt Em taught school.

But as Sally reached the bottom of the steps that led to the porch a big maroon touring car swung through the gates. It came to an abrupt stop with a loud shrieking of brakes, and six people all but fell out of it—three loud-looking men and three flashily dressed women—the sort of women who have their hair bleached and their painted mouths fixed in a perpetual smile.

One of the men, a stout, short fellow in light gray, hailed Sally as she went quickly up the broad steps ahead of them.

"Hey, Dolly! You serving supper this time of day?"

She half turned and looked at him. She had seen him in the dining room several times before—always with a woman, and never with the same woman.

She frowned down at him.

"We don't serve until 6 o'clock," she said coldly, and as she spoke the sound of church bells from the church up the road sounded upon the still air.

"Six o'clock now," she said to herself, listening to them.

The man took out his watch, looked at it, and snapped it shut again. "Just 6 now, girls," he called to the three blondined women, and they came teetering up the steps on their Spanish-spiked heels and into the house.

"Send in a bowl of cracked ice and some ginger ale and glasses right away, Dolly," the stout man shouted good-naturedly to Sally from the door of the dining room.

She was half-way up the stairs by this time, and she went on up without even a backward glance at him.

Aunt Em was upstairs in her own room, slipping into one of the plain white linen dresses that she always wore in the kitchen. From her appearance she might have been a head nurse or a woman doctor ready for the operating room. She certainly did not look like the owner of a roadhouse that was fast getting a name among a certain class of people for being "hot stuff."

"Well, you certainly took your time about getting back," she snapped out as Sally came into the room. "I made all those pies myself, and cleaned a couple of dozen broilers, besides. . . . I thought you were only going to be gone an hour."

Sally shrugged her shoulders. "I walked part of the way home," she explained. "Ted and I had a fuss, and I made him let me out of his car."

"Well, you're more of a fool than I thought!" declared Aunt Em. "Suppose you did fuss with him? That was no reason for getting out of his car and taking two hours to get home, was it? What did you quarrel with him about?" She was always wild to hear all the gossip that there was to be heard.

Sally could almost see her ears twitch with eagerness as she turned to listen.

"He called me a cabaret dancer, and it made me furious," she began. "He told me I'd lost my reputation by dancing downstairs, but now that I'd stopped it he was quite willing to marry me and make an honest woman of me again!" She set her teeth at the memory of the things he had said, and the tone in which he had said them.

"Cabaret!" sputtered Aunt Emily, pulling on her freshly-cleaned white shoes. "Calling my house a cabaret! That's the worst yet! But you wouldn't ever want to marry HIM, anyway, would you Sally?" Her tone showed just how little she thought of young Mr. Theodore Sloan.

"Not in a lifetime!" declared Sally, passionately. "I told him so—and that's what finished him, I reckon. Anyway, he was glad enough to let me get out of his car. But he was right about one thing, Aunt Em, and we know it, don't we—that our dining room isn't the quiet, cozy little place that it started out to be."

"Well, we're trying to get that fixed up," said Aunt Em. "We've got rid of our shimmy dancer," she laughed, "and our jazz orchestra. Now, all we have to do is keep the wrong kind of people away."

"It's not going to be so simple. There's a whole party of them downstairs now, yelling for cracked ice and ginger ale," answered the girl, and Aunt Em raised her shocked eyebrows until they vanished under the dark, neat waves of her hair.

At last Aunt Em had learned what people did with the innocent little white crockery bowls of ice that they had been sending into the dining room for so many months.

Once she had remarked to Hilda, the waitress, that people seemed to like ginger ale with ice in it better than they liked coffee or tea or any other drink. And Hilda had only said, "Yes, ma'am," in her meek voice. Hilda had been in the United States less than a year, herself, and was as innocent as Aunt Em—almost.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

Guessing at the Riddle of Miss Lincoln's Identity

IF EXPERIENCE counts for anything, I should be thoroughly inured to Dicky's odd behavior whenever his eyes light upon a young women in whose face or figure he sees the beauty and the grace of line which he needs for some particular drawing. From the moment he sees such a type he is completely absorbed in his study of her. One would imagine that such frank, unabashed scrutiny as his always is would be offensive to the recipient. But in all the years I never have known one girl to resent it. Instead most of them generally get romantically interested in him.

But I never do get used to it. Each time that I see that speculative, appraising, admiring look come into his eyes when he meets some unusually attractive young woman, there rises within me a resentment as fierce as it is unreasoning. Vainly I remind myself that I am the wife of an artist, that I married him with my eyes wide open to his temperament—and his foibles—and that I have no right to cavil at the interest, unusually innocuous, which he occasionally evinces when I introduce him to some pronounced "type" of femininity. I find that I am as absurdly angry as a young schoolgirl might be if she saw her "sweetie" frankly admiring some other girl.

Dicky's open absorbed admiration of Eleanor Lincoln, our mysterious new neighbor, brought another emotion besides the old jealous rancor which swept over me as I saw him studying her with the interested speculation so familiar to me. I felt a wondering horror that I should be capable of jealousy when my love for my husband was so nearly dead. Jealousy may be excusable when it is born of an absorbing though selfish love; but jealousy whose only mother is vanity, is a detestable thing, indeed. Was I capable of that dog-in-the-manger attitude? I asked myself, or—was it possible that my love for my husband, despite the almost unpardonable sin he had committed against our mutual faith, was not all ashes, that there still remained glowing embers capable of being fanned into flame again?

But I had no time for that absorbing occupation known as dragging out your soul and going over it with a microscope. Miss Lincoln was speaking to Noel Veritzen with an abruptness which focused the attention of all of us upon her.

"Did I understand your name to be Veritzen?" she asked.

He bowed with the touch of theatric Old World formality which is his birthright from his famous father.

"Yes, that—is my—name," he answered with a slight hesitancy which I knew arose from his realization that he had told us of his father's changing of the name from the unpronounceable foreign one which was their birthright.

She looked at him with ingenuous open admiration in her eyes, which reminded me of the big velvety black pansies in my old-fashioned garden.

"I've heard you play," she said, and the tone in which she spoke was in itself a commendation, without her added frank comment: "You were wonderful. I never enjoyed anything so much in my life."

Noel Veritzen's sensitive face flushed. He would have been less than human if he had not enjoyed so naive and sincere a tribute from so beautiful a girl, but I saw that it had made him uncomfortable, nevertheless. His reply was almost awkward.

"Thank you," he said hurriedly. "I am glad you liked it. When were you at the club? I am sure I have seen you there."

"I have been thinking the same thing, Noel," Mary's fresh young voice chimed in—from the corner of my eye I had seen that Mary had been watching our new acquaintance very closely, and had missed no detail of the stranger's frank interest in Noel Veritzen. There was a litle glint in her eyes which told me that, in the frank fashion of the young moderns, she would wage open warfare for the possession of young Noel Veritzen's attention, even though I was sure she was in no sense of the word "in love" with him. Her voice and manner subtly took possession of the young man, ran up a signal "Hands off," perfectly understandable to any player of the most ancient game in the world. "I am positive I have seen you before, but I can't think where."

Was I mistaken, or was it a look of alarm which I saw in the lustrous depths of Eleanor Lincoln's black eyes?

Infantile Paralysis

MOTHERS!

Learn how to guard your dear little ones against this terrible disease

Nobody knows where infantile paralysis comes from. It seems to spring from nowhere, and it marks out for its victims little children who are unable to defend themselves. Right now newspapers are reporting increasing epidemics of infantile paralysis throughout the nation. It is a germ disease, and the germs, in some manner, are spread from one child to another.

The favorite place for germs to enter the system is through the mouth. So the place to destroy the germs is while they are in the mouth. Nothing destroys germs so quickly as GERM-ORAL. Thousands use it daily—finding it the only absolute protection against disease. It maintains a constant condition of cleanness and sweetness of the mouth, besides preserving the health of throat, gums and teeth.

GERM-ORAL is the most powerful mouth antiseptic known to Medical Science, yet it is absolutely safe and pleasant for the tender mouths of little children. It leaves a cool, refreshing, pleasant taste.

Isn't it wiser to use GERM-ORAL than to have your children run the risk of catching disease? Go today to your druggist and get a bottle of GERM-ORAL. Just a simple swabbing of children's mouths night and morning with this scientific mouth antiseptic avoids disease dangers and relieves you of worry. GERM-ORAL is extremely economical. Just a few drops to a half glass of hot water is sufficient. If inconvenient to buy at the drug store, send 75c to Hollander Bros. Drug Co., Rankin, Pa., Dept. 56-T.

If Over-Fat
Try this easy way
To Lose It

Do it for beauty's sake, for new health and fitness. If you have tried the hard ways without success, learn what this pleasant way can do.

Some twenty years ago research men discovered a cause of excess fat. It lies in lack of certain elements which turn food into fuel and energy, rather than into fat. They found and widely tested a way to combat that cause.

Then that method was embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. The formula is given in every box, also the reasons for results. Users know what they are taking, and why.

Marmola has been used for 20 years—millions of boxes of it. Users have told others the results. That is one reason why excess fat has become almost the exception.

Abnormal exercise or diet is not advised, though moderation helps. Users of Marmola simply take four tablets daily until weight comes down to normal. They know why it comes down—in a natural way—so they have no fear of harm.

Try this modern method, which so many have employed for so long. Watch the results for a little while and judge for yourself what they mean to you. Do this now. Go order a box today.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out he will get them at once from his jobber.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, and emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

Take Care Not to Expose Others to Illness

AFTER every war there are epidemics of disease. Whenever great bodies of men congregate together, the conditions are favorable for the transference of disease from one person to a multitude.

DR. COPELAND

It was true after the great pilgrimages to Jerusalem and Mecca. The masses of people mingling together permitted the germs of disease to do their unpleasant work. As the pilgrims returned home, traveling up the great rivers, they carried illness into Russia and parts of Asia. Since disease recognizes no geographical boundaries it was not long before Eastern Europe was invaded.

City life is well suited for the spread of disease. The wonder is we do not have contagious disease in epidemic form all the time.

There are certain insects and other animal pests which have the unpleasant habit of carrying illness. The louse conveys typhus. The flea carries bubonic plague. The mosquito malaria and yellow fever. The rat and other rodents are the vehicles to carry the infected flea. Even the bedbug is under suspicion as a conveyor of disease.

There are other diseases which are passed on by contaminated food and drink. Cholera, typhoid fever, diphtheria, scarlet fever and various intestinal disturbances may be spread in this way.

Society recognizes the importance and propriety of quarantine. For myself I fully agree to its necessity in many diseases.

The reason why we cannot hope to wipe out some of the contagious or infectious diseases is because we cannot recognize them at the very beginning of their onset. The disease is far advanced before its true nature is recognized.

What can be done by the average citizen is to apply the Golden Rule. What do I mean by this?

When you have a sore throat, feeling of chilliness, running nose, headache, suspicion of fever, or that dreadful "tired feeling," you know there is something wrong with you. Under these conditions you should take no chance on your own health.

But this isn't all: You should not do anything to hazard the health of your fellow men. If by any chance you have influenza or some other acute infectious disease you should not mingle with your fellow men, of course. The observance of the Golden Rule will lead you to do as you would be done by. Find out what is wrong with you before you mix with others.

This is a sure thing—if you have fever you have no right, for your own sake and for the sake of others, to mingle with your fellows until the cause of your fever has been determined. Go home and get into bed. Stay there till the fever is gone.

Self-interest and the Golden Rule demand that you give attention to the symptoms of illness.

Answers to Health Queries

E. M. M. Q.—I am 24 years of age, 5 feet tall. What should I weigh? I weigh about 94 pounds. How can I gain?

A.—You should weigh about 120 pounds. Build up your health in general and you will gain in weight as well as benefit generally. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

1. What is tin-foil?
2. Where do we get the expression "Take the cake?"
3. For whom is the saxophone named?
4. What is cheiromancy?
5. Why is it hard to run up hill and easy to run down?
6. What is the title of the wife of an Earl?
7. What is topology?
8. For what month is the ruby the birthstone?
9. What is the difference between iron and steel?
10. What is isinglass?

The answers to these questions may be found in tomorrow's paper.

Here are the answers to yesterday's questions.

1. A light year is the distance traversed by light in one year. It is a linear unit in measuring the distances between fixed stars and the earth.
2. When a flag is displayed in a manner other than by being flown from a staff, the blue field should be to the left of the spectator no matter whether the flag is hanging vertically or horizontally.
3. In Tartar, "cossack" signifies "armed man."
4. The Apis was an Egyptian divinity, or rather a living symbol of Osiris. It was a black bull with white markings. It was worshiped at Memphis.
5. The poet, John Keats, chose as his own epitaph, "Here lies one whose name was writ in water."
6. John Philip Sousa is widely known as the "March King."
7. Hair is lifeless above the roots.
8. It is thought that in the phrase "Get your goat," the word "goat" is a contraction of "goatee," a pointed beard. Thus, the phrase literally would mean to pull one's beard, which is considered a humiliating form of insult.
9. John Henry Newman was at one time a leader of the English Episcopal Church. When he was about 45 years old he was converted to Roman Catholicism. He became a Catholic cardinal at the age of 79.
10. Johnny Appleseed's real name was John Chapman. He was called Johnny Appleseed because of his hobby of planting apple nurseries in the forest in advance of civilization. Most of his orchards were planted in Ohio; a few in Indiana.

Your Smile and Your Teeth

Anita Stewart

Restoring "Off-Color" Teeth to Gleaming Whiteness

DENTAL science has discovered that one's teeth seldom are naturally "off color." Hence you can now restore them to dazzling clearness quickly. Can firm tender gums to healthy coral color.

Run your tongue across your teeth. You will feel a slippery sort of film, coating them, that absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. A film ordinary dentifrices won't clear off successfully. That's why, no matter how hard you've brushed, your teeth stayed dingy looking.

Film also, by breeding germs, invites tooth decay, gum troubles and pyorrhea. Beneath it are those gleaming teeth you envy. Results are amazing when it's removed.

Thus leading dental authorities now widely urge a new-type, film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent, different from all others. One's whole appearance thus is often changed.

Put old ways aside. Get Pepsodent at any drug store. Note the difference that comes. Ten-day test tube will be sent for coupon.

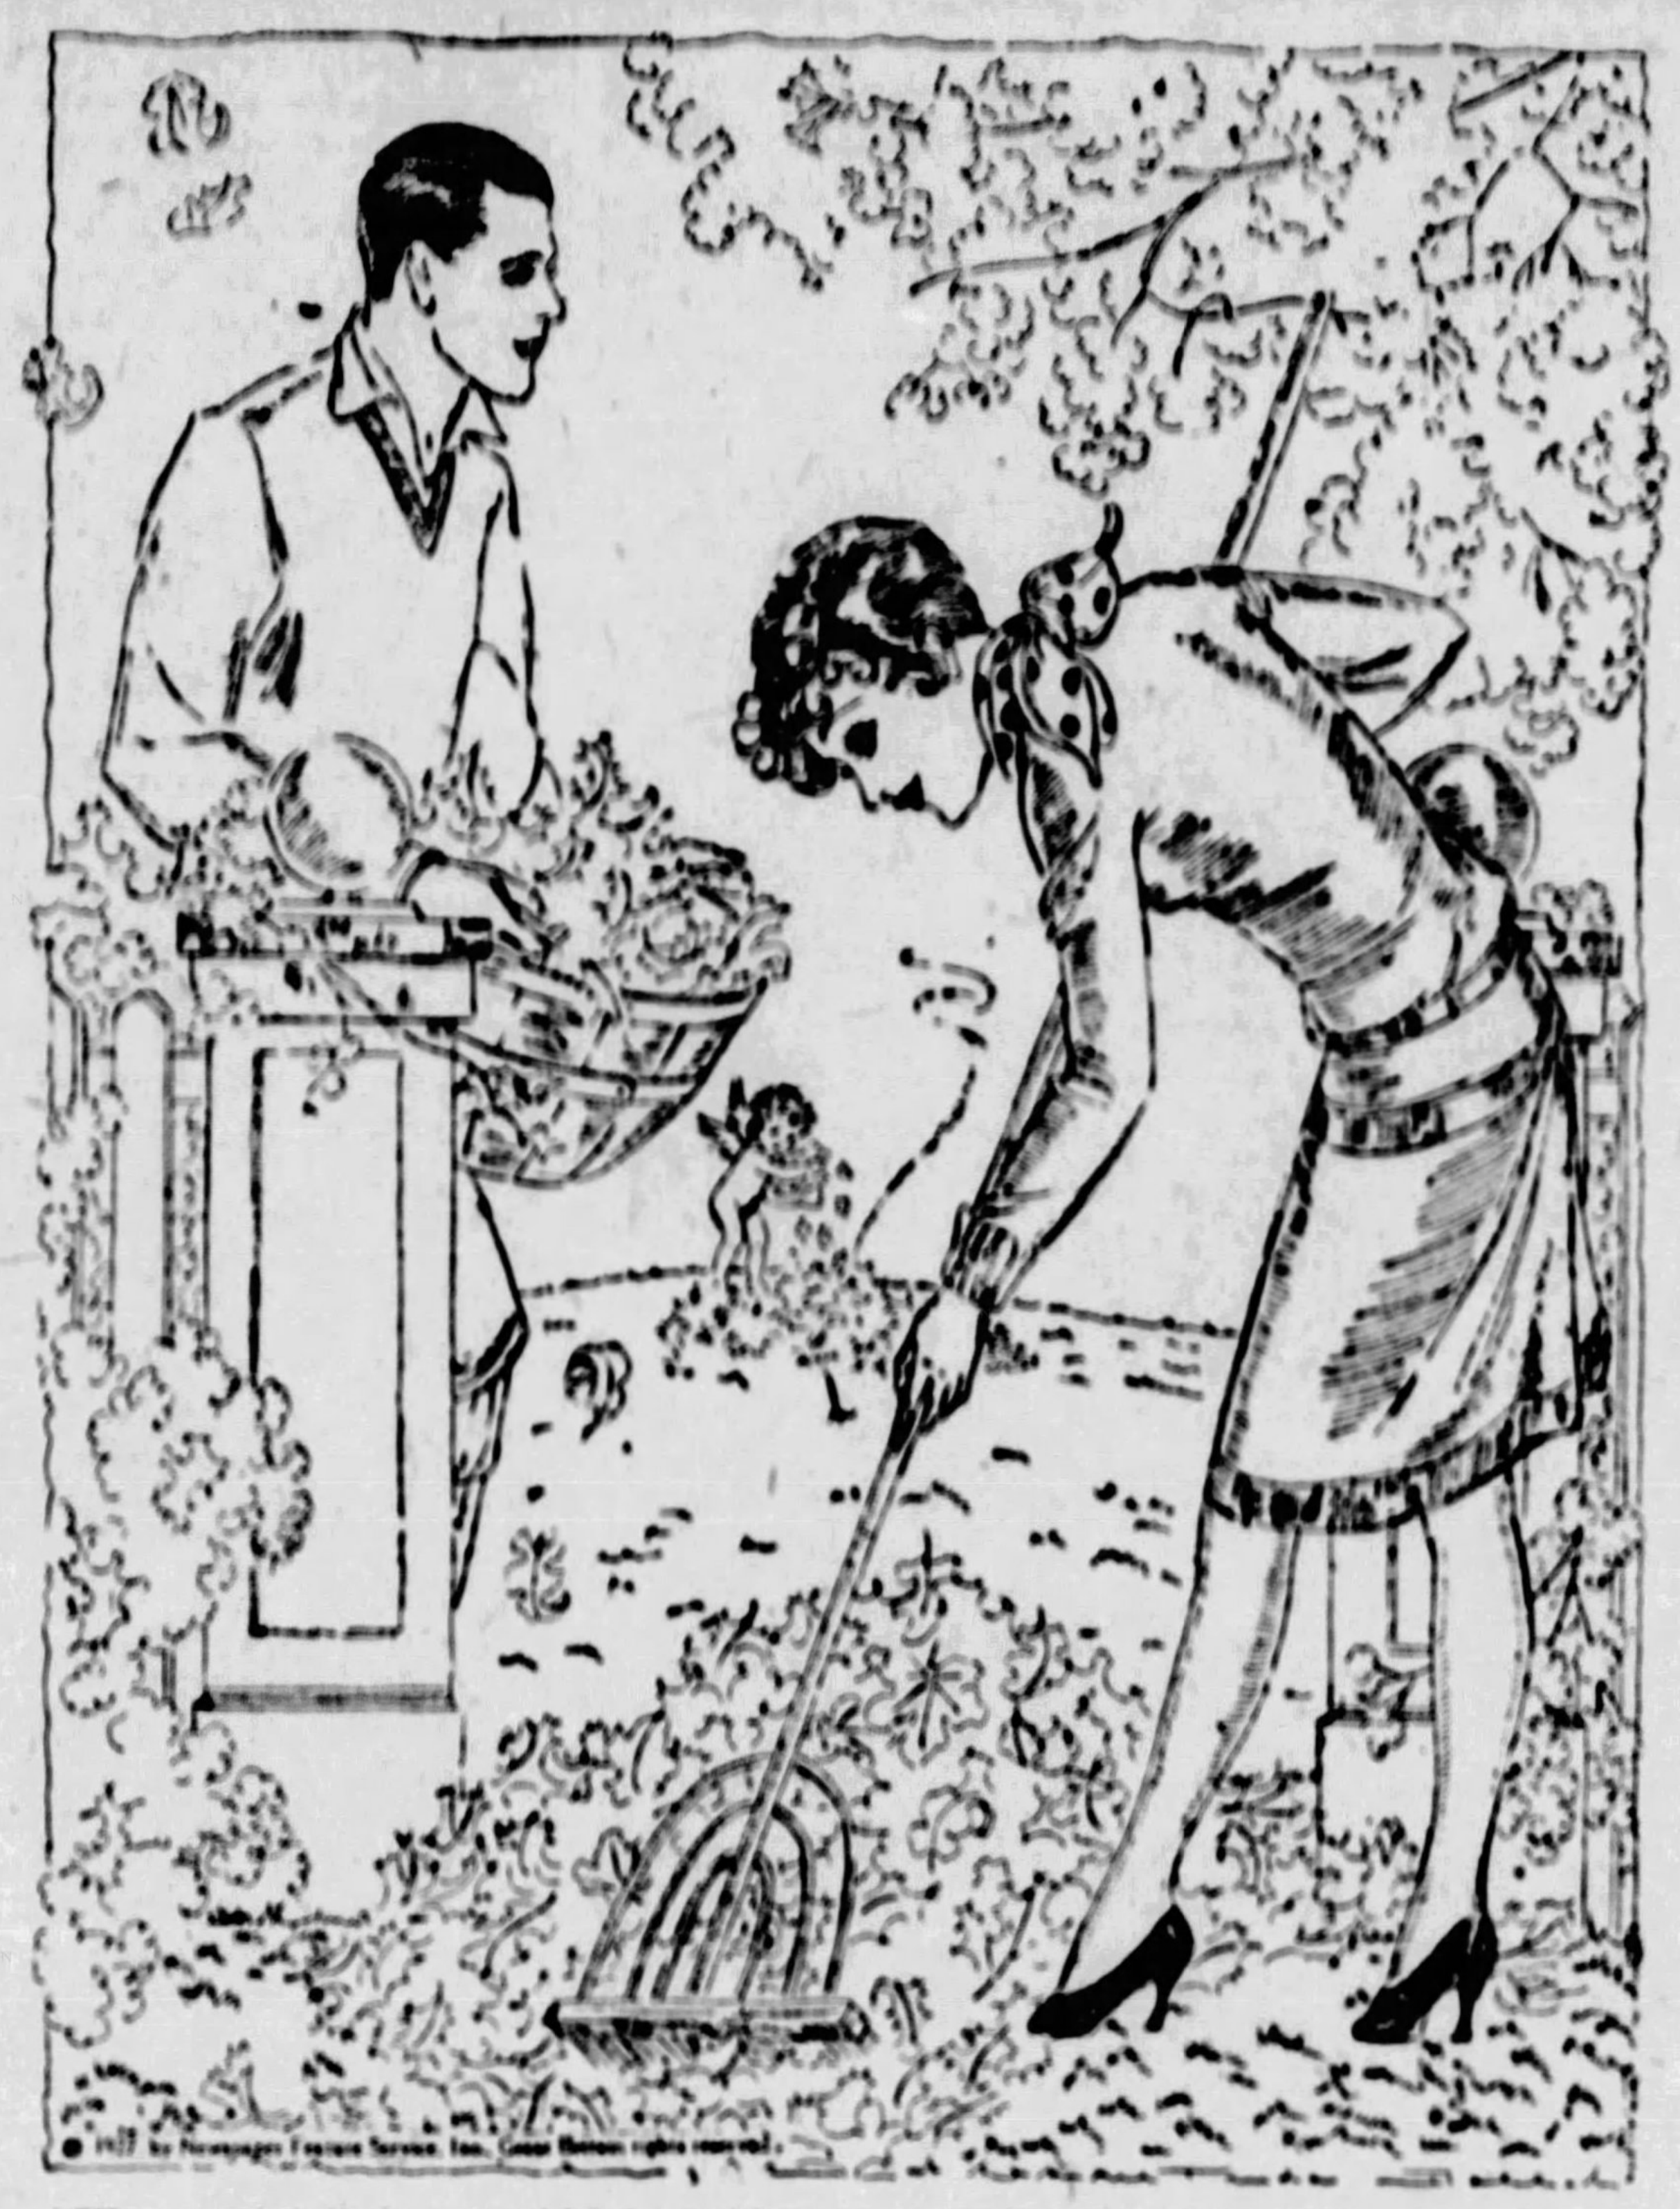
Fuel for the Flame -:- By Truda Dahl



© 1927 by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain rights reserved.

EACH season has its beauty, which is sung by all bards and poets. Some love the Spring most, when Nature awakens from her long sleep. Others prefer Summer and all the joys and sports that go with it. Then again, there are those who like best picturesque Winter, with its snow and ice. But Golden Autumn is beloved by all.

On a mellow Autumn afternoon what occupation could be sweeter than gathering the brown leaves which are buffeted about by the gentle winds. What a pleasant pastime! And with Cupid as a silent helpmate, is it any wonder that the spark of Love which is kindling within the hearts of these two bursts into an ardent flame?

LISTEN WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON.

Growth.

WHAT will happen after you die?

Sir Oliver Lodge thinks you will go on growing.

He believes that death is just another sort of birth and that just as we took on one type of a body when we came into this present existence, so will we take on finer, freer bodies when we "graduate" into the next existence.

Sir Oliver Lodge doesn't think that we will graduate into angels or devils—he thinks that we will live then much as we live now—only much more freely and powerfully, for we will have dropped our clumsy bodies. He believes that the real self in us which dreams and loves and struggles and rejoices is not a matter of flesh and bone—it only inhabits the flesh and bone and uses them as temporary tools. The tools may wear out but Sir Oliver Lodge does not believe that the Real Self can ever wear out. He thinks that it will simply go on growing and developing, making many mistakes as it did here in this life, doing some mischief perhaps, but growing wiser and stronger all the time.

Sir Oliver Lodge doesn't think that we're "saved" or "damned" when we die—nor does he think that the next life is either heaven or hell. He thinks that it is just More Life. And he believes that it would be quite possible for another life to be going on here, without our seeing it.

"We are not living in a material world," he says. "We are living in a spiritual world and people so qualified to know it feel it in their bones that at times we get visions of something more.

"I tell you we are not isolated on this planet. There is a vast reality beyond. We are not the highest beings in creation. We are only the highest in this particular planet. Darwinism is merely an attempt to show the automatic development of life. If we limit ourselves to the evidence of our five senses, we are no better than animals."

We do not know whether Sir Oliver Lodge is right, although he brings many amazing scientific facts to support his argument. But it is a comforting theory and it is much more sensible than most theories about life or death. It's hardly reasonable to suppose that man's spirit will be snuffed out in a few years after he has come such a long way, in his evolution. I prefer to think that I'm just a Growing Thing, on my way.

When the thought of death terrifies you, or your heart is breaking over the loss of some loved one, try to think of it that way. A Growing Thing, going on, in the natural process of its development. Changing to a spirit, as a polly-wog changes to a frog.

Every Woman Should Know About This.

It is as much your duty to be attractive as to keep a well-ordered house.

Why shouldn't every girl and woman strive to be attractive? It is not merely vanity; the modest knowledge of pleasant appearance is a mental prop that enhances whatever charms of personality its owner may have.

Let us suggest here, a recently discovered Toilet Accessory known as Mibalm Liquid Vanishing Cream.

Never before has there been offered a toilet preparation which fills such a long-felt want; never have women been so anxious to try a new product and never have they been so well pleased, and acknowledged its superior value over the old style solid vanishing creams.

MIBALM LIQUID VANISHING CREAM is a snow-white lotion, makes an ideal powder base, it is soothing, healing and mildly astringent; you can buy it at all the leading Drug and Department Stores, you can always get it at May's.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

AND STILL WE LOVE THEM—

A FRIEND is most entertaining when he is lively and witty—a lover, when he is deadly serious.

A man may be parted from the woman he loves and separated from the woman he marries; but he can no more be torn free from the woman who AMUSES him than a puppy from a pet bone.

There are pet dogs who follow every friendly whistle and men who respond to every woman's challenge. Eternal vigilance is the price of their fidelity—but it's scarcely worth the price.

HELEN ROWLAND

The first kiss must have been discovered by some prehistoric man and joyfully adopted as the safest, most non-committal and most convincing way of answering a woman's questions.

A "clear conscience" is what a man has, after the headache or the heart-affair has worn off, and he has confessed as much or as little to the woman he loves as he knows she will find out anyhow.

There are times, these days, when a woman feels that it would be easier to have another woman STEAL her husband than to have all of them continually "borrowing" him.

To a man, all life is a fascinating adventure—an exciting "game;" and he can squeeze more joy out of one hour of it than a woman can extract in a year.

A man is not actually past his youth until the women stop thinking of him as a good fellow, and begin thinking of him as a good catch or a "good thing."

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Yet who shall shut out fate?
—EDWIN ARNOLD.

UNDER this day's inauspicious rule it may be difficult to make any marked progress. Saturn, deemed to be an invincible administrator of fate, is in opposition to Luna, a position read as bringing stubborn obstacles and postponement.

The wise will "rule" this situation by conformity rather than by opposition to the law, consenting to put off until more favorable sway.

Be wise also in personal affiliations and keep under calm behavior.

Those whose birthday it is may find most success during the year by working along lines of least resistance. Guard the actions and cherish the home.

A child born on this day may require an unusually careful training to direct its mind into channels of fortitude and endurance. Industry and application should be instilled as great factors in overcoming obstacles.

Notable Nativity: Lillian Gish, movie star.

Home-made Supply of Fine Cough Syrup

Better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves about $2. Easily prepared.

If you combined the valuable properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real healing power as there is in this home-made syrup, easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup, or clarified honey, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the throat tickle and heals the irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and it is splendid for bronchitis, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, which has been used for generations to break severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Rinso
The new kind of soap
FOR THE FAMILY WASH

"It's So Safe," Wilkinsburg Woman Says

"Until my grocer told me that most women use Rinso, it used to take almost all day to get my wash on the lines. But now we just soak the clothes in the safe Rinso suds for a few hours, and they're ready to be rinsed and hung out. There's no scrubbing to do—yet the clothes turn out whiter and fresher than they ever did when I used bar soaps or washing powders. And it's so safe for the clothes! Besides, I don't have to use a water softener now. Rinso is also a great time-saver in washing dishes, linoleum, tiles, floors and sinks. It certainly saves the hands."
MRS. M. J. SPERLING,
1143 Franklin Ave., Wilkinsburg, Pa.

Millions use Rinso. Thousands write us letters like this.

Look at this wash —whiter than ever yet it wasn't scrubbed or boiled, just soaked so gently . . . .

JUST soaked! Do you know what that means? No hard work on washday —and the whitest, brightest wash ever, from washing machine or tub!

Rinso, the granulated laundry soap, is different. It loosens dirt and stains so they float off by themselves. Grimy cuffs and edges become snowy with little or no rubbing. Even boiling isn't necessary, for Rinso suds clean and whiten without boiling—sterilize, too!

Clothes last longer, hands stay younger—the gentle Rinso way. And millions know that Rinso is safe. Contains nothing to harm your very finest cottons or linens.

Try it! See how it gives thick, lasting suds even in the hardest water. It's all you need—no bar soaps, chips or powders.

Two sizes—most women buy the BIG package. For best results, follow the easy directions on the package.

Great in washers

The makers of 31 leading washing machines endorse Rinso for safety, and for whiter clothes.

Tooth Brush Not Favorite With Americans

By Universal Service

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Out of America's 120,000,000 persons, 70,000,000 do not use tooth brushes.

The drug trade bureau of public information made that assertion here yesterday, pointing out the developing alliance between pharmacy and medicine in prolonging human life.

Forty million tooth brushes were sold in the United States last year, according to the drug trade bureau's statistics.

"Science has added 18 years to the span of life," says the bureau's summary. "American women are acclaimed the world's most beautiful, its men the most alert, clean cut and successful. These men and women spent about $300,000,000 last year on 'good looks.'"

Dull, listless, out of sorts, feeling half-sick

IS it a cold coming on? Is it over-eating or what can it be? Probably it is Nature warning that your system is not functioning properly.

When you feel this way you should follow the treatment that has helped many, many other people. Even two weeks of it will make a difference in the way you feel.

A prominent New York physician says, "When my patients have that dull half-sick feeling I always prescribe Nujol and recommend at least two weeks' continued usage. Why? Because Nujol absorbs and clears away the toxic intestinal poisons that in most cases are the cause of the trouble. Further, Nujol is absolutely harmless and can be taken by young babies or old people."

Not like medicine

Nujol contains no drugs or medicine. It's a natural substance unlike anything else. Can't hurt you. Others have benefited from taking it, why not you?

JOHNSON TO LEAVE OFFICE MONDAY

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS
PITTSBURGH'S BEST — THURSDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1927 — TWENTY-ONE

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

SINCE Pitcher Wiley Moore of the Yankees ended the world series by defeating Pittsburgh in the fourth game, it has developed that the Pirate management had a deal practically closed for that hurler when he was working in the South Atlantic Association in the latter part of 1926.

But it has not been explained why the dicker was allowed to fall through after Scout Bill Hinchman of the Buccaneers had picked out Moore as a man who would help the Corsairs and induced Wiley's employers to sell him to the Pirates.

The hitch came when Hinchman required the immediate delivery of Moore to the Freebooters.

THE Bushmen were in dire need of another pitcher at the time and wanted Moore at once. The Sally League club holding title to Moore's services, however, was itself short-handed in the slab department at the time, and could not see its way clear to letting him go.

Hinchman then called off the deal for good and he and other scouts got busy in other directions in quest of the moundsman needed.

The result of it was that instead of Moore, who could have been bought for a nominal sum for later delivery, the Pittsburgh management coughed up $40,000 to get Carmen Hill from Indianapolis, with the provision that Hill be turned over to the Rovers at once.

THE wisdom of the investment, which was closed by Treasurer Sam Dreyfuss in the absence of his father, was shown this year in the fact that Hill won 22 games for the Pirates.

Speculation as to what the Buccaneers might have been able to do in the world series if they instead of the Yanks had obtained Moore, appears to be answered by the fact that if the Bushmen had not obtained Hill they might not, in view of his 22 victories, won the National League pennant and therefore would not have been in the world series at all.

BASEBALL gossipers around the major league circuits have already started the annual crop of post-season rumors as to managerial changes in the big circuits for the season to come.

One report goes so far as to say that John McGraw will either step out or move over to the Boston Nationals next year and that Rogers Hornsby will be appointed to lead the Giants.

That there will be a change in the managership of the Braves is considered certain, but just who will succeed Dave Bancroft is still a matter for conjecture.

Another rumor in connection with the Boston situation is that the place may be offered to Wade Killefer, who managed the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast League this year. A year ago Killefer turned down an offer to manage the St. Louis Browns, the job later going to Dan Howley.

MENTION of Howley brings to mind one of the amusing incidents of the recent world series.

The manager of the Browns, sitting in the grandstand, was overheard telling a friend how the Pittsburgh slabmen ought to pitch to the various New York batters as they stepped to the plate in turn. A Pittsburgher who is one of Howley's best friends, chanced to be sitting nearby, and overheard Howley's "tips."

"A fine nerve you've got," he said to the Brown leader, "telling how another club ought to pitch to the Yanks. If my memory isn't playing tricks on me your club won one game out of 22 from the Yankees this year, and that one was the last game of the season's series. You certainly must know a lot about how to pitch to them." Howley himself joined in the laugh that followed.

FROM present indications there is going to be a yawning gap in the local basketball ranks the coming season, a gap that will represent the passing of the best independent team that this city has had in several years. In fact it was generally ranked as the best in this part of the country.

The Morry Five is no more, if signs are not misleading. For eight successive years that crack quintet, one of the best ever organized apart from such exceptional professional outfits as the Celtics, has entertained basketball lovers of Pittsburgh and vicinity, and has provided some of the best exhibitions of the floor sport seen anywhere.

From year to year Manager Joe Goldman, one of the smartest basketball men in the country, has kept it built up and bolstered with new material until it came to be recognized as a real championship aggregation and kept Pittsburgh abreast of the best in the game.

BUT now it appears strongly probable that the Morrys are going to pass out. Manager Goldman admits that while he has not yet reached a definite decision in the matter, he cannot see the advisability of putting his team on the floor again under existing conditions, and says the chances are strongly in favor of the disbandment of the five.

Even if the Morrys were to try for a berth in the big professional league, as has been suggested, he says such a venture could not result in anything but a heavy financial loss. He contends that there is not an available hall in the city large enough to accommodate crowds of the size re-

BAN READY TO RETIRE AS LOOP HEAD

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—(AP.) His "house in order," Ban Johnson, stormy petrel of organized baseball, is ready to turn over the keys of his 27-year-old office of president of the American League next Monday, or 15 days before he had originally planned.

Johnson gave no reason for his decision to speed up his resignation, his parting message dwelling entirely on the future of baseball.

On Monday, the board of directors of the league, Frank J. Navin of Detroit, Clark Griffith of Washington, Phil Ball of St. Louis and Tom Shibe of Philadelphia, will meet with Johnson, at his call, to receive his formal resignation, to look over his records and possibly to choose his successor.

While no announcement of the probable candidates has been made, baseball writers are almost unanimous in their guess that it will be E. S. Barnard, president of the Cleveland club.

"I am turning over the office in such shape that a child could read its history," President Johnson said. "My successor, whoever he may be, will have no trouble. I hope my successor will be a strong man for the good of the league. Without one the league can easily go on the rocks. Factions form in all groups and one man must dominate all factions and have real authority. A rubber stamp president will be a mistake. He must rule with an iron hand without regard for friendship or factions."

He also warned that the game "must be kept free from taint, away from gambling and syndicating."

Johnson's spectacular and stormy career in baseball started in November, 1893, when he was elected president of the old Western League. Although the league was only formative at that time, Johnson, then a sports writer on a Cincinnati newspaper, took the job, and had the league functioning when the baseball season opened. After several seasons, Johnson and his friends became ambitious and decided to change the name of the league to the American League.

Then trouble started with the National League, Johnson challenging the National League's right to major league classification.

Scores of players were taken from the National circuit by the American and for two years there was continual strife between the two organizations. But between the 1902 and 1903 seasons a peace parley was held and the present playing agreement was started.

Since that time, Johnson has engaged in many battles with league owners, fans and players over baseball policies.

He is now 63 years old and has no plans for the future except a vacation in Honolulu.

CUDDY DEMARCO AND MANAGER MASON CHECK UP ON AN UNPROFITABLE EVENING

Cuddy DeMarco, local lightweight boxer, and his manager, James (Red) Mason, put in a highly unprofitable evening at Motor Square Garden last Monday night. Cuddy boxed Billy Wallace of Cleveland in the main bout, a hard and rough battle, for less than nothing, undeservedly lost the referee's decision after the judges split and then saw his manager become engaged in a mixup with Referee Eddie Kennedy in the dressing room following the bout, as a result of which Manager Mason has been indefinitely suspended by the State Athletic Commission. Picture above shows manager and boxer doing some tall figuring on the financial aspects of the deal.

In this picture, the result is known, and, as Manager Mason breaks the sad news, Cuddy cannot refrain from smiling at the realization that he has cleverly outsmarted himself. Cuddy was anxious to box Wallace here to wipe out a knockout defeat suffered at Wallace's fists in Cleveland some months ago. Wallace demanded a guarantee of $2,500, which the club refused to pay. DeMarco then agreed to take 55 per cent of the receipts and pay Wallace out of this. The gate was not up to expectations and the 55 per cent amounted to $2,453.55, or $46.45 short of meeting the obligation, and leaving nothing for Cuddy's efforts. The club finally agreed to make up the shortage to Wallace and Cuddy went without a payday.

GENEVA STAGES SECOND HALF RALLY TO WIN

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 13.—Bo McMillin's Geneva football eleven which accounted for one of the most startling upsets of the 1926 season with a victory over Harvard, defeated Boston College 13-0, here yesterday.

Thirty thousand watched the game.

There was no scoring in the first half but in the third period a long pass from Flenniken to Schachern paved the way for a score and Flenniken sprinted twenty-five yards in the final period for the other touchdown.

GENEVA OUTPLAYED

During the first half and particularly during the first quarter Boston College had the Geneva boys backed up against their goal line much of the time. One Boston attack penetrated to the three-yard line, another to the seven. Consequently they threatened, but the nearer they got to the goal line the tighter became the Geneva defense and the more uncertain and hesitant the Boston attack.

It looked for a minute as if the Eagles were going to come back successfully after that Geneva touchdown. Al Weston caught the kickoff on his own 10-yard line and galloped up the center of the field behind a swarm of interference that wiped everything out before it. Weston used his screen well and eventually broke loose, running fast with Schachern between him and the goal line and two men still with him.

Schachern, the brains and resource of the Geneva team fought off the interference, finally side stepped them and brought Weston down. It was his second brilliant piece of work and it was no less valuable to the Geneva cause than his hair raising clutch of that forward pass in the end zone.

Red and Blue Match Is Carded at Shannopin

The biggest affair of the year of the Shannopin Country Club is carded Saturday for the Ben Avon Heights links. The annual Red and Blue contest will be enhanced with added attractions which will make it a real day, from dawn to high moon, as G. A. Erb, committeeman in charge, put it today.

A. O. Pearce will captain the Reds and N. G. Eyster, the Blues. The losing team pays for the night's festivities.

Inasmuch as such a large field is anticipated, it is impossible to make pairings, according to Erb, and, as a result, the club has decided to pair all players at the tee.

In the evening John I. Thompson, president, will award the club championship medal to J. Lang Hukill, Jr., and another medal to the runner-up, F. L. Stout.

Tech-W. & J. First Real Game of Local Football Season

By HARRY KECK,
Sun-Telegraph Sports Editor.

IT'S ALWAYS either a feast or a famine. Last week we had the world series games and the Pitt, Carnegie Tech and Duquesne University elevens all in action on home fields. This week there's nothing big in sight except one football game, the annual battle between Carnegie Tech and Wash-Jeff at Forbes Field on Saturday. Pitt plays Drake at Des Moines and the Dukes lock horns with the Bethany Bisons on the latter's field at Bethany, W. Va.

However, the solitary game promises to make up in attractiveness for the shortage in the number of events. It looks like a real tossup, and, for the first time this season, with baseball and all other counter attractions out of the way, the local fans will be able to concentrate on a big football battle.

The football season, although several weeks old, will be getting its real start in Pittsburgh with the staging of this game between two natural rivals.

PENN STATE, rallying from a sad blow in the nature of a defeat by Bucknell last week, meets the University of Pennsylvania at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, Saturday, and will be picked to lose to the eleven which last Saturday downed Tus

Psychology Gave Yanks Series, Experts Say

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Some experts reviewing the world series today credited the Yankees with having won it through psychology before the first game was played.

On the day before the series opened, the National League champions got a glimpse of the Yankee players knocking the ball about the field.

Pennock and Pipgras were throwing cripples to the batters. The Pirates saw Ruth knock the ball into the stand five times and send a sixth smash against the center field fence; watched Gehrig send several long drives in deep center, and saw Meusel, Lazzeri and Ben Paschal hit the ball out of the park.

MIDWEST TEAMS LEAVE FOR BATTLES

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—(INS.)—Half a dozen powerful Midwest football machines shoved off today for the Saturday battle grounds.

Northwestern entrained for Columbus to play Ohio State; Michigan left for Madison to meet Wisconsin; Minnesota headed toward Bloomington for the fray with Indiana, and Purdue moved over from Lafayette to engage Chicago at Stagg Field.

Iowa State journeyed to Urbana for the clash with Illinois. The Irish threat, Notre Dame and Knute Rockne, rumbled off to battle Navy at Baltimore.

Although the spotlight will center on the Municipal Stadium in America's Oyster City—Baltimore—a wandering ray will flicker over the stadium pillars at Columbus and Chicago. The game here, in view of Purdue's victory over Harvard, will be watched with especial interest.

Northwestern is a prime favorite to roll up Ohio, in spite of the fact that Tiny Lewisohn, Purple fullback, was left at an Evanston hospital to combat pneumonia. A victory for Northwestern will be a long stride toward the coveted conference championship.

Fight Results

At Cleveland—Jack McVey and Dave Shade drew, 10 rounds; Allentown Joe Gans defeated Red Uhlan, 8 rounds; Tommy Crowley defeated Frank Gordini, 6 rounds; Cleveland Phil Goldstein defeated Young Irish, 4 rounds.

At Lowell, Mass.—Clyde Hull defeated Bobby Brown, 10 rounds.

At Toronto—George Fifield defeated Doug Lewis, 10 rounds.

At Troy, N. Y.—Johnny Indrisano defeated Sig Keppen, 12 rounds.

FORMER CHAMP SPIKES EASTERN REPORT

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—There is nothing to the reported peace pact between Jack Dempsey and his former manager, Jack Kearns, the former heavyweight champion told the Associated Press here today.

"I know nothing about it and wouldn't consider it for a minute," he said when a dispatch quoting a copyrighted article in the New York Daily News, was read to him over the telephone. "The matter of the lawsuits is in the hands of my attorney and he is ready to go to trial the minute they are," Dempsey added.

"As for peace proposals, I haven't heard of any coming from Kearns, and certainly none have been made by me, and I wouldn't consider them."

Dempsey leaves today for Los Angeles and will be accompanied by his wife, Estelle Taylor, the motion picture star.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—The New York Daily News in a copyrighted story today says Jack Dempsey and his former manager, Jack Kearns, are about to sign a peace pact returning Kearns as pilot of the former heavyweight champion.

The reconciliation is expected to take place within 10 days, after which Dempsey will return East to talk with Kearns on plans for a barnstorming trip which will include battles this winter in Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles and New York.

The Daily News says that under the terms of the peace pact, as outlined, Kearns has agreed to withdraw all the law suits he has pending against Dempsey, while Dempsey has agreed to sign a long-term contract giving Kearns one-third of all his future earnings.

Since their break after the Dempsey-Firpo fight in 1923, Kearns has kept the former champion constantly involved in law suits. One of these suits in which Kearns sued for $333,333.33, is scheduled to come up for preliminary hearing in Trenton, N. J., next week.

Leo P. Flynn is guiding the fortunes of the former champion at present.

REGNEY AND STEWART SOLD TO BIRMINGHAM

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—The sale of John Stewart and Emory Rigney, infielders, to the Birmingham club of the Southern Association, has been announced by President Griffith of the Washington American League team. Rigney formerly was a star shortstop with the Detroit Tigers and Boston Red Sox, having played six years in the major leagues.

Stewart was never able to win a regular berth with a major league club although he was given trials by the Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Brooklyn and Philadelphia National League clubs.

The terms of the sale were not made public.

Two Tens Top Ring Card

A DOUBLE windup, consisting of two 10-round bouts, will top off the weekly boxing show at McKeesport tonight. Young Rudy of Charleroi and Harry Taylor of the North Side meet in the main event, and Teddy Esterbrook of Niles, O., and Bobby Richardson of Portage, Pa., clash in the other feature number.

The Rudy-Taylor bout will be their third meeting. The first resulted in a draw and Rudy scored a quick knockout in the second.

Jimmy Belmont, hard-hitting welterweight of Braddock, and Jimmy Duffy of New Kensington will box the six-round second bout and Bill Durias of McKeesport and Tex Humes of Rochester, Pa., 130-pounders, will meet in the opener at 8:30.

The Maxie Rosenbloom-Homer Robertson bout at Motor Square Garden next Monday night will be backed up by a strong preliminary card. Young Saylor of Charleroi will box Lin Jordan, Johnstown Negro, in the semifinal and two heavyweights, Clarence Spagnola and Chuck Semach, will meet in the opener.

Tommy Crowley, local lightweight, easily won over Frank Gordini of Cincinnati and formerly of Hazelwood, in a six-round preliminary to the Dave Shade-Jack McVey bout at Cleveland last night. The windup was called a draw.

Johnny Indrisano of Boston, recent conqueror of both Joe Dundee and Tommy Freeman, added Sig Keppen of Beaver Falls to his list of victims last night, winning the decision in a 12-round bout at Troy, N. Y.

Jack Britton, former welterweight champion, boxes Hilario Martinez, who recently defeated Sid Terris, at New York next Monday night.

A free boxing show will be staged by Charleroi Post No. 22, American Legion, on Armistice Day. Willie Davies, Young Saylor, Bricky Ryan, Ray Fay, Walter Dickerson and other products of the section will appear on the card.

Letters await Sandy Seifert and Red Mason at this office.

THROUGH the SPORT LENS

by HAVEY BOYLE

ABSENCE from this city during the latter half of the lamented world series and a rush of work just before departure allowed an unusual amount of mail to this column to accumulate. There were enough letters, if stretched end to end, to keep the column supplied from now until the first snow.

HAVEY BOYLE.

The trouble with most of the correspondents is that they are in ill-humor, about this and that. The effect, if all were published, would be to make the column a common scold, which may be diverting for a few moments, but which wears badly on most of the folks who, having troubles of their own, do not want to hear continual torrents of verbal indignation.

No column in the world prizes letters more highly than this one, for on a rainy day an interesting letter often is a life-saver, but the great rush of mail we have just gone through leaves the reader with an idea that the times are out of joint. Of course, the times aren't out of joint, especially the sporting days. It isn't the best of possible worlds, perhaps, but by and large the average fellow will pick this one in preference to any other.

OBVIOUSLY, what is needed is a little reflection over the various characters mixed up in the various situations. Nature, liking moderation, often mixes a little good with a little bad in her puppets. With a distaste for extremes, perhaps the fates arrange the cosmic affairs with an eye to putting a little right on this side, mixed with a little wrong, and does the same with the opposing side. That one side in any controversy is entirely angelic and the other side wholly satanic is difficult for this poor muddler to believe. This point, it seems here, is missed by those earnest correspondents who have written many a diatribe, partly true, partly unjust.

ONE of the most insistent letter writers is the American Automobile Association of Washington, D. C. There must be a man in the United States that daily finds fault with the postoffice department. We picture him as a man sitting patiently each day on his stoop awaiting the cheery mailman, only to find disappointment every time the letter man passes him by. The man's name is Harvey J. Bogle. Those letters the Automobile Association have been sending him for ever so long find their way to this desk with great regularity. We trust Mr. Bogle finally gets the matter straightened out. Our conscience in the matter is clear. We have half a claim on the letters for Mr. Bogle, since the other part of the address as to street and city is perfect. If you happen to run across Harvey J. Bogle, tell him we have quite a few of his letters and will be glad to turn them over to him. The mail has been coming so regularly now that often we expect the cheery postman to say: "Well, Mr. Bogle, how are all the little Bogles today?"

WHEN Ray Campbell was here the other day he told about waking up Gene Tunney at 2 o'clock in the morning preceding the first fight with Dempsey. The general supposition is that a man about to fight for the greatest honor in pugilism sleeps lightly, nervously. Campbell reports he had to tug and almost shout at Tunney to stir him. Tunney will go down as one of the nerviest men in the history of the game. His gesture of flying to Philadelphia on the day of the bout was variously interpreted by the boys in the game. Some said it showed dauntless courage; others said he might have been so afraid he would have welcomed an upset of fight plans. Since his Chicago bout, however, all are in accord in saying he has all the nerve required in a strenuous game.

JOHNNY RAY, the new matchmaker at Motor Square, has had bad luck in first two shows. On paper both matches looked fine, but a foul marred one, and DeMarco's caginess to avoid the punching power of Wallace interfered with the second bout. The prelims were uniformly good.

RAY knows many a boxer in this district and throughout the country—and knows what they can do. With better breaks he will put on shows that will better please the customers. Meanwhile, Mr. McGarvey, who was forced many times to total exasperation over twists in the game, still is confident he acted wisely in resigning. There is plenty of grief and worry to the matchmaking racket.

WHAT would help out in Pittsburgh in developing new boxing talent is a small boxing club, playing to low prices and featuring local boys. Whether it would pay is not certain, but the chances are some gentleman, like the fellow who ordered hash, will take a chance.

The South Side Market House will likely be available for an occasional show.

EDDIE KENNEDY, referee, who had words with James Mason, the local manager, is to be respected for the way he tries to be entirely fair to local boy and to visiting boxer. Kennedy calls them as he sees them and is thoroughly honest. Mason must learn that no one wants to give his boxers the worst of it—or the best of it.

Unless boxing men soon discover that their sport—their way of making a living—must be guarded by them selves—boxing will fade out.

WISE ONES TO BACK FORMER CHAMP

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Jack Delaney, who resigned as light heavyweight champion in order to browse in the greener fields of the heavyweights, was quoted as a 2 to 1 favorite in the betting today to beat Jack Renault, Canadian contender, in their 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden tomorrow.

Delaney followers believe the sharpshooting ex-king of the light heavies will throw too many punches and prove too fast for Renault, while the latter's supporters maintain that taking the short end is a tempting wager to them.

The loquacious Leo Flynn is reported to be willing to hazard a few dollars on Renault.

Both have been training earnestly as a victory will entitle the winner to more lucrative employment in Tex Rickard's perpetual heavyweight elimination tournament during the winter. Delaney has been working out in his private gymnasium at Bridgeport, Conn., and will not come to New York until Friday morning. Renault has been getting in shape at Grupp's gymnasium.

Ralph Smith, Los Angeles giant, was signed by matchmaker Jess McMahon to fight on the card featuring Tom Heeney and Jack Sharkey.

McLaughry's Iron Men of Brown. The Lions have fallen on lean days, but by the time they come here to meet Pitt in the annual Thanksgiving Day finale they may be counted on to be primed for a tough fray.

NEXT week Penn moves West for the second time in as many seasons, to play Chicago at Chicago. Last year's battle was with Illinois at Urbana and resulted in a 3-0 setback for the Quakers. Chicago went East to play Penn last year and lost, 27-0.

AN Ohio lad has won himself a regular berth on the Penn team. He is Ralph Monk of Portsmouth, who played as a substitute lineman last year, was shifted to end at the start of this season and now has gone to guard to replace the injured Johnny Utz. Monk was a bit too heavy and slow at end, but is expected to make good in the center of the line.

WILLIE DAVIES, state flyweight champion, is to be put back in the elimination tournament in California before returning home. A bad decision in his bout with Johnny McCoy, of Cleveland, removed Willie from the tourney and caused so much stir that the promoters have decided to match him with the winner of the final bout between McCoy and Tommy Hughes, also of Cleveland, which is scheduled for tomorrow night. Willie should be able to walk off with the honors, after which he will come home, challenge the winner of the New York tournament and seek recognition as the world champion in his class.

COMMENTING on the decision against Davies in the tournament, one of the Coast papers had the following to say:

"Willie Davies was a victim of a sympathy decision at the Hollywood arena when Referee Clark gave Johnny McCoy an undeserved win over the little Eastern flyweight. The house was for McCoy, they showed it all through the fight, and, while the decision was well received, it was absolutely undeserved. Davies is a better boy than McCoy and will demonstrate that to the fans of this city before he leaves. Davies took five rounds, McCoy has three and two were even. Davies put McCoy to the floor twice in the fifth round. McCoy hit Davies five times with a right hand in the 10 rounds, each punch coming in a different round, but five right hand punches are not going to win any fight when they fail to do any material damage. Davies kept his left in McCoy's face all the way—landed four and five punches to every one of McCoy's—made the fight, did all the work in the clinches—if ever a lad won a fight Willie Davies won that fight and we don't mean maybe. McCoy still is in the flyweight tournament, more power to the old boy, but he never will see the day he can beat little Willie Davies."

LOCKE IN HOSPITAL

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Roland Locke, former University of Nebraska sprint star, is in Methodist Hospital here, suffering from "trench mouth." The affection is painful but not serious, hospital physicians said, and Locke should be able to leave in a week or 10 days. Locke has been playing semi-professional baseball this year.

TWO BATTLES HEAD SCHOOL GRID CARD

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

Two games which are likely to be close and interesting are outstanding on the local scholastic grid card for tomorrow. The Oliver and Allegheny battle, which is to be staged on the latter's grounds, and the Langley-South Hills embroglio, atop the hills on the west side of the tunnels, should bring out some heated conflict. Both games are in Section 2 of the City League.

Of the other contests on tap, Carrick is favored to down Perry; Schenley should defeat Dormont on Annapolis Field; Peabody should have little trouble winning from Fifth Avenue, and Westinghouse likely will run rough-shod over South. Arnold will be the guest team at Edgewood; North Braddock invades Bellevue; South Brownsville journeys at Homestead, and the W. P. I. A. L. champion, Washington, receives Duquesne.

NATIONAL BOXING HEADS MAY SUSPEND MANDELL

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—The National Boxing Association of the United States is planning to suspend Sammy Mandell, of Rockford, Ill., as world's lightweight champion, it is learned from Thomas E. Donohue, president of the association. Failure to defend his crown is the reason.

The association represents a membership from 18 states and a total of 24 centers where legalized boxing is conducted.

The association will meet in Toledo next week to take action on Mandell's case. The champion gained his title by defeating Rocky Kansas last year and has been practically idle since. He defeated Phil McGraw, of Detroit, on July 14.

A protest will be taken to the Toledo meeting by Walk Miller, manager for Tiger Flowers, over the refusal of Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, to give Flowers a return title match as was promised.

CARLSON LOST TO IOWA

IOWA CITY, Oct. 13.—(UP.)—Grimm and Young took turns at the end position vacated by Carlson, who is bothered with a boil on his back.

Hansen Is Crowned Longue Vue Club Champ

L. D. Hansen won the annual club championship tournament of the Longue Vue Country Club yesterday when he defeated E. E. McCoy, 5 and 4, in the 36-hole final in the first sixteen. The results of 36-hole final tests in the other sixteens follow.

Second sixteen—W. R. Gellatly defeated S. W. Gwiner III, 2 and 1. Third sixteen—K. E. Nieman defeated Dr. S. B. Linhart, 9 and 8. Fourth sixteen—E. L. Patton defeated L. W. Voight, 1 up, 37 holes.

WRIGHT ENTERS MEET

Heading the list of entries for the Thomas Oliver Matthews memorial trophy race to be held in conjunction with the Pittsburgh Athletic Association's championships at their clubhouse swimming pool next Saturday evening, is the name of William J. Wright, captain of the University of Pittsburgh swimming team.

CHILLY SAUCE

BY CHILLY DOYLE

THE Yanks, like the Pirates, appear to be looking far into the future. Reliable information from the Coast has been received by this writer to the effect that Col. Ruppert's agents have just about closed a deal with the Oakland club for the services of Lynn Larry and Jimmy Reese, the sensational keystone pair who are credited with turning the Coast League pennant to the Oakland club.

* * *

COL. RUPPERT, it is said, has, or will, put up $125,000 for the clever infielders who have been sought by many big-leaguers, but whose purchase price has scared off more than one owner. Lary plays short and Reese works on the other side of the bag. Men who came to the world series from the Coast state that Lary and Reese are one of the best second-base combinations that have come into baseball for some time; the close observers all agree that in a fielding way the two can hold up with the best in the majors, but there seems to be some question as to whether they will hit in the big show.

THERE is one very important aspect to the Yankee deal, however. The two clever infielders are not to report to Huggins until 1929. It is not hard to realize that there would be no room for the young stars in the present make-up of the world champions; the work of Koenig and Lazzeri was one of the bright spots of the scraps with the Pirates and this pair is said to be one of the smoothest in the sport.

* * *

TEARS will be shed across the river in Brooklyn when the Yankee deal is formally announced. Uncle Robbie is said to have sent a scout to the faroff circuit for the purpose of negotiating with Oakland for the purchase of the pair; indeed it is stated that this representative was ready to offer the heavy price referred to, but he learned, to his dismay, that the Yanks had beat them to it. The Dodgers have a crying need for a shortstop.

SPEAKING of Oakland, Pittsburgh fans will be pleased to know that Wilbur Cooper enjoyed a fine year for the new Coast champions. That Cooper has much of the same wizardy he showed over a long span of years with the Pirates is the belief of those who are close to him.

ALTHOUGH Cooper would have liked to have been a part of the Pirate flag-winners of this season, he showed nice feelings for John Miljus and the club shortly after John had been purchased from the Seattle team. Wilbur wrote Miljus a letter of congratulations.

"I am glad to hear of your good fortune, John," said Cooper. "I know you have the stuff to win in the big show—now get in there and help Pittsburgh to win the pennant."

PIRATE fans will remember Cooper for many things, not the least of which was his feat of winning 100 ball games in five successive seasons under the handicap of Pirate teams that were not of the championship quality. And where in the sport will you find a sharpshooter who worked with the consummate ease and grace displayed by the poetry of motion lefthander? What a pleasure it was to watch Alexander and Cooper stage a classic that seldom ran more than one hour and 20 minutes. Many a battle these two stars staged on hot summer days. As a rule, Cooper would finish on sighing end of a 1-0 or 2-1 game, for Aleck, in those days, was unbeatable. He is no setup now, if you ask the Yanks and seven National League teams.

ANOTHER star of the mound who regaled Pittsburgh audiences with the splendor of his performance years ago, like Cooper, has just come through a big season. Albert Mamaux, erstwhile Prince of Dormont, pitching for the Newark club of the International League, led that circuit in slab deeds. Yet, strange to say, Al has not advanced to the big show. And stranger still, Mamaux does not give a darn whether he comes back or not. He said so while covering the world series for a Newark paper. Mamaux's articles, by the way, were instructive and interesting. He was particularly impressed by the pitching of John Miljus in the last game. Miljus and Mamaux formerly attended Duquesne University.

M'CLEARY IS LOST TO WAYNESBURG ELEVEN

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Oct. 13.—William McCleary, star quarterback of the Waynesburg College football team, and selected as all Tristate Conference quarterback, has been forced to quit school on account of an injury suffered to his left leg in a recent game.

His loss will be a severe blow to the local team.

Big Tackle Well Again

By JESS CARVER.

CARNEGIE TECH got the first "break" of the W. & J. game, and got it two days early. The "break" secured by the Tartans was the return to the lineup yesterday of Paul Cooper, varsity and veteran tackle, who worked out with the team yesterday and will indulge in further workouts today.

Injured in the first period of the Drexel embroglio last Saturday, Cooper was at first put down on the list as a three weeks' casualty, but heroic work on the part of Doc Marks and Trainer Bert Munhall brought the wrenched shoulder around, until it mended to such extent that Paul was able to don a uniform yesterday.

With Cooper listed as a sure starter the task faced by Advisory Coach Steffen and Coach Bob Waddell in whipping together a line capable of holding the fast-running and hard-hitting President backs in check is not so gigantic as it was at first expected. Of course, the game isn't won yet, nor is the score held to two touchdowns, but with the work today and the warming up and tapering off drill tomorrow, and the pre-game address of Saturday by the Chicago judge, the chances of Tech's pulling an upset victory are considerably improved.

MUST STIFFEN DEFENSE.

The thing that Tech needs to fear, and needs to drill the defense on, is the W. & J. aerial attack. Tech looked miserable in trying to stop the forward passing game launched by Thiel two weeks ago. Drexel did not have enough of an air threat to give the Plaid the workout it needed, so that Steffen may find his men at some pains Saturday when W. & J. starts tossing the pigskin through the air.

On the other hand, W. & J. must send a team on the field so wide awake mentally that there will be no chance for the tricky formations of the Tartan offense to function. Tech is very likely to pull a fast one, maybe two, and push over a touchdown early in the game. In that case, it will go hard with W. & J., for a Tech team fighting to save the advantage gained through an early score, is a savage and terrible foe.

Following in the usual manner of most football coaches, Andy Kerr is wailing about the coming game, predicting everything from a Tech victory by a single touchdown to a 100 to 0 walkaway. Andy can find more things wrong with a ball club of his three days before a game than the government can find fooie with my income tax.

Kerr can't fool the boys who have seen his team in action, and if he's coming to Pittsburgh with the idea of picking up some Tech money at odds he is going to be badly mistaken. The Western Maryland game scared the boys a bit, but not enough to make 'em turn their backs on the Presidents.

While Pitt is drilling on Stagg Field, Chicago, today, in preparation for the game at Des Moines Saturday with Drake, Coaches Layden and Weibel of Duquesne are going to put their Dukes of Duquesne through one hard football practice. Rain and mud mean nothing to Elmer Layden, and this chap Weibel is just as hard-boiled as the former Horseman—on the gridiron. The Dukes play Bethany Saturday in their second Conference game.

Layden has a smart football squad, as a squad. He needs a good quarterback; most of the men need experience badly. But the boys have played heads-up football in the three games in which they have been in so far this fall. They follow the ball well and show the effects of the expert coaching they are receiving from the two Notre Dame stars.

Bethany has yet to win a game or score a point. The Bisons lost to Fordham, W. & J., and St. Francis.

DRAKE CHANGES LINEUP

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 13.—A keen wind that promises crisp fall weather for the Pittsburgh game here Saturday pepped Coach Ossie Solem's Bulldogs as they were pushed through a severe drill. Solem has been disturbed by the reported strength of the Panthers and is intent upon rebuilding, so far as possible, not only his line but backfield as well. Today's was the final scrimmage for Drake before Saturday.

The latest device, tested by Solem, is the conversion of Dick Zvacek, who worked at end and half against the Navy, into a fullback. Zvacek is expected to do the things that the non-to-heavy Capt. Cook cannot be expected to do as interference against the Panthers.

Zvacek is a back by nature and was only converted into an end to fill a gaping hole this fall by Solem. Last year, as a freshman, Zvacek was the talk of the Drake campus. His ability to run interference or carry the ball equally well has brought Solem to look upon him favorably for the fullback position. As running mates in the backfield Zvacek will likely have Capt. Cook, Arts and Barnes. All veterans. McCarthy, a reserve center, is being coached to work at left tackle, where Helmer has been showing more beef than betterment.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS NEWS ON PAGE 26

Sandlot Football

By TOM BIRKS.

Cheering news for the gridiron fans on the North Side was sprung during the week to the effect that Hope-Harvey would be back on the gridiron with another club of last season's caliber. "Red" Blackstone and Art Rooney are sponsoring the Big Green aggregation at Phipps Playgrounds. On Saturday the strong Blawnox outfit will provide the opposition for the North Siders and a great game is expected.

Would it be possible to have anything in the line of sports on the old North Side unless that sportsman Art Rooney, was backing it? North Side sport lovers owe much to the Rooney family, especially Art, who seems always willing to back anything that means sports for the fans of the North Side.

Carrick Odds are still going strong out at Jordan Field, and this gridiron is fast becoming the mecca of the football followers of the city. On Sunday the Lawrenceville Mohawks will meet the Odds. The Strip boys are fighting hard for titular honors this season and this should be a real fight.

Our old friend Zoltac does not appear so much in the limelight this season. The East Pittsburgh ball carrier set up a wonderful record last season, but he will shine when the going gets tough.

Joe Petrollo, with his newly-formed Oakmont A. C. gridders, is looking for a home game on Sunday. Joe knows the gridiron racket and is getting together a real winning combination, with plenty of stars from other clubs on the roster. Joe can be reached at Schenley 9468.

Andy Hastings, the old Pitt star of the greatest combination the Blue and Gold ever had, is coaching the Blawnox aggregation. If the old Pitt star is able to impart that wonderful store of gridiron knowledge to the Allegheny river boys, then the opposition is going to have quite a time.

The Paulson A. A. gridders of East Liberty will be back on the gridiron again this season. Paulson is one of the oldest combinations in the district and can always be depended upon for a good brand of football. The East Enders are booking—for games call Montrose 7995 and ask for Pete.

Duquesne Odds will hold a practice session at the tank grounds and all players are asked to report at 7 p. m. this evening. The Odds are booking with the strong junior lightweight clubs in the city. For games call Fairfax 1509.

Any of the leading semi-pro clubs in the district wishing to sign up a real lineman with four years' college football experience can do so by getting in touch with the writer.

Manager Babe Attell of the Sharpsburg Tigers came to bat during the week regarding the wonderful end playing of Concrete in the Bridgeville game last Sunday. Attell feels that Concrete is easily the class of the district when it comes to playing end, and also, says Attell, some of the opposition will also feel that way before the season is over.

These Delicate Athletes!

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 13.—Tiny Lewis, charging fullback of Northwestern University, was confined to a hospital today suffering from a cold. Coach Dick Hanley ordered Lewis confined to his room earlier in the week and when he saw him parading hatless and slickerless in a rain yesterday sent him to a hospital.

U. S. COULD SAVE ON WAR, SAYS MACNIDER

Ten billion dollars would have been saved American taxpayers in the World War if the industries of the nation had been organized to national defense in 1917—as they are today—Hanford MacNider, assistant secretary of War, said late yesterday.

Mr. MacNider, here to speak last night at the Knights of Columbus banquet in honor of the well-known sailor of 1492, spent the morning in the Neville Island plants of the Dravo Construction Company. He flew to Pittsburgh Tuesday, landing at Bettis Field, McKeesport, and was a house guest of Ralph M. Dravo at his residence in Sewickley.

The slim, youthful assistant secretary, whose distinguished war record made him one of the first national commanders of the American Legion, looks more like a college boy at a football game than the man who has organized the industries of the nation so that within 24 hours they could be converted into mammoth war material plants.

"The dreadful cost of our last war was due," he said, "to starting out to build up industries which could supply the seven buying branches of the Army—ordnance, quartermaster corps, signal corps, air corps, chemical warfare division, medical corps and engineers' corps. In all, more than 700,000 articles were manufactured. What we have been doing since the war is to trace each of these articles from the raw material to the finished product and then figuring with the manufacture how their present machinery could be converted to manufacture them."

Pittsburgh is being passed in the development of commercial aviation, Secretary MacNider said, because of inadequate landing fields. Mr. MacNider is an enthusiastic flier and has visited 47 states in the last year in his Curtiss "Falkan," the pursuit type plane of the Army. In the fiscal year ending in September he flew 50,000 miles, spending more than 500 hours in the air.

CHILD BURNED ASKS $10,000

Thomas Brady entered suit in Common Pleas Court for $10,000 damages against Thomas Kennedy, 211 Plymouth street, Mt. Washington. Brady alleges that last February 17, a son of Kennedy started a fire in a vacant lot at Sycamore and Plymouth streets, to burn rubbish and refuse from the grocery store owned by the elder Kennedy. While watching the fire John Brady, 8, son of Thomas Brady, was seriously burned. The elder Brady claims that Kennedy was negligent in permitting the Brady child to go near the fire.

WILL DISCUSS "SYSTEM OPERATION" AT DINNER

"System Operation" will be the topic for discussion at the monthly dinner of the supervisors and foremen of the distribution department of the Duquesne Light Company at the new Roosevelt Hotel this evening. Chairman R. J. Miller, supervisor of the Crafton branch, F. E. Tencate, supervisor of the North Side, and C. R. Rupert, system operator, will be the speakers.

FRIDAY! OUTSTANDING BASEMENT SALE!

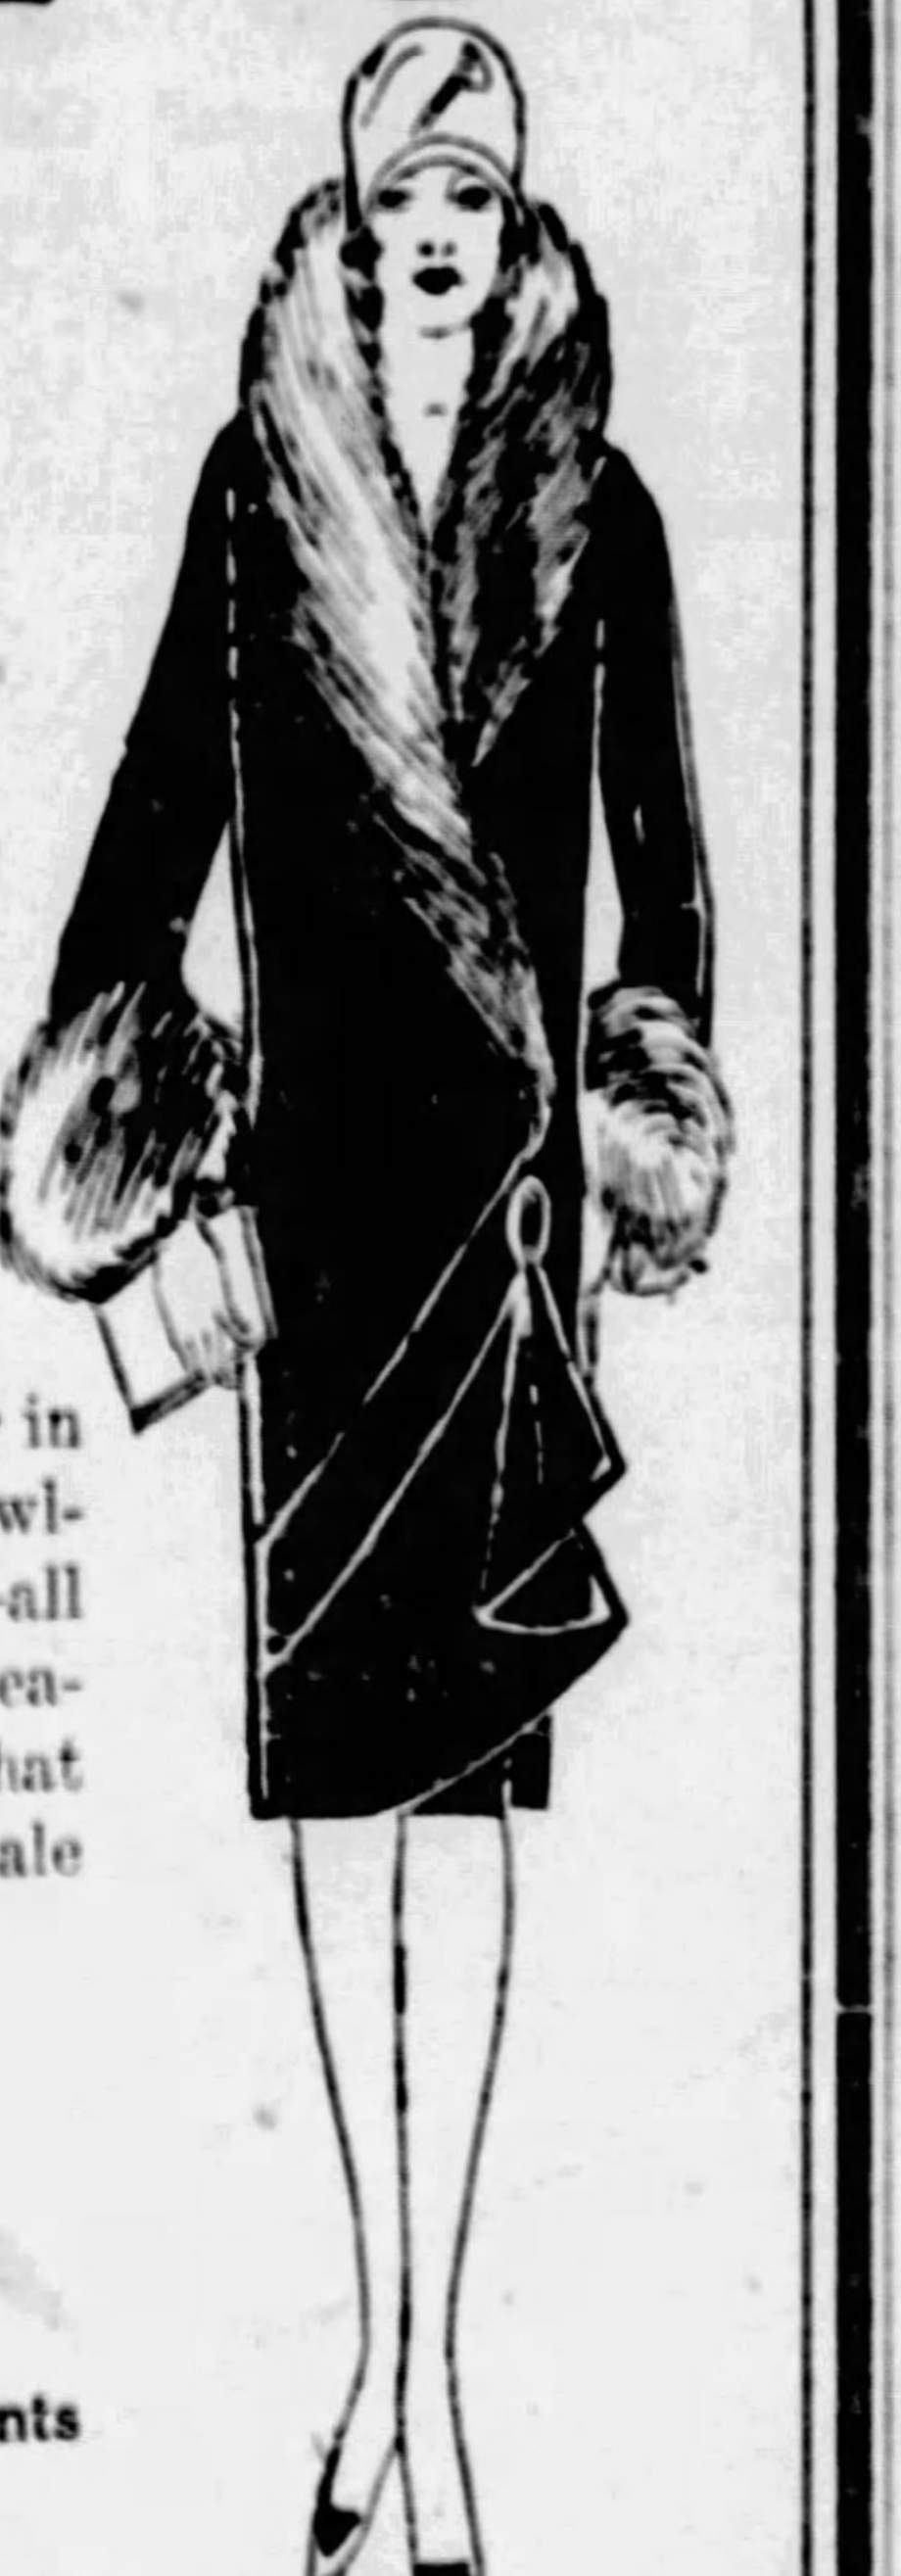
New Fur-Trimmed COATS

$25 to $39.50 Values!

The hot weather during the early part of September left coat manufacturers with huge stocks of Winter Coats. Many makers were willing to take big losses if by doing so they could dispose of their overstocks.

$18

As a result, Friday we are able to offer our customers these 350 high-grade Fur-trimmed Coats at JUST ABOUT HALF WHAT THEY WOULD HAVE COST US two weeks ago.



Beautiful wrappy models, with row upon row of rich fur in front and around the lower edge . . . youthfully flattering shawl-like collars—snug sleeves; half shawl effect in fur collars—all these details add to the beauty of the coats. Scores of the season's newest and most popular colors in a choice selection that is sure to please every woman and miss who attends this sale tomorrow.

PAYNE STRESSES RED CROSS ROLL CALL

"The American Red Cross during the past year assisted the victims of 77 disasters in the United States, and also furnished relief in 21 foreign countries," said John Barton Payne, national chairman, at a luncheon given in his honor at the William Penn yesterday by Augustus K. Oliver, general chairman of the Eleventh Roll Call Committee of the Pittsburgh Chapter. The roll call must be a success, he added, if the Red Cross is to meet its responsibilities.

Judge Payne described with pride the work done in the Mississippi flood. The Red Cross helped the 600,000 persons driven from their homes by the water and saved 200,000 head of cattle.

The executive committee of Pittsburgh chapter, the war-time committee, and the executive committee of the roll call attended the luncheon.

BOGGS ESTATE DISTRIBUTED

A decree of distribution was handed down for the R. H. Boggs estate by Judge Thomas P. Trimble in Orphans Court yesterday. It orders the payment of $1,224,127 to Mary Walker Boggs, executrix; about $300,000 to various individual beneficiaries and charitable institutions, and $130,000 to the state and federal inheritance tax offices.

ABRAMS WILL PRESIDE AT HEBREW CONFERENCE

Prof. Israel A. Abrams, president of the Hebrew Institute of Pittsburgh, will preside tonight at the opening meeting of the Hebrew Principals' and Teachers' conference of the United States. The conference will continue over Sunday, sessions being held in the Y. M. and Y. W. H. A. in Bellefield avenue. Friday evening directors of the Pittsburgh institute will tender a banquet to visitors.

Relief from Gas Stomach Pains Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are sure to get sick unless you relish your food, digest it properly, and keep your bowels regular.

Tanlac has a wonderful record as a sure relief from digestive troubles of every kind, even those of many years' standing. Read what Mr. Daniel Vinciguerra, of 6200 Stiles St., Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have not had a dizzy spell or a headache since taking Tanlac. My appetite has increased and my nerves are in better shape. I can now enjoy a good night's sleep and feel like my old self."

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run down, it's a sure sign you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks—nature's own remedies. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

Elmer Layden Says

ELMER LAYDEN
Duquesne University Coach

I AM not going to claim a victory for the Dukes in the game with Bethany on Saturday. True, the contest will not be as hard as the one with Geneva, which we lost, neither will it be as easy as the one with Broaddus, which we won. Bethany hasn't won a game yet this year, but they have as good a team as we have right now, and will probably come along and be in fine shape for us Saturday.

My team has had its share of injuries, but I think I will be able to muster my full strength for Saturday's game. If we can get a win over Bethany, it will mean a lot to both the team and to the student body—for it will serve as a morale builder, and that is what we need.

Line Coach Weible and myself have ironed out a lot of the rough spots that cropped up in the Geneva game, and the eleven that goes on the field at Bethany Saturday will be a smoother working machine than the one that battled so valiantly against Geneva.

If we can hold Bethany to a touchdown or two, and at the same time, show improvement in all departments, I will be well satisfied.

JESS CARVER'S VARSITY COLUMN

DR. H. Y. BENEDICT of the University of Texas, the new president of the University by the way, is the latest college head to register a kick on college football.

According to reports from the Sunny South, President Benedict is "not strenuous in his opposition to modern football," but the learned Doctor would like to see athletics take a back seat.

A FEW years ago Harvard started out to trade a couple history professors for a good halfback or a tackle, or both, if possible. Last fall President Wark of West Virginia Wesleyan startled the country by offering to trade two halfbacks and a center for a good professor. It seems that there were more football coaches at Wesleyan than there were good professors.

THIS uprising on the part of the Texan savant is simply the annual "kick." College athletes, as they are conducted now, certainly are out of their place. But feeble kicks on the part of school presidents will never change the situation a jot. The reform must come from without, rather than from within in the case of college athletics.

THE situation among the schools in this locality, with the exception of Pitt and Tech and possibly West Virginia and Penn State is very bad. In the Tri-state Conference, misunderstandings and suspicion have just about wrecked what promised to be a powerful college organization. At the present time there is a ball-up in schedules, one team is under suspicion of playing an ineligible man and another of playing three or four.

AT A recent meeting of the Conference, held here in Pittsburgh, four of the six schools were represented, and one representative was simply pinch-hitting for the graduate manager of the school from which he came. There was a lot of talk, indirect accusations were made, or probably I should say, a blanket accusation indirect was made concerning the eligibility of men on at least two other Conference teams.

IT WOULD not come as any sort of a surprise to see the Conference go up in smoke before the present season is over. There is one member of the league ready to quit right now. Another gives serious indication of being ready to do the same thing, and a couple of the other schools do not seem to care what happens.

Inside Story of Reserve Board Fight with Chicago.

By B. C. FORBES

"INSIDE information" is eagerly sought. I am in a position to give today the real "inside" story of the battle between the Federal Reserve Board at Washington and the Chicago Reserve Board, a battle which may be aired when Congress meets.

WHEN the Chicago bank refused to lower its 4 per cent rediscount rate, the Washington board went over its head and compelled the bank to cut its rate to 3½ per cent.

From an authority thoroughly familiar with every phase of what went on inside the Federal Reserve Board emanates this exclusive statement:

"The power of the Federal Reserve Board has been challenged early in the history of the Federal Reserve System. There is no real record concerning what took place; but on October 20, 1919, Judge Milton C. Elliott, consulting counsel of the Federal Reserve Board, rendered an opinion holding that the board had the power to initiate rates. Senator Carter Glass, then secretary of the Treasury, in a letter dated December 4, 1919, to the Attorney General, and the Attorney General in a letter of December 9, 1919, sustained the board in their power. There has never been any real question on the board as to its power.

"THE action of the board in Chicago matter was not a new departure. The Federal Reserve Board (about the year 1921) ordered the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago to lower its rate when it had neglected for a long period to follow the desire of the board to relieve the country from excessively high interest rates. Then the Chicago bank requested that they be permitted to lower the rate and that the record of the Federal Reserve Board be made to show as if the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago had requested and initiated its own rate. This was done.

"The board had on other occasions voted on lowering the rate for other banks, but with possibly one other exception, the board by a majority vote declined to fix a rate for the banks under consideration. On one occasion, it is recalled, one of the Federal reserve banks was ordered to lower the rate.

"WHEN the Chicago bank recently wired the board making application to continue a 4 per cent rate the board declined to approve their action. Clearly the Federal Reserve Board has the power to refuse to approve a rate. Thereupon the Chicago bank officials claimed that it was impossible to get an executive committee together that had authority to act, for a period of two weeks.

"Over the telephone it was later reported to the board that three members of the executive committee of the bank were out of the city but were all opposed to the reduction, and that the three members in the city were lukewarm about it. A letter from one of the members of the bank board was read over the 'phone which stated in substance that he would not change his vote and that if the rate ought to be changed to let the Federal Reserve Board change it and take the responsibility.

"THESE facts were all communicated to the Federal Reserve Board prior to September 6, when the rate was fixed. In the meantime, the Chicago bank really had no effective rate because the Federal Reserve Board had declined to approve the rate that they had fixed. On September 2 the board wired the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago that there would be a full meeting of the board on Tuesday, September 6, to consider their rate. That gave them time to go to Washington if they had anything to suggest, but instead they invited a member of the board to go to Chicago.

"DURING the same week another bank had likewise reported that it desire to continue a 4 per cent rate. The Federal Reserve Board wired this bank to reconsider and the next day the bank lowered its rate to 3½ per cent.

"STATEMENTS that the action of the board was inspired by foreign influences are ridiculous and unfortunate. It was thought by the board that it was advisable to have the bills for the movement of commodities of the United States at the lowest possible rate. It is not natural for industrial concerns to make large commitments at a high rate, but rather to wait for a low rate.

"This was all done to promote the commerce and business of the United States, although indirectly possibly the 3½ per cent rate was of benefit to foreign banks in that the American balances would be held there at a high rate rather than returned to the United States where a low rate prevailed."

IT IS significant that Secretary Mellon has not laid before the Attorney General the Chicago bank's request for a ruling on the Federal Reserve Board's powers.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Week's Car Loadings Lower.

Revenue freight loadings on the railroads of the United States during the week ended October 1 totaled 1,124,109 cars, according to the American Railway Association. This was an increase of 402 cars over the preceding week, 43,659 under the corresponding week last year, and 13,167 above the corresponding week in 1925. Since the first of the year, 39,397,-134 cars have been loaded with revenue freight on lines of the railroads of the United States, comparing with 40,314,189 in 1926, a decrease of 0.7 per cent, and with 39,606,737 in 1925, an increase of 3.0 per cent.

A. P. I. Production Report.

The United States daily average gross crude oil output for the week ended October 8 totaled 2,526,800 barrels, a decline of 19,150 from the previous week, according to the American Petroleum Institute.

Continue Seminole Curtailment.

The Oklahoma Corporation Commission has issued an order continuing curtailment program in the Seminole area until November 5 providing for production not to exceed 450,000 barrels daily.

Insurance Sales Increase.

H. S. Robinson and J. P. Collins of the Republic Casualty Company, upon their return from the National Insurance Convention at White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, report increased volume of casualty, accident and health insurance being placed by major companies all over the country. H. A. Martin, branch manager of the same company, from Indianapolis, Ind., visited the home office Tuesday and reported a healthy increase of business in his territory.

Sept. Electricity Consumption.

The rate of general productive activity of the manufacturing plants of the nation during the month of September was approximately the same as in the corresponding month last year, based on the consumption of electrical energy. Productive activity during September was 0.1 per cent under September of last year, and 20.7 per cent above September, 1925, reports received by Electrical World indicate. The activities during September were 7.1 per cent higher than in August, and reveal a seasonal gain in activity about equal to that reported in the same period last year.

Statistics on Motors.

Kay, Richards & Co. have prepared for distribution a statistical bulletin on 27 motor companies, giving data on invested capital, income, earnings, market range, dividends and ratio of earnings to the present selling price.

Bituminous Output Expanding.

Bituminous coal production during the week ended October 8, estimated by the National Coal Association from preliminary reports of shipments on originating railroads, shows a total of about 10,323,-000 net tons. Incomplete reports as to what extent the resumption of bituminous mining in Illinois last week may effect the total output, may cause considerable revision in this total when complete returns from that field are at hand. The last report of the Bureau of Mines shows the bituminous tonnage mined during the week ended October 1 as 10,049,000 net tons, and during the week ended September 24 as 9,871,000 net tons.

Professional Operations.

A number of professionals have adopted the practice of pressing stocks for sale as soon as the market indicates the temporary demand has been supplied. At times today, however, this selling met better resistance than previously and resulted in a number of these traders covering short commitments which aided in causing several rallies.

Seats Reach $265,000.

A sale of New York Stock Exchange membership has been arranged at $265,000. This is a new high record and an advance of $15,000 over the last previous sale.

English Bank Rate Unchanged.

The minimum rate of discount of the Bank of England remains unchanged today at 4½ per cent.

Pipe Line Oil Stocks Gain.

Stocks of crude oil held by Eastern Pipe Lines September 30 amounted to 12,-282,714 barrels, an increase of 223,401 barrels over August.

Big Jump At Seminole.

Seminole area crude oil production for 24 hours ended 7 a. m., October 12, amounted to 448,358 barrels, or an increase of 25,124 barrels over the day before.

GENERAL TREND OF STOCKS UPWARD

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Some irregularity developed in the early part of today's stock market, but operators for the rise retained control of the general price movement. Call money appeared to be in plentiful supply during the morning at the renewal rate of 4 per cent, but banks called about $20,000,000 in loans early in the afternoon.

American Machine and Foundry was the individual feature, soaring 19 points in the first few hours of trading to a new record high at 142, as against the year's low of 73.

Except for a slight increase in freight car loadings in the week ended October 1, as compared with the previous week, and another decline as compared with the corresponding week of last year, there was little in the business news over the holiday to influence the price movement. Directors of the Pullman Company, Inc., today placed the new stock on an annual dividend basis of $4, equivalent to $10 on the old stock, which was split up 2½ for 1 and paid $8 annually.

Violent bullish demonstrations took place in a few high priced issues, the floating supply of which is small. Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis jumped nearly 14 points, Colorado Fuel and Houston each sold at least 5 points higher and General Asphalt, Reid Ice Cream, Manhattan Electrical Supply, Continental Insurance and Abitibi Power sold 3 or more points higher.

General Motors was again in brisk demand and United States Steel common received better buying support despite the unsatisfactory nature of recent trade news.

NARROW GAINS NOTED ON LOCAL STOCK EXCHANGE

STANDARD AND ARK ACTIVE HERE

Stocks were in fair demand on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today following the Columbus Day suspension of trading, but the business was confined to a few stocks, generally those which have been showing more than usual activity over the past few weeks. Prices were steady to firm in the early hours, with some of the leaders displaying an upward tendency.

Standard Sanitary Manufacturing common was the most active issue in the manufacturing division during the first half of the session. The stock came into the market unchanged at 105, but moved higher after several odd lots had been taken up at the opening price. The street hears rumors that the stock may be split up on a three-for-one basis with the new stock receiving dividends at the rate of $2 a year, but traders are inclined to believe that other developments are also in the making. Dividend rate on the present shares is $5 a year.

Arkansas Gas reflected a better demand and pointed higher following its opening at 8⅜. Gossip of a pending sale of the company's properties has been revived, but there have been no official intimations in regard to any such transaction. The story goes that Cities Service interests are dealing with the Arkansas officials for transfer of the Arkansas properties to a holding company which will own not only the Arkansas Gas holdings but other properties which will be tied into a single system.

Westinghouse Airbrake, new stock, displayed a firm tone in the early dealings, but failed to hold at the slightly higher level recorded in the first hour. While there was no noticeable pressure on the stock, it fell back from 46 to 45 and evinced very little desire to go forward again.

Another series of small-lot sales of Pittsburgh Plate Glass took place, but the stock held steadily at the 250-level, at which it has been selling for the last several days.

Lone Star Gas was very quiet, yielding its place as leader of the fuel division to Arkansas, which made slow but steady progress in the upward direction.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Wheat prices rallied at the close today as a result of reported excellent demand for wheat at Winnipeg and because of assertions that more than half the wheat arriving there is tough and low grade. Earlier, wheat prices here declined owing to word that weather in Canada was better for threshing. All deliveries of corn today touched the lowest prices yet this season.

Wheat closed firm, ⅜c to ⅝c net higher, corn 1⅜c to 1⅝c down, oats ¼ to ⅛ off and provisions varying from 15c decline to a rise of 12c.

Bank Put on Bond Ticker.

The committee on arrangements for the stock exchange has ruled the bank stock quotations hereafter will be quoted on the bond ticker instead of the stock ticker. Recent fluctuations in bank stocks had aroused concern among bankers who do not look kindly on speculation in this class of securities, and the committee's action is regarded as a move to discourage such speculation. Trading in the stocks, it is understood, will be continued at the inactive post.

New Issue October 13, 1927

$41,500,000

United States of Brazil

(6½% Loan of 1927)

6½% External Sinking Fund Bonds of 1927

To be dated October 15, 1927 To mature October 15, 1957

Authorized: this issue of $41,500,000 of bonds, and an issue of £8,750,000 of 6½% Sterling Bonds of 1927 which are being simultaneously offered in Europe by N. M. Rothschild & Sons, Baring Brothers & Co., Limited, and J. Henry Schroder & Co., London, the bonds of both issues constituting said 6½% Loan of 1927. Interest payable April 15 and October 15. Non-callable except for the sinking fund. Coupon bonds of this issue in denominations of $1,000 and $500 registerable as to principal only. Principal and interest of bonds of this issue payable in New York City in United States gold coin of the present standard of weight and fineness, at the principal office of Dillon, Read & Co., or, at the holder's option, in London in sterling at par of exchange at the office of N. M. Rothschild & Sons. Principal and interest of bonds of the sterling issue payable in London in sterling at the office of N. M. Rothschild & Sons, or, at the holder's option, in New York City in United States gold coin at par of exchange at the principal office of Dillon, Read & Co. Principal and interest of bonds of both issues collectible in Amsterdam, Zurich or Stockholm in the respective local currencies; in each case at bankers' buying rate for sight exchange on New York, in the case of bonds of this issue, or on London, in the case of bonds of the sterling issue. The National City Bank of New York, Countersigning Agent for this issue.

Principal and interest payable without deduction for any Brazilian taxes, present or future

An accumulative sinking fund calculated to retire all bonds of both issues by maturity by semi-annual call by lot at 100% and interest

The Brazilian Government has agreed to make application in due course to list this issue on the New York Stock Exchange.

The following information has been furnished by His Excellency, Dr. Getulio Vargas, Minister of Finance:

SECURITY

The 6½% External Sinking Fund Bonds of 1927 will be the direct obligation of the United States of Brazil, and are to be issued under authority of Legislative Decree 5108 of December 18, 1926. The bonds of both issues, in the opinion of counsel, will be specifically secured, subject to the charges of the 6½% Loan of 1926, by charges on: (a) Income Taxes and Taxes on Invoices (Contas Assignadas Duplicatas), (b) Consumption Taxes, subject also to the charges of the 8% Loan of 1921, and (c) Import Duties, subject also to the charges of the 5% Sterling Loans of 1898 and 1914 and the 8% Loan of 1921. The total revenue derived by the Government from the above sources in 1926 was approximately $150,000,000. If the indicated annual prior charges, now amounting to approximately $15,000,000 (including sinking funds), were deducted from this revenue for the year 1926, there would remain a balance of approximately $135,000,000. The service of the entire amount of bonds now being issued, for interest and sinking fund, calls for $6,405,508 per annum.

SINKING FUND

An accumulative sinking fund, applicable against each issue ratably, is provided for, calculated to retire all bonds of both issues by maturity by semi-annual call by lot at 100% and accrued interest, first call April 15, 1928.

RESOURCES

United States of Brazil, with an area in excess of three and one-quarter million square miles, comprises approximately half the continent of South America, and is approximately equal in area to the United States (excluding Alaska), Great Britain, Holland, Belgium, Portugal and Switzerland combined. Its wealth in agricultural and mineral products is widely diversified. Brazil is the largest producer of coffee in the world, and exports in addition to coffee large amounts of sugar, cotton, cocoa, tobacco and rubber. Its mineral resources, which include iron ore, manganese, gold and precious stones, are known to be extensive. The present population of Brazil is in excess of 36,000,000, and has increased approximately 110% in the past twenty-five years.

NATIONAL DEBT

The national funded debt of Brazil on December 31, 1926, but after giving effect to these issues, was approximately $1,067,000,000, of which approximately $768,000,000 was external. This represents a per capita total funded debt of approximately $30, as against which the per capita national wealth is estimated at approximately $530. The proceeds of the present loan will be applied towards the liquidation of Treasury obligations of the Government including its floating debt, a necessary step for giving effect to Legislative Decree 5108 of December 18, 1926, which provides for the changing of the monetary system of Brazil.

All conversions of Brazilian paper milreis into United States dollars have been made at the approximate current rate of exchange. Other conversions have been made at par of exchange.

Information herein contained has been received in part by cable.

We offer these bonds for delivery if, when and as issued and accepted by us, subject to the approval of legal proceedings by counsel. Legal matters relating to this issue in the United States will be passed upon by Messrs. Cotton & Franklin, New York, and in Brazil by Dr. Alfredo Bernardes da Silva, Rio de Janeiro. It is expected that delivery will be made on or about November 1, 1927, in the form of temporary bonds, or interim receipts of Dillon, Read & Co.

Price 92½ and interest. To yield over 7.10% to maturity

SIX MONTHS MORE TO LIVE!

Suppose the doctor told you that.

Naturally your thought would be of your family—and your will. You may live another twenty—or forty years.

BUT YOU DON'T KNOW.

A trust company sees the sorrow, and hardship, due to man's failure to make a will—and the failure also to afford protection for life insurance.

Every man should have a will drawn and should put upon a trust company the responsibility of investing life insurance proceeds—under an insurance trust agreement. Consultation with our trust officers is invited.

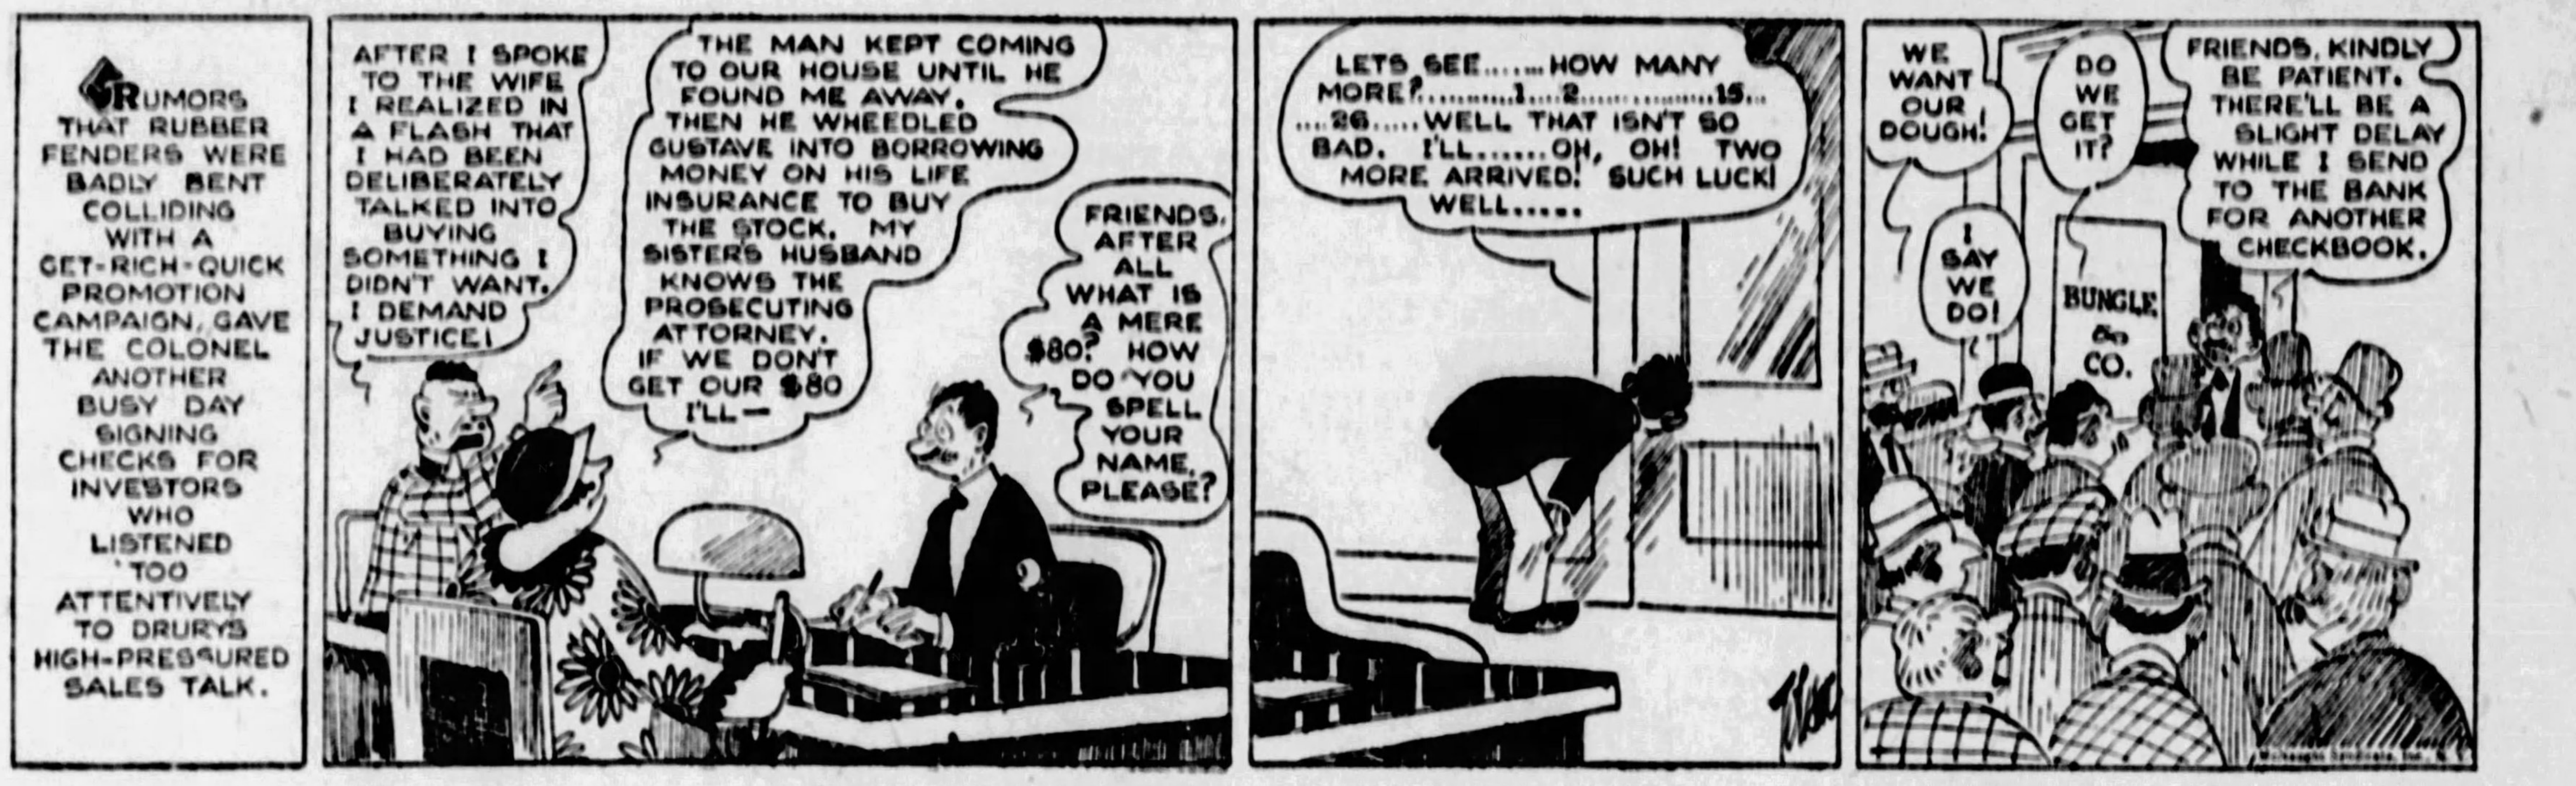
Paying on Demand



RUMORS THAT RUBBER FENDERS WERE BADLY BENT COLLIDING WITH A GET-RICH-QUICK PROMOTION CAMPAIGN, GAVE THE COLONEL ANOTHER BUSY DAY SIGNING CHECKS FOR INVESTORS WHO LISTENED TOO ATTENTIVELY TO DRURYS HIGH-PRESSURED SALES TALK.
AFTER I SPOKE TO THE WIFE I REALIZED IN A FLASH THAT I HAD BEEN DELIBERATELY TALKED INTO BUYING SOMETHING I DIDN'T WANT. I DEMAND JUSTICE!
THE MAN KEPT COMING TO OUR HOUSE UNTIL HE FOUND ME AWAY, THEN HE WHEEDLED GUSTAVE INTO BORROWING MONEY ON HIS LIFE INSURANCE TO BUY THE STOCK. MY SISTERS HUSBAND KNOWS THE PROSECUTING ATTORNEY. IF WE DON'T GET OUR $80 I'LL—FRIENDS, AFTER ALL WHAT IS A MERE $80? HOW DO YOU SPELL YOUR NAME, PLEASE?
LETS SEE......HOW MANY MORE?.........1.....2..........15....26.....WELL THAT ISN'T SO BAD. I'LL......OH, OH! TWO MORE ARRIVED! SUCH LUCK! WELL.....
WE WANT OUR DOUGH!
DO WE GET IT?
I SAY WE DO!

BUGS BAER Says

NEW YORK STATE has been famous for its public utilities, one of which is a grade crossing for every flivver.

It has been carrying the wet torch of progress for centuries, having no less than 976 grade crossings.

That's a record that any state coroner can be proud of.

A grade crossing is the fastest scientific way of converting a load of hay into quick breakfast food.

ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER.

Flattening out the side-swiped tourist and hamburgering the mooley cow, which pauses on the right-of-way to nibble at some toothsome cinders, has long been the outdoor sport of northbound engineers.

Smacking an egg wagon is also a great way of picking up omelets at 60 miles per hour. For, when it comes to grade crossings triumphs, the train never loses. It is as supreme as a manicurist in a barber shop.

This one-sided carnival of contusions and splinters has been going on for many long wobbly years. Gov. Smith has decided to sign a reprieve for the misguided chauffeurs who think that the warning gongs are joy-bells ringing out glad tidings.

Sixty railroad executives met at Albany and admitted that they were tired of the slaughter of the weaker and smaller nations. Now, a total of $150,000,000 will be spent to abolish the 976 undertakers' picnic grounds in New York state.

This is good news, even if it is unfair to organized dealers in junked flivvers. The railroads have been driven by desperation to eliminate the grade crossing. In spite of all precautions they have been forced to admit that you cannot fool a fool driver.

It will be fine and nutritious if other states follow New York and do away with the sea level crossing. This is the only method, for gates, gongs and whiskered gatemen cannot stop a chauffeur who is so nutty that he should sleep in his own tool chest.

When all the grade crossings are eliminated we will not have to go through the formula of the old lady at Cat Junction who hammered on the window until she wakened the sleepy stationmaster.

She asked him when the westbound local was due. He yelled, "Next week," and slammed down the window.

She clapped on the window and awoke him again. This time she asked him when the southbound local was due. He roared, "Next month," and jammed the window down again.

She pounded him up again to inquire if there were any trains at all due in Cat Junction that month. When she found out that there were none, she said, "Thanks. It will be safe to cross the tracks today."

ON "LOOKING DULL IN PLACES"

WHY are so many WOMEN dull
With their HUSBANDS?
Or, that is to say,
Why do so MANY Women APPEAR to be Dull when their HUSBANDS are with THEM?
Many MARRIED couples
Eat almost SILENTLY
In public places,
This MAY be good
Manners, of course, BUT It does not EXACTLY add
An air of GAIETY to
The RESTAURANTS
In which they dine,
Of course, it is VERY hard
To tell ANYTHING
About a GOOD LOOKING Woman who does NOT TALK.
She MAY be a fool, but
She MAY be so WISE that Having NOTHING to Say, she REFUSES to Say ANYTHING,
This NATURALLY would BAFFLE
A fool and PLEASE an INTELLIGENT man.
Men who WANT mental Stimulation or excitement
RARELY look to their OWN
Wives. So, she who LOOKS dull may be—DEEP.

Coolidge Honoring Carnegie Typifies Courage Spirit

Pittsburgh, particularly, and the nation, incidentally, through the participation of President Coolidge in the ceremonies, today honors a former poor boy of Pittsburgh who became one of the great of the world—Andrew Carnegie. Founder's Day, established by Carnegie Institute in memory of Mr. Carnegie, its founder and supporter, is the occasion.

President Coolidge is the only speaker this afternoon at the assemblage in Carnegie Music Hall. The picture needs no other figure. What an encouraging suggestion it contains! The nation's first citizen, who came up from a little farm in the lonely Vermont hills, riding on the flanks of time to the pinnacle of American prestige, paying tribute of respect to the memory of Carnegie. Carnegie, a former bobbin boy in old Allegheny, working to support his mother. Carnegie, whose little fingers then began laying the foundation for the magnificent institution which now bears his name and the civilizing and cultural influence of which extends to all lands.

Incidentally, Founder's Day marks the opening of the International Art Exhibition in the Carnegie Galleries, part of the Institute proper, other units being the Library, Music Hall, Museum and Carnegie Institute of Technology. This exhibition of paintings is unique and Pittsburgh people know they are fortunate in having it brought before them annually at this season.

Death of Col. Schoonmaker Removes Worthy Citizen

The death of Col. James M. Schoonmaker removes from life one of the builders of Pittsburgh. He was a man of energy whose work constitutes an enduring monument to him as man of affairs, citizen of highest type, loyal friend of life's unfortunates as well as those close to him.

Col. Schoonmaker had a brilliant record as a soldier in the Civil War, having been, at the age of 20, the youngest commander of a regiment in the service, rising from the rank of private, in which capacity he served more than a year. A Congressional Medal of Honor for gallantry at Star Fort, Winchester, attests his capacity as a brave defender of our nation's cause.

Col. Schoonmaker devoted the greater part of his life to developing transportation in the Pittsburgh district, having been one of the founders of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad, of which for years he was the guiding head. Although in recent years he had not been as active as he formerly was in the direction of the affairs of this company, he was its vice president and chairman of the board of directors at the time of his death.

Many other institutions had the benefit of Col. Schoonmaker's influence and advice, as he was associated in official capacity with several banks, transportation and mining corporations. He also was interested in the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind and the work of hospitals.

Thousands in the Pittsburgh district mourn the departure of Col. Schoonmaker. He was a creator and a doer. Of him it truly can be said the good a man does lives after him.

Movies in Papua

Moving Pictures Are Civilization's Missionaries

DUSKY LADIES OF PAPUA WATCH THEIR WHITE HOLLYWOOD SISTERS.

On the island of Papua moving pictures are shown to the natives once a month, and that ONCE, a great day, is described by the natives in their queer English as "this one feller night make 'em picture."

The dusky beauties of Papua, and other dark ladies and many gentlemen from neighboring islands, come to see the white men and women in the pictures.

They dress themselves with great care, cover their bodies with fresh cocoanut oil, put wooden combs in their hair, naturally and artificially frizzled. Then they sit enchanted before the screen while fair Talmadge coughs pathetically as Camille or fierce Fairbanks jumps down thirty feet and slays the pirate.

The interesting thing is that as the pictures are shown the natives gradually incline to change their costumes. They become dissatisfied with coconut oil as a dress. Little by little, "for better, for worse," our moving pictures carry our civilization and dress ideas into the distant parts of the earth.

The desert sheik now wears baggy pantaloons and a "double breasted jacket with the nifty slanting pockets."

Papua cannot afford Hollywood styles yet. But Papua can ADMIRE them, and little by little Papua will get them.

One great service that American moving pictures render to this country—they create a demand FOR AMERICAN GOODS.

That is why France, England, Germany and other countries, VERY INTELLIGENTLY, are trying their best to suppress American pictures and replace them with home-made pictures.

As you look at a picture in your local theater you are interested to know that it is being shown all over the world, that it is the missionary of our civilization, and the high class advance agent for our goods.

Garrett P Serviss Says:

Cannon and Thunder

WHEN you speak of thunder "striking" you probably have lightning in mind; thunder only strikes the ear drums, while lightning deals its destructive blows before the thunder has fairly got under way. Lightning travels with a speed too great to be directly measured. The light of lightning travels 186,000 miles per second, and the electric spark is transmitted through the air with a comparable rapidity.

Sound of all kinds travels through the air with a speed of about 1,100 feet per second, but it varies a little with temperature and other circumstances. Reports concerning the distance at which the sound of thunder can be heard are not very reliable. Probably, it is never heard farther than say twenty miles, and very rarely so far. Ten miles may be an average maximum. Loud as it often is, thunder is never heard as far as the firing of cannon. A principal reason for this is that thunder originates at a considerable height in the atmosphere, where the air is lighter than at the ground. But the intensity of a sound is proportional to the density of the air in which it is first produced. A sound originating in relatively light air cannot easily penetrate heavier air.

The sound of a cannon is also more concentrated than that of thunder, and for that reason travels farther. Most remarkable observations were made on the audibility of great guns at far distances during the World War. There are reliable reports of their having been heard as far away as 140 and 150 miles. The huge cannon that bombarded Paris from 70 miles away sent its sound waves much farther than its projectiles, and, in fact, it was by means of these waves that the location of the gun was discovered, and it was put out of action. People in England often listened to the thunder of the guns in Flanders and Northern France.

The experiments just referred to revealed the existence of remarkable "zones of silence" surrounding the point where the firing occurred. The sound would be audible, for instance, over an area extending many miles away on all sides; then there would come a more or less circular zone of considerable breadth within which the sound could not be heard. But still farther away there would be another broad zone where the sound again became audible. The explanation of this is obscure.

Act Your Age

WHY do you like to associate with persons much younger than you are?

Is it that you are younger in spirit?

Do you wish others to think you are so well preserved physically that no "moss of years" has grown on you?

Isn't it that you seek younger friends largely because of a desire to save yourself from the practical ideas of those of your own age?

You can't endure sensible use of your brain power.

You don't like to discuss solid, substantial questions.

You are better pleased with things of a lighter nature.

Mature thought bores you.

Possibly you are not enthusiastically received by persons of your age and you take it as a conviction that you are not really advanced so far in age as they.

In other words, you have not advanced mentally as you should and of that you should be ashamed.

Think and act in a manner becoming your age.

Tales That Are Told

Pass the Salt!

A MAN had three dogs. One evening when he came home he found all three of them asleep on his couch. He whipped them and drove them away.

The next night when he came home the dogs were lying on the floor. But he placed his hand on the couch and found it warm from their bodies. Therefore, he gave them another whipping.

The third night, returning home earlier than usual, he found the dogs sitting before the couch, blowing on it to cool it.—London Tit Bits.

Puzzled

A FIVE-YEAR-OLD boy, noticing a woman in Victorian attire enter a tramcar, startled his father with the following question:

"Daddy, has the lady who just got in got any legs?"

"Of course she has," replied the father.

"Well, where are they?"—London Tit Bits.

Tied

AT THE club, Brown and Jones were lamenting the absence of their mutual friend Robinson, who got married.

"We don't see much of Robinson now," said Brown. "I fancy his movements are not as free as they used to be."

"That's true," replied Jones. "Since he tied the knot he's not had so much rope!"

New York Day by Day
by
O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—It is only in Brooklyn one sees babies in public. In 16 years of living in Manhattan I do not remember seeing more than a dozen infants in arms along Broadway, Fifth avenue, and other crowded centers. This does not apply to the lower East Side.

People of wealth blessed with babies, immediately move to the country, as a rule, and those who remain keep offsprings in an almost mystifying seclusion. As an example, I have been an occasional visitor at a certain home for two years.

It was only day before yesterday I learned they had a daughter going on three years of age. It happened I walked, by accident, into the nursery and there was a beautiful child. She had a playroom that must have cost several thousands to equip.

There was a solarium, intricate weighing machines, a private bath and a French governess in charge. Parents think nothing here of going to Europe for the season or on a trip around the world, leaving the children in charge of competent governesses.

There are innumerable baby specialists whose incomes are enormous. Some charge as high as $50 a visit. No matter how sturdy, nurses take them to the specialists for weekly examinations. Often parents are not permitted to see babies without special permission.

This hothouse method of baby culture has grown surprisingly in the past few years. Some mothers resent it, but those who wish to continue a social life find it relieves restraint. In one wealthy family it is said the baby's upkeep is $500 a week.

Incidentally, there is a lady whose income is amazing as an expert baby namer. She is versed in astrology and numerology and bestows names to fit with these sciences.

A man who has for 16 years been in the Bowery's shuffling parade of despair for a nightly flop was recently found to be a former London surgeon of prominence. He was recognized by a man upon whom he had once performed a major operation successfully. The grateful patient wanted to stake him for a return trip to respectability. "Ten years in the gutter," he told the man, "spoils men as well as dogs for respectability."

There is a boarding house along Tenth avenue catering to professional midgets. It has a dining room with a diminutive table and chairs to match. The beds are also Lilliputian. A circus man who lived there tells me the midget desires more than anything else to be accepted on equal terms with his fellows. His life is encompassed largely in a frank curiosity on the part of strangers and it is only with those of his own statuure he is accepted in a natural manner. The midget is almost invariably a great reader and his literature is largely of the swashbuckling, romantic sort, an existence he is denied in real life.

Up until a few years ago women never attended boxing matches in New York. Today the feminine portion of the audience is often 20 per cent. And they do not sit in shuddery resignation. They screech for gore. Such cries as "Sock him on the button!" and "Put him to sleep!" are as common as the red-corpuscled epithets of the men. These are not hard-boiled ladies of the half world. They are fragile looking creatures, raised in a lavender and old lace culture.

The Heredity Alibi

By DR. FRANK CRANE

I read a good article recently on the heredity alibi. The author pointed out that this is one of the most abused alibis in the world and one of which the weaklings are especially fond.

It seems to be limited to the weaklings. No man who is honest, upright, and has the other virtues attributes it to the influence of his grandfather. He always takes credit for such things himself.

But when a man is a drunkard and loose in his sex life or otherwise self-indulgent, very often he or his mother for him will attribute it to the influence of his father's uncle or some such person.

If a man has a hereditary leaning, for instance, towards liquor, why doesn't he leave it alone?

I know a man who is prominent in politics, himself the governor of a state and his father before him a governor. The father had been a great drunkard. For that reason his son never touched it. He knew the weakness was in his blood and he avoided it. This is the main thing for which heredity is good. It ought to teach us what kind of temptations to avoid.

Any man who goes to the devil is the maker of his own downfall. We never place a false stone in the edifice of our career unless we do it ourselves.

Likewise any man who achieves success is entitled to credit for it. Other people and events may have contributed to his venture, but they would have meant nothing without his co-operation.

The one thing that a successful man clings to is his sense of responsibility. He is the master of his fate and he ought to be the captain of his soul.

Our true heredity is from God and we all have in us the power to make something of ourselves.

The Orientals deify their ancestors, but all we use them for is to put the blame of our actions on them. If everything that is said about heredity were true this world would steadily go to the dogs. As it is, it is growing better and it is improving because there is a continual crop of new babies entering into it and humanity is always starting again.

No matter what your father or mother or great uncles were, therefore, you should not be downhearted.

Dr. Johnson once asked a woman to marry him and she replied: "Sir, I cannot because my condition in life is not equal to yours. Besides, I have two uncles that have been hung."

He answered: "As far as position in life is concerned, all men are born equal, and as far as ancestors are concerned, while I have no uncles that have been hung, I have several relatives that ought to be hung."

The Rhyming Optimist

After Sunset

AFTER sunset comes the thought of the deed you left undone, of the word you did not say, of the beggar turned away, these return at set of sun. After sunset, when the light is a glory in the West and its rare, reflected glow, gilding fields of endless snow, lingers on the mountain's crest, walk the ranks of splendid things, words and acts that might have been, friendly hands you might have clasped, chance for good you might have grasped, love you did not pause to win. Never, through the busy day, do they come to vex your peace; but when twilight shadows fall creeping slowly over all, sunset gives these ghosts release. Why not change this somber train to a pageant of delight where shapes gay and gracious move? Why not let faith, kindness, love, after sunset lend life light?

THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized and Endorsed by Mr. Edison)

Text by Arthur J. Palmer

THERE seems to be no limit to Edison's genius. Almost everywhere we turn we find evidence of his remarkable versatility. He is honored for his marvelous scientific victories, such as perfecting the electric light, the phonograph and motion pictures, but how many of our readers know that he originated waxed paper?

SAFETY first in mines is probably more important than anywhere else. A safe light is absolutely necessary. For the miner Edison made a small model of his perfected storage battery, which could be carried on a belt. From the battery a cable runs to the miner's cap, where the lamp is attached, as shown above.

EDISON was even "mixed up" in flying. In 1885 James Gordon Bennett, the famous publisher, gave him $1,000 to make experiments. He built a helicopter, a machine that rises straight into the air instead of first running along the ground like an airplane. But Edison's helicopter never flew. It [illegible]

WHETHER working on the most complicated or the simplest problem, Edison is always "at home." One day he might be planning an electrical system, the next day the simplest labor-saving device. One that is familiar to us all is the gummed paper wrapping tape, which he invented in 1879.
